PARENTS AND CHILDREN, ADDRESSED BY MISSIONARY

"Parents, welcome, yes with ten thousand welcomes, any child which God may send you!" exhorted Rev. Michael A. Kelly, Holy Ghost father from Philadelphia, speaking to the great gathering in St. Patrick's church Monday evening. "You cannot tell what purpose God may have in his heart for that child! Children, see to it that you keep your lives sweet, clean, honorable, true and lovely! Some day God may use you as His messenger in carrying light and grace and comfort to the dark places of this world."

It was Father Kelly's second evening in the novena which he is conducting in the Norwich parish. He had taken as his text "It is not you who have chosen Me; it is I who have chosen you."

In preparation for the sermon, the congregation had been led in the recitation of the five joyous mysteries of the Rosary—meditation on the annunciation, the visitation, the nativity, the presentation of the Saviour in the temple and the naming of the Child Jesus—by Rev. John J. Reilly. Veni Creator as sung harmoniously by Roderick F. Sullivan and Henry J. LaFontaine, Mr. LaFontaine having given a short organ recital before the opening of the evening's exercises. The missionary read the list of special petitions sent in, unsigned, by persons who desired the prayers of the congregation for the intercession of St. Therese in granting their requests of God—49 asking for restored health, 14 for conversions or return to the church of those erring; 8 asked for business advancement, others for improvement in positions; for the repose of the souls of, for peace and harmony in households, success in studies, divine guidance, a happy death, financial help and the like. The great body of worshippers prayed for the granting of these petitions before the benediction and they are prayed for during the masses at 7 and 8 the day following their public reading.

The preacher pointed out that this devout child dwas like all God's people, living the homely, commonplace life of others in her native mountains; but God had her in His heart for something nobler and higher than were the ordinary lives of those about her. She was to teach, by word and example, the lesson of the Sacred Heart, which is consumed with love for mankind, whose only plea is "Child, Give Me Thy Heart." How the humble child, Therese conquered by her burning love for God, pointed the lesson of the eloquent sermon, which was an exhortation to every listener to put into practice those virtues which have made of her the exemplar whom the entire Catholic world is honoring and seeking to emulate during this month of October. And as the all-knowing God chose her, so he may choose any person, at any time and anywhere, to carry out the designs of His great love.

Before Benediction the choir sang the beautiful hymn, "Oh Little Flower," and the prayers for the novena were read by Father Reilly, who also gave Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. During this, "O, Salutaris" was sung by soloists and chorus in a manner that was particularly inspiring.

Today (Tuesday) Father Kelly, begins hearing confessions at 4 p. m. The two mission masses Monday morning at 7 and 8 were so well attended that the missionary expressed special satisfaction at the zeal and fervor being shown by the parish.

BILL M'KECHNIE IS RELEASED BY DREYFUSS AS MANAGER OF PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18—(AP)—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Pittsburgh National league baseball club for several years past and pilot of the world's championship aggregation of 1925, was notified by Barney Dreyfus, Pirate owner, tonight, that his service would not be required next year.

Dreyfuss, after a conference with McKechnie late today, announced that he had told the Pirate pilot that "the people of Pittsburgh want a change, and we must give it to them." Dreyfuss added that he had no one in sight for the managerial post next season, but hoped to land a good man shortly. He said he advised McKechnie of his decision at this early date so that he might look about for another berth

McKechnie took over the Pirate managerial reins in 1922 when George Gibson resigned on short notice. At that time he was a coach and assistant to Gibson.

McKechnie's reign for several seasons was tranquil. His stock went sky high in 1925 when he piloted the club to a National league pennant and thence to the world's title over the Washington Senators. Then came the hectic season of 1926 when the Pirates, after a good start, were torn asunder by internal discord.

Some players were alleged to have led a movement to oust the veteran Fred Clarke, vice president of the club and McKechnie's assistant, from the bench. This resulted in the release of Max Carey, captain and star outfielder to Brooklyn for the waiver price, and the unconditional release of Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee.

At the time of the upheaval Barney Dreyfuss was in Europe. When he returned he said nothing, other than he stood by Clarke, McKechnie, and his son, Sam Dreyfuss, in their decision to turn loose Carey, Adams and Bigbee.

It was the general opinion among followers of the game, however, that the internal strife had ended McKechnie's career as Pirate pilot. Few fans expected him to return as manager next season and before the 1926 race had closed many were discussing the possibilities in new managers. Those prominently mentioned included Art Fletcher of Philadelphia, and Stuffy McInnis, then a Pirate infielder. In the meantime, however McInnis was released

McKechnie, a native Pittsburgher, began his baseball career in 1905 and before becoming manager of the Buccaneers had been a member of the club several times besides playing with half a dozen other major and minor league organizations. He became a Pirate the first time in 1907, again in 1910 and for the third time in 1919 as a coach under Manager Hugo Bezdek, now football mentor at Penn State. McKechnie quit baseball in 1920 but came back again in 1921, playing with Minneapolis in the American association. Released by Minneapolis he again became a Pirate coach and succeeded to the managership on July 1, 1923 when Gibson quit.

McKechnie said tonight that his release was "very unexpected" and that he did not know what he would do in the future. "But it's no crime for a fellow to be fired," he added.

CAUGHT FOR PERJURY ON MARRIAGE LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

ONECO, Oct. 18.—The notion that Sterling was an "easy" place to get married led Benjamin B. Essex, 31, to come there from Rhode Island last March when he wanted to get a license to marry a 15 year old girl, but two officers led Essex back here today and had him presented on perjury charges before Justice of the Peace Edith N. Kennedy.

Where Essex committed perjury, the complaint alleged, was in taking oath before Town Clerk Thomas Brown on March 29 last that this was his first marriage and he was a single man. He secured a license to marry Viola Malvourn, 15, and they went before the probate judge and were married.

Monday the man was arrested at Hope Valley by Deputy Frank Tillinghast and Special Deputy Dyer Russell, who brought him here before Edith N. Kennedy, Justice of the peace, and the case was prosecuted by Grand Juror C. B. Montgomery. Essex pleaded guilty to the perjury charge and was given a sentence of 30 days Brooklyn jail, with costs of about $50 attached.

The grand juror has learned that Essex was first married to Adeline Shaw in Daviaville, R. I., in 1917, and that she is still living in New York city. When Essex finishes his jail sentence it is probable that he will face another serious charge.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Winnsboro Mills, Winnsboro, S. C.

These cotton mills, controlled by the United States Rubber Company, specialize in cord for United States Tires.

Answering some Questions about the Cord in United States Tires

A—Cord provides the strength for the tire. It is the framework and the reinforcement which gives to the tire its form and structure. Rubber saturates, insulates and webs the cords together and supplies the tire with its wear-resisting surface.

Q—Who makes the cord for United States Tires?

A—The superior cord used in United States Tires is made in the Winnsboro Mills at Winnsboro, South Carolina. These mills are controlled by the United States Rubber Company and have been, since 1917.

Q—Why does the United States Rubber Company consider it advantageous to operate its own cord mills?

A—This is in keeping with the Company's policy of ensuring absolute uniformity and high quality in all the materials which go into its tires. For the same reason, the Company grows its own rubber on its great plantations in the Far East.

Q—Then, this cord from the Winnsboro Mills is uniform and of high quality?

A—Yes. These one-product mills use machinery especially adapted to making cord for United States Tires. The operators are specialists in their work and the entire energy of the mills is devoted to making the best tire cord that can be made.

Q—How is the quality of the cord assured?

A—Tests are made at each step in manufacture at the mills. Further tests are made of each carload received at the tire factories. A third series of control tests are made periodically at the Central Textile Development Department, the Company's technical organization specializing in the development of cotton goods for the United States Rubber Company.

Many Busy Women Owe Their Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

Here's my smoke-platform

A JIMMY-PIPE with an ample bowl. A tobacco that is mild and mellow, yet not "mollycoddle," if you get me—and you do. You know what I mean . . . mild, yet with plenty of body to let you know you are smoking. A tobacco that smokes cool.

A tobacco that is fragrant in the package, to whet the appetite, and equally fragrant as you smoke it. A tobacco that does not bite the tongue or parch the throat. A tobacco so wonderfully satisfying that you are kept busy smoking and reloading, all day long.

There's only one tobacco in the whole wide world that I know of which meets this platform. Its name is "Prince Albert" and I claim it really is the prince of smokes. More men smoke this tobacco than any other brand, which is important and likewise true.

If you are still outside the fold of contented jimmy-pipers, buy a tidy red tin of P. A. today. No matter how satisfied you appear to be with your present brand, try Prince Albert. I promise you a smoke-experience that will be new and delightfully different.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With the approach of cold weather there seems to be a rush to get a garage built in which to store the car for the winter and to bear out this there were five permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton for new garages, four being of the two-car type. All together there were eight permits granted during the past week the other three being for alterations and one for a new dwelling on Palmer street.

The month of October, if the applications come in as well during the next two weeks as they did during the first two, will exceed the monthly record for the year The large number of permits issued so far this month are mostly for garages although there have been several permits granted for new dwelling houses.

Work on local building projects is progressing rapidly and contractors report that they are working at top speed During the past week the contract for the new hydro-electric plant was awarded by the Gas and Electric commission to Peck, McWilliams Co., local contractors. This is one of the few large contracts granted this year in the city.

To William H. Gordon to erect a two-car garage at 496 Boswell avenue, The garage will be 20 x 20 feet and of frame construction with cement foundation.

To Henry G. Montle Jr., to erect a two-car garage on Summit street. The garage will be 18 x 20 feet with stone and cement foundation and shingled exterior.

To Gefaud and Loshin to extend and alter a barn at 10 Elizabeth street for Louis Rubin. The barn will be 14 x 18 feet and will be of frame construction.

To Gefaud and Loshin to erect a frame garage 19 x 19 feet at 72 Spring street for Jacob Cooper.

To Louis B. Weltin to erect a frame garage on Carter avenue for Herbert Hommel. The garage will be 10 x 20 feet with stone foundation.

To Homer Monty to erect a two-car garage on Grant Court for himself. The building will be 20 x 20 feet with cement foundation.

To Frank A. Skinner to add a dormer window to the house owned by Margaret and Mary Crohan at 66 North Cliff street.

To Annie M. Patrick to erect a frame house on Palmer street. The house will be 24 x 26 feet with cement foundation and frame superstructure. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and shingles.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 11 sales of real estate, half the number of sales made during the corresponding week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $44,250 and $205,998.

The number of real estate sales in New London during the past week was 18 an increase of three sales over the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $135,636 and $83,610.

Building Permits in State

In the leading cities and towns in the state during the past week 415 permits were issued for new construction work as against 312 in the corresponding week of last year and 301 in 1924. The cost of the proposed new work for the past week was $1,507,396, comparing with $1,571,835 in the like week of 1925 and $720,880 in 1924.

New London

An increase of more than $75,000 in the value, represented by the building permits for September for 1926 compared with September of 1925 is shown in a table tabulated by the Commercial Record for September of the two years. According to the table 35 permits were issued by the local council in September, 1925 as to 52 for the corresponding period in 1926. The building permits issued in September of 1925 represented an outlay of $87,825 while the outlay represented in the permits issued last month was $110,200. The increase is substantial and compares favorably with a general increase in the preceding month. From present indications New London will enjoy a record building year in 1926.

With 15 more building permits issued this week the total for the current month is now 36, an unusually high figure for two weeks. Four new dwellings are included in the permits this week besides six more garages. Alterations, repairs, etc., constitute the rest of the permits.

Mike Girl has submitted plans and specifications for a new bungalow at 314 Crystal avenue which he will build for himself. The new building will be 32 by 34 feet of frame construction and arranged for one family. Work has already started on the foundation.

Bids are being received for a residence in Fair Harbour place for E. Grann. Bids will be received by the architect separately and generally.

Work is progressing rapidly on a new frame garage 20 by 40 feet at 503 Ocean avenue for Marion J. Feldman. The garage is estimated to cost about $1,000.

Excavations have been completed for the location of a stone garage at 68 Hempstead street to be built for Stielo Kupidlowski. The new structure will be 24 by 40 feet. Due to the location considerable excavation was necessary to obtain a foundation floor level with the street entrance.

Fifteen building applications submitted for council approval by City Manager William A. Holt at Monday night's council session were granted. They were as follows:

Raymond J. and J. V. Cluett—Frame garage, 13 by 18; 55 Cole street.

The building will be 70x100 feet, with two wings, each 25x50 feet. It will be of frame construction. The first floor will be arranged for the main lobby, waiting rooms, billiard room, kitchen and ballrooms. The sleeping rooms will be on the second floor and in the wings. At the Nardone block, corner of Canal and High streets, the wooden first floor is in place and holes have been made in the south brick wall of the theater block to support the ends of the iron girders for the second floor.

My dear brother:

While the convention took formal action expressing its gratitude and appreciation for the splendid entertainment which your church provided, I am writing in behalf of the convention and the board of managers, to extend our deep gratitude to the church for the cordial welcome, the royal hospitality and the gracious ministry to all of our needs. We want to commend your good women for the fine meals they served and the abounding courtesy which they showed. Delegates not only felt a welcome in the meeting-house but also in the homes where they stayed.

We congratulate you on your beautiful building, on your splendid people, on your open hearts and open hands and trust that the meetings of the convention which the Mystic church proved to be a blessing commensurate with the sacrificial service which was rendered. Never has the hospitality of any church exceeded the hospitality of the Mystic church and we are profoundly grateful to you and to all your membership. On all sides I hear glowing words of commendation concerning the entertainment and the high spiritual tone of the meetings. Some have said it was the best convention they have attended. A woman always thinks that she is better than other women, and a man always thinks that he is no worse than other men.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR PUNY CHILD?

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists—but be sure and ask for McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

TALK OF HIGH-GRADE HEBREW HOTEL IN SCHALL MANSION, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—It is more than probable that before another summer New London will have a high-grade Hebrew hotel and if the present plans of the prospective proprietors of the place are realized, the hotel will be located in New London's most fashionable colony and until a year ago where only exclusive residents resided. The prospective proprietors of the hotel are David Soltz, State street merchant and Samuel Berman, Colchester merchant. They have secured an option on the Schall mansion at the Pequot and this option will expire the 15th inst. at which time, it is believed that the property will pass into possession of Messrs. Soltz and Berman. The residence is now occupied by the family of Fred Stone, actor. It comprises 35 rooms and there are several acres of land surrounding the mansion, which was for many years the home of the late Charles E. Schall and family. Messrs. Soltz and Berman are of the opinion that such a hotel is needed in New London especially through the fact that the summer population here, particularly so at Ocean Beach, is composed to a large extent of Hebrews and with a hotel of the size of the Schall mansion and located on its ideal surroundings, that a prosperous business will be realized. Mr. Berman formerly conducted a summer hotel at Fleischmann, N. Y. The Schall property is located close to the former Guthrie property, which was recently sold to a corporation and the property cut up into building lots and sold to individuals.

HARRY M. HANKINSON BROUGHT BACK FROM NEWARK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—Sergeant Twining returned to New London this afternoon with his prisoner, Harry M. Hankinson, inspector in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone company, who was arrested in Newark, N. J., Saturday afternoon by members of the New London police who had a warrant charging him with the theft of $50 from Julian V. Hunt, a guest at the home of Rev. Walter W. Howe, West street. Hankinson will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Hankinson came to the Howe residence Saturday morning to answer a telephone and in his performance that work he imitated the personal effects of Mr. Hunt and stealing $50, stole the money.

POLICE DEPT. CLEANS UP DISREPUTABLE PLACES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—The police department and the police court last night and today cleaned up a couple of vile places in the section formerly known as the red light district. Minnie Kerson, an old offender, was charged with keeping a house of ill fame at 14 Federal street, east of Main street, and the charge was proven against her. She is a little negress about the height of a couple of hydrants, but she persists in attracting the attention of the police. She was entertaining a colored girl, May Browne, and a white sailor, Elmer Cox. When the police raided the house and found Cox and his colored "peaches" there he admitted all that had transpired so the officers scooped up in the police net the occupants of the house. May said she had been in town some three months and represented that she came here on a visit. Cox was without any shame and acknowledged his association with the ladies as calmly as he would take his stations aboard ship. Minnie didn't know anything about the presence of the sailor at her place, but that ignorance did not avail her anything and she was sent to jail to stay three months. So the new year will have arrived before she comes to the attention of the police again. Miss Brown was fined $20 and it was intimated to her that New London could get along without her. A colored man, who was represented to be a runner for the house, was also fined.

Robert E. Lee, colored, was charged with maintaining a disorderly house at 25 Douglass street. The evidence was so strong against him as a man who maintained a place where persons of lascivious carriage were harbored that he was fined $25. John Joseph Jordan, a sailor, from a ship in Union Saint Jacques, met Florence Jones, arrayed in a white fur coat and casting the odor of perfume wherever she went. She looked good to Jordan, so he inquired of her: "What do you earn, cunning?" Flossie said she didn't say, but told John she was going to call on friends. John followed on and the pair were finally discovered in an attic room above the room occupied by Lee. They could not explain their presence there on grounds that any one would believe, so they were taken into custody. Jordan was free in his recital of their meeting, and it was couldn't convince the court what he said was not true. So he was fined $10 and had the money to pay. The sailor was alleged to go to his ship, because he had assisted the state in clearing up the situation. The places have been under suspicion for some time.

Jesse Maynard, a wood worker, was charged with non-support of his wife. He was very frank to admit his shortcomings and pleaded guilty. Then the prosecutor disclosed that Maynard had been detected in a crime that might have sent him to state prison, for his wife had found him an adulterer. The prosecutor called him a bad one. He had admitted his offense and then was taken back to his wife upon his promise, which proved to be valueless. He went from New London to Hartford and then was pursued by his wife and found to be an offender there. Judge Prince told Maynard that the place for such creatures as he is was in jail, but unfortunately to send him there would take his support from his wife. Judge Prince sentenced him to jail for a long term, but suspended execution of judgment on condition that Maynard pay his wife $10 a week and informed him that the first time he failed to pay he would be sent to jail.

A complaint against a Norwich girl, Josephine Stewart, who came here last week and who was surrounded by sailors before she got away from the railroad station, was nolled, as the girl had followed the advice of the court last week and had left town.

Edgar Aldrich, was charged with a breach of the peace because he went into a house without right where he supposed a sailor had gone after the sailor had made disparaging remarks to Mrs. Aldrich, while she was in an automobile. The case came up on adjournment and today was nolled.

Manuel Prockett was charged with non-support of his wife and two children. He appears to be a victim of the gambling habit and though he earns $32 a week he gives none of it to his family. He was ordered to give half his earnings to his wife each week if he does not want to spend six months in jail. This he agreed to do. Prockett said he only gambled for a 25 cent limit and thought he could do that. He was told that he was mistaken in that idea.

Vincent Porkenicki was charged with trespass upon railroad property. He said he was guilty. He would not have been arrested had he complied with instructions and left the property with good grace, but he set up a defiant attitude and to teach him his error he was taken into custody. The case was continued that he might during the next six months learn wisdom.

Armond Arbour drove his auto here from Stafford Springs and parked it on Main street for a few hours. There it was tagged as he was a violator of the traffic ordinances of the city. He said he did not see signs forbidding parking and being a stranger here he did not realize that he was offending. He drew a suspended judgment.

Adam Dombrowski was complained against by his wife for becoming intoxicated and creating a disturbance. He is the father of eight children so that to penalize was to take from his family. He was fined but the execution of the judgment was suspended that he might quit drinking and give attention to his family.

Mrs. Mary Riley today sold a house and lot on Clover court to Dennis and Catherine O'Neill. Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill also sold a house and lot on Chappell street to Mrs. Riley.

An automobile owned by Miss Gertrude D. Allen of Gales Ferry, which was stolen in this city two weeks ago, has been recovered at Brockton, Mass., where the car was abandoned. A New London garage man went to Brockton today and will return with the auto. The automobile was driven to New London the 9th inst., and was parked on Masonic street. Miss Allen absented herself from the auto about two hours and when she returned the car was missing. When the auto was stolen a man's overcoat and a lady's hat were in it.

George S. Hedden, former New London merchant, residing until a few months ago at 49 Garfield avenue, died Sunday at Norwich State hospital. He is survived by his wife and several children. Mr. Hedden was formerly proprietor of a picture framing store and latterly conducted an umbrella repair store.

The funeral of Captain William H. Burdick was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his residence, 771 Montauk avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Gardner cemetery, this city.

Dr. Edward Kirby, dentist with offices in the Thayer building, Norwich, and residing at 19 Broad street, that city, reported to the New London police this afternoon that his wife had lost a package of lady's small furs in this city earlier in the day. Dr. Kirby is of the opinion that the furs were dropped from his automobile in the vicinity of the Union station.

Mrs. Philip Trafaconda and infant daughter, 89 Hempstead street; Carmine Smith, 10 Crystal avenue; Mrs. Hadley Gray, North Stonington; Miss Lizzie Graves, State street and Fred Herschowitz, 81 Bliman street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

COUNCIL VOTES AGAINST USING VOTING MACHINES

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—New London is not to make use of the automatic voting machines at the election on the 2nd of November when state officers and members of congress are to be chosen. The city council voted some weeks ago to adopt the machines, but that was as far as the council went. Now the council does not want to take a chance of rendering the vote taken with the machines void, by enacting ordinances which there is no time to enact in the regular way, and to give opportunity for a referendum vote in case such is demanded. The matter was brought up at the meeting this evening when, after considerable discussion, the matter was tabled. Messrs. Streeter, Murray, and Whiton opposed the adoption of the recommendation of the city mansger that the machine be used. A vote of five seventhe of the council was necessary to get the recommendation adopted and that could not be obtained.

REQUEST HALF HOLIDAY FOR NAVY DAY, OCT 27TH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—The city council received a communication this evening from the commandant of the submarine base wherein the city was asked to cooperate with the navy in the recognition of Navy day on the 27th inst. The council received the communication for record and the mayor was requested to issue a proclamation to carry out the request of the base commandant and to suggest a half holiday in the business places of the city. The proclamation will be issued by Mayor Fox in a day or so.

The base will be open to citizens from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on the 27th when the people of all this section are invited to visit the base and the ships. Boats will be at the public landing at the service of the people.

The council authorized the purchase of 700 cubic yards of sand at a cost of $822.50. The purchase of a Ford ton truck was authorized.

The city manager recommended the installation of lights on Stanners St., and the council approved of the recommendation.

Property owners on Stoney hill asked for improvements on that street. The council referred the request to the city manager for investigation and report.

Ralph Williams through his attorney, gave notice of a suit for damages because of the death of his wife, Amelia, due to injuries she sustained by a fall on Hebron street because of a defective sidewalk. The claim is for $10,000. The matter was referred to the director of law.

Beckwith and Colman streets were accepted as highways of the city.

Bids were received for tires for the Thomas fire apparatus, but the recommendation of the city manager that solid tires should be purchased was not adopted. Instead the council directed the city manager to ascertain whether pneumatic tires were adoptable to the machine and as to the cost of them. It was stated that the pneumatic tires would cost two or three times what the solid tires would cost. The Thomas apparatus is the oldest and heaviest in the city and the city manager is quite positive that the solid tires will be the most economical and give the best service.

At a meeting of the advisory board of the New London branch of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service held recently, a report of the activities of the past four months was read by Miss Della Mooney, secretary. During this period 19 new children's cases were referred for investigation, making a total of 96 children's cases now under the supervision of the New London office. Free homes were found for five children; boarding homes for eight children; four children were placed in institutions, and four children returned to their parents, home conditions having improved sufficiently to warrant this action. Two good homes were referred to the State Bureau of Child Welfare and state wards placed in them. Free hospital care was provided for six children. Two hundred and eighty-two visits were made on or in behalf of these children; 112 office interviews were held; $1,832.35 was expended in board for children of which $1,140.17 was collected from relatives or others responsible for payments, the balance of $692.81 being supplied from the funds of the bureau. In the family welfare department, 56 families were given active supervision, of which number 15 were new cases. The personal service has involved the re-establishing of homes, securing of positions, nine permanent and three temporary, for members of the families; securing medical and legal aid. During the summer months beach parties were given the children and a vacation school was organized. Moving pictures are now being given Friday afternoons at the bureau for the children, particularly the children of the foreign-born. A course of lectures on the mass, with pictures, is to be given by the Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan Oct. 25, Nov 8 and Nov. 15. On Nov. 22, the Rev George J. Donahue of Pomfret will give an address on Poets. A committee visits the state farm for women every Sunday afternoon. A committee is also organizing study clubs on current legislation, rural social service work and general social service. Attorney Frank L. McGuire, chairman, presided. Other members present were the Rev. Matthew J. Judge, diocesan director; Miss Marguerite Boylan, Mrs. Thomas Durivan, chairman of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Mrs. Alice Savage, Mrs. Clarence A. Carr, Mrs. Benjamin N. Pennell and Mrs. Frank L. McGuire.

REACH CALIFORNIA ON CROSS CONTINENT AUTO TRIP

William C. Kendall of Norwich, Lee Heap of Taftville and party, who left here Saturday Sept. 25 on an automobile trip to the west coast, arrived Tuesday, Oct. 12 in Pasadena, according to word received by relatives. Mr. Heap and Mr Kendall are now stationed at Vallejo, Cal., with the former's daughter, Mrs. Theo Goodrum (Miss Jennie Kendall), who is a former Taftville resident, while the other members of the pary are at Los Angeles.

Good time was made the first week of the trip, although considerable rain fell, but when Kansas and Missouri were struck, these states were weathering the rainy season and progress was slow and disagreeable. Points of interest along the way were visited, including a trip to the Grand Canyon, and a stop was made at Bakersfield, where a former Taftville resident, Mrs. Dunse lives with her son, Robert Dunse and daughter, Mae Dunse.

Mr. Kendall, who was photographer for Cranston Co., this city, expects to spend the winter with his daughter at Vallejo, and possibly make it his permanent residence. Following sightseeing in California Mr. Heap will return to Taftville by train or by boat through the Isthmus of Panama.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Russian Symphonic Choir

Tuesday will be the last day but one during which to select seats at Cranston's store for the concert to be given in Slater hall on Wednesday evening, October 20th, by the Russian Symphonic choir with Basile Kibalchich as conductor.

There are still good seats to be had but there is no assurance that desirable seats will remain plentiful as the hour for the concert approaches. At the door of the hall, seats will have to be accepted as they then exist with full knowledge that the more desirable ones have already been selected by earlier buyers.

This concert is really a musical event of note. The choir is well balanced and the individual members are gifted and trained singers far above the ordinary in their ability to reveal the composers' ideas and conductors intention. The chorus not only sings but hums and by means of fine gradations of tone and accent often suggests a string orchestra.

Palace Theater

Tonight for one night only the Palace will present another of its semi-professional vaudeville nights that have become so immensely popular with the public. The acts are given by future stars of the stage and New York booking agents are always present on the look out for new talent and the fact that from the shows presented in the past three weeks six of the acts appearing have received contracts for the big vaudeville circuits speaks highly of the quality of the performers. Tonights bill it is promised will excel any one of those previously given and a capacity house will no doubt be on hand to give the young folks a hearty welcome. The screen program is also one of exceptional merit with Betty Bronson the beautiful and talented little lady who has won the hearts of the nation in her latest brilliant comedy success, The Cats Pajamas in which she is supported by Ricardo Cortez and Theodore Roberts beloved old man of the screen who returns to us in this picture, his first since his long illness, with all his old time delightful characterization. The Cats Pajamas is a riot of fun and a splendid story besides acted by a cast that leaves nothing to be desired. Then we have Wanda Hawley in The Midnight Limited a great melodrama of railroad life filled with suspense and dramatic action with a charming love story and thrills aplenty. A new comedy of the newlyweds and their baby entitled Snookums Tooth will afford much merriment and Walter Long and his concert orchestra will provide tuneful musical settings. The Palace has a truly great program of entertainment tonight, good all the way through and well worth a visit.

Seen by President and War Heads

The Big Parade coming to the Palace theater October 25th, is said to be the only picture seen in private views by President Coolidge and his cabinet and all the commanding military officers and officials of the war department. These showings were given since Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer owned the making of the military scenes to the cooperation of the department and of the Second Division, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and for the further reason that the United States government allowed the inspection of all the old signal corps films for the picture and lent a quality of film as a guide in the work. Complete orchestras and equipment were taken to Washington, and in particular the showing in the white house was a memorable one.

Special Lectures

The course of special lectures to be given under the auspices of the United Workers on the next four Tuesday evenings at Slater hall promises to be very valuable to all those who have questions or doubts about unexpected behavior of children in whom they are interested.

Dr. Lloyd J. Thmopson is well qualified for this work. After taking his M. D. he had an interneship of one year at the Boston Psychopathic hospital, Boston, following which for two years he held the position of resident medical officer at this same institution. During this time Dr. Thompson was consulting neuro-psychiatrist at the U. S. veterans' bureau of Boston.

For three years Dr. Thompson was an assistant in psychiatry in the Harvard Medical school and held a similar position in Tufts Medical school, Boston, for one year.

For the past three years Dr. Thompson has been the medical director of the Thompson sanitarium, St. Joseph, Missouri and the psychiatrist in charge of the child guidance clinics in St. Joseph.

In January 1926, Dr. Thompson took charge of the New Haven neuropsychiatric clinic, conducted by the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene and is also holding a similar clinic for the society in Waterbury.

Dr. Thompson devotes half of his time to the work of the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene. Hence he is available for educational work along mental hygiene lines as well as the actual clinic work. He also gives half time work as one of the resident psychiatrists in the Yale School of Medicine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

For the special autumn offering this week the management of the Broadway theater has chosen a dignified and exceptional program of Keith-Albee vaudeville which is the talk of the town.

There are five acts on the bill each and everyone of which scored a decided hit with yesterdays crowds.

Redolent with romance and adrip with adventure, Flaming Waters, hailed as the most sensational oil field story ever filmed, reached the screen of the Broadway theater yesterday for its first local showing. It is all that its loudest boosters claimed for it.

Smashing drama and touching sentiment are nicely mingled in a melange of thrills. The high point in "kicks" comes when Danny O'Neil saves his mother and dances as they are isolated on the roof of their dwelling, which has fallen into the river of blazing oil surrounding the house.

The program changes Thursday with new vaudeville and the special feature The Last Edition.

Breed Theater

Up in Mabel's Room, starring Marie Prevost will end a successful three day engagement at the Breed theater tonight. This is an Al Christie laugh special of the highest grade and Harrison Ford and Phyllis Haver who are featured in the supporting cast, are delightful in their respective roles.

The plot revolves around a flimsy black chemise. Upon its appearance and disappearance reputations are made and lost, and romances are fostered or wrecked. It all arose over the fact that Mabel divorced Garry, her husband, then wanted him back. So she takes the chemise which Garry had given her, on which is embroidered Mabel from Garry and threatens to expose Garry at any minute—after Garry has kept his marriage and divorce secret, and later became engaged to another girl out of spite! When Mabel, Garry, the chemise and the remainder of the characters all are invited to the same house party, a screamingly funny mix-up results. The comedy is excellent and there is a laugh in every scene.

RECOVERY IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—The stock market, which has been moving steadily downward since the first of the month, turned suddenly upward today, coincident with a lowering of call money rates. Buying orders were spread over a broad list of rails and industrials, with short covering playing an important part in the day's operations. The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve bank showed a reduction of nearly $52,000,000 in brokers' loans for the week ended last Wednesday, testifying to the sharp liquidation of marginal accounts in that period.

With few exceptions, the recovery was a slow and orderly one. The day's total transactions falling well below 2,000,000 shares. Bear traders continued to ferret out weak spots, despite the improvement in the general list. Closing quotations, as a rule, were around the highest of the day.

A brisk demand developed for the local public utilities on the announcement that arguments had started before the United States Supreme court on the so-called "Dollar Gas Law," the constitutionality of which has been attacked by the gas companies. Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas and Consolidated Gas closed at net gains of 3 1-2 to 5 points.

General Motors, after selling as low as 145 on the morning, rallied close to 150 and then eased to 148 5-8 where it was up 2 3-4 points on the day. U. S. Steel common closed 1 5-8 points net higher at 131 1-4, but the independent steels failed to participate in the rally. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe closed nearly 8 points higher at 201 7-8 after having opened at 190. Sharp recoveries also took place in such issues as Allied Chemical, Burroughs Adding Machine, Case Threshing, Commercial Solvents B, Dupont, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Woolworth, Pullman and Timken Roller Bearing, the last-named jumping over 5 points to within a small fraction of the year's top.

Consolidated Textile was bid up to a new high price for the year on buying influenced by reports that the company would show a profit in the last quarter for the first time in about two years, and that 1927 prospects had materially improved as a result of the recent decline in raw cotton. Conspicuous heaviness was shown, however, by American Locomotive, American Hide & Leather preferred, Gabriel Snubbers, Pierce Arrow preferred and Studebaker.

Rails moved upward under the leadership of the Van Sweringen issues which were bought in expectation of an early announcement of the revised "Nickel Plate" merger plan.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices advanced slightly with buying influenced by reports of frost in the Argentine wheat belt. Cotton futures closed 10 to 15 points lower on reports of favorable weather. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices reacted 11 to 20 points.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent and the ndcropped to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Establishment of new high records for the year by the Italian, Norwegian and Japanese currencies, and a further decline in Chinese currencies to new low levels, coincident with another break in silver prices, featured the foreign exchange markets. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84 3-4 and French francs ruled around 3.90 cents.

GREENEVILLE

The Community Workers of Greeneville met recently with their [illegible] Mrs. Chas. F. Sears of Prospect street to tie a quilt. A number of articles were also made which had been ordered and it was suggested that they make some dolls at their next meeting as Christmas gifts for some of the needy children. The report of the secretary and treasurer was read which showed the society in a flourishing condition so they decided to help some needy family who deserves help. Much regret was expressed by the members at the loss of one of their beloved members, Mrs. Harry Boyden who has been cheerful as well as helpful at the sewing meetings. However the members expect to carry on and do some good for their community, even though this makes the third loss of members by death—namely, Mrs. Wm. [illegible], Mrs. John Scott and Mrs. Boyden. The next meeting will be held the second Thursday in November.

NORWICH TAXPAYERS ARE SLOW ABOUT HANDING IN LISTS TO ASSESSORS

Norwich taxpayers who have lists to be put in before the assessors this month are unusually slow about it this year, according to the board of assessors, Arad R. Manning, John B. Oat and Fred G. Prothero. Half the month has gone by but scarcely 50 per cent of the lists have come in yet, which leaves a very large proportion to be rushed in during the fifteen days that remain during which lists can be handed in, if tax payers are not to be delinquent and incur the penalty of having ten per cent added to their lists.

Last year there were approximately 7,600 lists and this year there will probably be 8,000, the assessors believe, so that there promises to be much work ahead in the time that is left in this month during which lists must be handed in to avoid additions.

JOHN IRISH

remembrances to Mr. and Mrs. John Irish, of 146 Laurel Hill avenue. These included friendly greetings from members of the Woman's Relief corps and others.

For over two months, Mr. Irish had been too ill to attend any of the gatherings of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., of which he is adjutant. But Saturday he was able to come over to the Buckingham Memorial accompanied by Mrs. Irish and was warmly welcomed by the post comrades, remaining through the meeting.

MRS. JOHN IRISH

It will interest their friends to get a glimpse of Mr. and Mrs. Irish, as they were photographed by Webster of Norwich, at the time just after their marriage, when the former Emily Nash wore as ornaments the jewelry which was her husband's gift.

FINED IN CITY COURT IN AUTOMOBILE CASE

In the city court Monday morning, Giuseppe Berghinzo of 80 Thames St. who was presented on the charge of reckless driving and operating without registration, had the reckless driving charge changed to speeding and was fined $10 and costs, which he paid. The other charge was nolled on payment of $3. Berghinzo was in court following a collision Sunday afternoon on West Main street near the corner of Falls avenue with the automobile driven by Daniel C. O'Connell of 4 Spring street.

The case against Stanley Chmielewski who was arrested Saturday afternoon on charges of violation of the lid law was continued to next Monday. He is proprietor of a store at 495 Main street where the police secured a quantity of what is alleged to be liquor. The man's wife gave bonds for his appearance in court.

John Borowski of this city, who had been arrested on an intoxication charge, was not able to be in court as he is suffering from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile operated by William Bedard on North Main street Saturday night. His case was continued to next Monday.

A Stafford Springs man and one from Mechanicsville were each fined $5 and costs for intoxication which they paid.

SAYS HE WAS SLANDERED AT HOLY GHOST MEETING

Suit for $5,000 damages for slander has been brought in the superior court by Manuel Starr of Stonington against Manuel Roderick of the same place. The allegation made in the complaint is that on Aug. 29, 1926 at a meeting of the Portuguese society known as the Holy Ghost the defendant, Roderick, spoke certain words in Portuguese which when translated into English meant that Starr had installed electricity in his home with funds misappropriated as chairman of the arrangements committee of the Holy Ghost celebration. These words were malicious and false, it is claimed, and were spoken in the presence of Joseph August, Tony Figara, Joseph Perry and some two or three hundred other persons.

The defendant's attorney has entered a demurrer to the plaintiffs complaint because it appears by the complaint that the plaintiff's cause of action is an action for slander and that the spoken words were uttered in the Portuguese language, but it does not appear and is not alleged what words were uttered in the Portuguese language, nor is there set forth an accurate translation of the alleged foreign (Portuguese) words into English, as is required by law.

Ten thousand Harvard Law school alumni in all parts of the world have been mailed during the past week a beautifully printed pamphlet on the school's history, development and future, written by Dean Roscoe Pound.

The pamphlet sets forth the reasons why Harvard Law school men have organized a campaign to raise $5,000,000 for endowment. The endowment is needed for two major purposes: To maintain the traditional high standards of legal education at the Harvard Law school, and to provide means for practical legal research designed to adapt our laws and their administration to the ever increasing complexities of modern life. More than a fifth of the entire amount has been pledged in advance of the formal opening of the campaign on October 25. Of this, $750,000 is a conditional gift from the general education board, its first contribution to legal research, and over $400,000 is from private donors.

STARTS CAMPAIGN AGAINST WAGONS WITHOUT LIGHTS

Farmers found traveling Connecticut highways after dark with unlighted vehicles will be arrested, according to the latest edict of the state police department.

This warning, which is termed "friendly," the department has announced, has been issued because of complaints received from automobilists, who have informed the department of a number of narrowly averted accidents due to the presence of unlighted, horse-drawn vehicles on the roadways after sundown.

"Those farmers not only jeopardize their own lives," it was pointed out by the state police, "but they also endanger the lives and property of others. At first, this fall, we were inclined to be lenient."

"With the return to standard time and the gradual shortening of daylight, we felt that the farmer should have time to adjust himself before we determined any drastic action. We feel now though, that he has had ample time to arrange his days so that he will not have to be up after dark. If he must travel by night, then we likewise feel that he has had sufficient time to buy a taillight."

Peter Lukoff of Boswell avenue was a visitor in Hartford, Sunday.

Within the past week, while the occupants were at work, a house on Providence street has been entered and money taken each time. The thief has shown that he has some knowledge of the premises, as the first time entrance was made, money which was kept in an insurance envelope hanging on the wall was taken. The money was taken from a pocket book the second time. It is believed that whoever took the money entered the house through the cellar window, unless a key that would fit the lock was used. Nothing else was disturbed. The residents of the house are taking steps to apprehend the thief, and the house is now being watched while they are at work.

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Only four jurymen were selected from the 63 examined before Judge Newell Jennings of the criminal superior court today, to try the nine so-called gangsters from New York on the charge of beating up Carlo and Ettarco Puzzuolo at Stamford on the 24th of last September. The victims were on their way to work in a shop where a strike had been declared by the National Garment Workers' union. The nine men are alleged to have beaten them with sawed-off pool cues. The alleged assailants were rounded up by the police of Stamford and brought to the present term of the court on bench warrants charged with assault with intent to murder, and with aggravated assault.

The accused are Jack Litman, Harry Teitelbaum, Charles Kaylan, James Calvo, Louis Harris, Harry Boom, Simon Rosenberg, Max Baer and James Corti. Several days after the arrest they were bailed out of jail in bonds of $15,000 each, or a total of $90,000. BOOTLEGGING CASES COME BEFORE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON Oct. 19.—(AP)—Directing attention of the supreme ... today, the government ... upon its right to confiscate, under old civil war laws, automobiles seized while being used in the illegal transportation of liquor, by the recent prohibition amendment. So perplexed was the court after an question had been argued at the last term that it ordered reargument of the cases which came up on writs of ... cases, one from Alabama ... the government lost, and the other from the state of Washington, where the supreme court of appeals ... for instructions. The question among other things involves automobiles being sold on the installment ...

The government contended the tax upon manufacture of liquor by the revised statutes, in effect long before national prohibition, applied to moonshine whiskey and that automobiles used in its transportation were automatically forfeited.

It was argued on the other side that a tax could not be imposed upon something that was prohibited, being intended exclusively for the raising of revenue, and further that automobiles seized in violation of the prohibition law must be disposed of under the terms of that law.

REBEL FORCES WITHIN 20 MILES OF SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI Oct. 19.—(AP)—Revolutionary forces from Chekiang province, penetrated to within twenty miles of this city today. The foreign concessions, with their 8,000 white residents are being policed for eventualities. The defending troops of Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang are weak in numbers, reinforcements having failed to arrive from Nanking and Soochow in response to urgent appeals.

The position of the defenders is unfavorable with a possibility of their being outflanked. Gliding down the Whangpoo river in boats, the Chekiang revolutionists slipped past Sun's troops guarding the railroad to Hangchow whence they came and almost succeeded in capturing Minghong before they were detected. Halted within three miles of that city, they menaced Shanghai's environs.

Would Curb [illegible] Upon European Trade

Bankers Would Remove Restrictions Contained in Post-War Trade Agreements.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Removal of tariff barriers and other restrictions upon European trade, recommended by a group of leading international bankers in a signed statement made public simultaneously in New York and European capitals today, involves only post-war European trade agreements and does not contemplate any change in American tariff laws, in the opinion of American bankers familiar with the document.

No special importance is attached by international bankers here to the statement, which was described by one leading banker as "an innocuous and pious plea." It was pointed out that the idea originated last spring with British bankers, who solicited the American signatories in an endeavor to lend moral force to the plea rather than to commit them to any definite program.

Of the three New York bankers whose names were signed to the statement, only one, Albert H. Wiggin, the chairman of the board of directors of the Chase National bank, is in the city. Mr. Wiggin said that he signed the statement while he was in Europe last April but declined to make any official comment on its contents, stating it explained itself. J. P. Morgan, another signatory, is in Great Britain on his annual holiday and is not expected home for several weeks. In his absence his partners decined to make any statement. Gates W. McGarrah, the other signatory, is in Switzerland. Saturday for Europe where he will participate in conferences of international committees under the Dawes plan.

BANDITS CONTINUE THEIR ACTIVITIES IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 19—(AP)—Bandits today renewed their activities in New Jersey choosing as a point of attack a jeweler's shop within a block and a half of Broad and Market streets, one of the busiest intersections in the world.

The holdup was perpetrated by four men, who beat with revolver butts Samuel Hyman, proprietor of a repair shop on the third floor of a building at 831 Broad street. The robbers scooped up $2,500 worth of jewelry and escaped before the alarm could be spread.

Four youths were picked up in Elizabeth a few hours later and brought here for questioning.

The finding of a third money bag marked the search today for the bandits who killed a man and wounded three others while robbing a mail truck of $161,700 in Elizabeth Thursday.

Imperial Conference in Session in London

To Consider Problems Important to the British Empire—May Last Five Weeks.

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Political leaders from all parts of the British empire met today at the ninth imperial conference for deliberations which may prove all-important in the history of the empire and which are expected to last for a month or five weeks.

The premiers present were Stanley Baldwin, Great Britain; W. L. Mackenzie King, Canada; S. M. Bruce, Australia; J. G. Coates, New Zealand; General J. B. M. Hertzog, Union of South Africa, and W. S. Monroe, Newfoundland. The president of the Irish Free State executive council, William Cosgrave, and the Maharajah of Burdwan, India, were also there.

Today's business was merely formal; it consisted of sending a message of loyalty and fidelity to the king and queen and the delivery of complimentary speeches. A brilliant banquet was tendered tonight by the government to the overseas delegates.

What made this family gathering from the overseas dominions doubly significant was a tentative little ceremony performed by England's ambassador of the empire, the Prince of Wales, in Westminster Abbey. Here in the edifice where centers all that is most moving in the story of Britain and her extended dominions, and in the presence of representatives of the whole empire, the prince unveiled a memorial tablet to the unknown soldier dead who fell in the great war.

As he removed the Union Jack which veiled the marble, the prince said: "The names of dan our remembrance of those who have given the ultimate sacrifice of their lives in the cause of freedom. We can care for their graves forever."

DR. MILTON S. REES SPOKE BEFORE ROTARIANS

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 19.—Dr. Milton S. Hydnek Jones and with John T. Quinlan at the piano. The first number was Mandy Lee by John C. Frazer and a double quartet. A competition song was fought to the last chord by the "Johns" comprising John F. Ahern, John Reilly, John C. Tracy, John C. Frazier and John R. Pickett, against the "Harrys", composed of Harry W. Standish, Harry S. Gaucher, Harry A. Blanchette and C. Harry Branch. Professor Charles Wheeler of C. A. C. Stears was a guest of John R. Pickett and he led in the group singing of Just a Song at Twilight. Secretary Grant E. Loisel read an announcement of the Danbury Rotary club charter night which is scheduled for Wednesday evening, November 3rd in the Hotel Green. On his motion the chair appointed Roland B. Jordan, James P. Mustard and Albert F. O'Neil as an Go to Danbury committee. John F. Ahern called attention to the Windham-Hartford high school football game in Hartford next Saturday afternoon. G. Everett Harrington who had charge of the program for the day gave a report of the Rotary Fall conference held at Lenox, Mass., the last three days of September. He then called on Roy Arthur S. Wheelock who introduced Dr. Rees as the speaker of the day. With a vote of thanks to the speaker the meeting adjourned at 1:30 o'clock.

Using for his theme, 'the four sweetest words in the English language, Mother, Home, Heaven and Jesus, Dr. Milton S. Rees addressed a large gathering at the First Congregational church Monday evening. "Death is not as serious as we had assumed. It is perfectly natural. God's method of opening the gates of glory to the soul," said the evangelist. We do know that Heaven is instantaneous and that it is a place," continued Dr. Rees. "It is a home, and there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh an abomination or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

Alfred F. Lewis of this city, mechanic for the New England Transportation company, and driver of a bus which figured in a collision with a Ford sedan owned and driven by George F Peloquin of 48 Cedar street, Hartford, on Main street here, Sunday afternoon, October 10, was fined $5 and costs in police court Tuesday morning when convicted of a charge of failure to give the right of way.

The original charge had been of reckless driving but after hearing lengthy evidence the court decided that this charge could not be sustained. Lewis was driving a bus westerly on Main street. He started to swing over to the left of the street to enter the driveway of the Gulf Refining gasoline station and the front end of the bus was a few feet past the center of the road when the crash came Lewis and witnesses for the defense stated that the bus was stopped and run into by Peloquin. Peloquin was traveling easterly and he testified that the bus driver drove over to the left of the road and was responsible for the collision. The Ford suffered a broken left front spring, bent fender, and other damage to the left front side. The bumper on the bus was damaged. State witnesses were Traffic Officer Grant Bombra, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barsky of Card street and Peloquin who was represented by Attorney Arthur T. Kelly. Witnesses for the defense were Charles Gifford and Manager John Moriarty of the gasoline station, and the defendant. He was represented by a member of the transportation company's legal staff in substituting the charge of failure to give the right of way for reckless driving, it became conclusive for the first time that it is unlawful for traffic to cross to the left of the road. The law that specifies that vehicles shall turn only to the direction in which they are traveling has been known to exist for years is believed to be the first time that it has come up for legal test here. Lewis paid a total of $16.25.

FINDS OLD COPY OF THE NORWICH COURIER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19—A crumpled and yellowed copy of the Norwich Courier, dated June 3, 1814 (this paper now incorporated in The Bulletin company) was submitted to the inspection of The Bulletin's representative here on Tuesday. The copy is an abbreviated affair of four pages, four columns each. Yet it tells a tale of stirring times and pictures the early struggles of a great nation in the making.

One reads that Napoleon had just abdicated "in favor of the Bourbons and peace, and what may be the effect of this sudden and wonderful change, as it regards this country, only time can tell." There was history in the making. Incidentally the Courier's information came from Europe "in Monday's mail." There were no cables, radio or telegraph lines in those days.

At the time this particular edition of The Courier went to press United States troops were operating in the vicinity of Lake Champlain and Lake Erie in the fag end of the war of 1812, and one reads a communication dated at "Chilicothe", O., relating that British prisoners of war held there had been placed in close confinement by order of the president of the United States, and that there were many stories as to the reasons for this stringent order, but the correspondent did not regard it as incumbent upon [illegible] to detail what they were. Probably less gossip then was as virulent and untrustworthy as it is today.

The paper carries an advertisement for robust men between the ages of [illegible] and 40 years to enroll in the 37st regiment of United States infantry, being recruited at New London. These prospective recruits are offered $124 [illegible] acres of land as bounty and $8 a year as pay, with sufficient [illegible] and good rations for coming in[illegible] the service of the government.

Benjamin Colt has a farm of 110 [illegible], a mile of the "court house" advertised for sale in the editorial. Fred Hyde, Jr. collector of taxes, is [illegible] the world through The Courier that a levy of five cents on the [illegible] was being collected on all property taxed on the list of 1813. Think of it, taxpayers, about modern day rates of 50 mills on the dollar [illegible]. Nothing like that ever happens in these latter days.

An item told of the annual meeting of Franklin Lodge, No. 4, R. A. M., and was to be held within a few days for the election of officers. Here one recalls that Danielson may pause to remember that Warren chapter, R. A. M., has a history that goes back beyond that of this chapter with headquarters here.

It may interest residents of Jewett City to know that when the particular copy of The Courier herein quoted was published Jewett City was used to spell "Jewett City" explaining why. Possibly it was a very good reason.

One item is on record that the residents of Eastern Connecticut were [illegible] years ago, but the [illegible] grounds of The Courier do not appear referred to could be [illegible] the imagination be regarded [illegible] appearing to [illegible] with prohibition [illegible].

There was Augustus Perkins advertising on the front page—"Norwich Superior Cheese. In Pieces [illegible] Samuel Tyler also with [illegible] space was boasting "Montpelier of Excellent Quality" and [illegible] customers therefor.

[illegible] Brandie, Hennessy and Rye [illegible] West India Rum, New England Rum, were advertised by Lyman [illegible] N. [illegible] to be left out of possible [illegible] from the liquor trade William [illegible] was broadcasting on the first page that he had French Brandy and [illegible] for sale.

Perusing the liquor advertisements of the issue one would be tempted to give credence to the age-old tale that one of the first journeys from Norwich [illegible] subject was the wilderness of Canada [illegible] in those days was by men who [illegible] a barrel of rum slung on poles [illegible] they laboriously lifted over the [illegible] trail in the northwest.

Verily, the times do change. Where these pioneers labored through a wilderness there now work hard with [illegible] to supply a latter day marketing [illegible] pays more and gets less—and delivers their products in a luxurious motor car.

The correspondent was quite astonished Tuesday morning to be besieged with the question "Don't the busses run every hour to Norwich and Putnam any more?" Of course the reply was "Yes, why?" "Well, the paper doesn't say so this morning." Whereupon, it was discovered that a lot of people thought the New England busses were the yellow busses, and didn't know that the New England bus is the Providence bus. Then two bright men spent the morning comparing the latest New England bus schedule with the one published Tuesday, and they couldn't find any difference, and seemed to think that the item stated that another change had been made, and they were not able to figure out how that was. Standard time and daylight time had nothing on the version of the well meaning reporters effort to let people know of the changes in the New England (Providence) bus line.

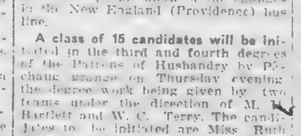
The greatest virtue any car can offer

"Its engine improves with use"



ELIMINATE engine-vibration—minimize friction—do away with carbon troubles and valve grinding—and you accomplish these two important things . . .

Your up-keep cost is cut in half—and you add scores of thousands of perfectly good miles to the usefulness of your car.

In the poppet-valve-engined car, it is the pounding of cams against push-rods, the contact of push-rods on rocker-arms, the recoil of valves under coiled springs that cause vibration. And, in time, vibration will wreck the finest engine ever built into a poppet-valve car.

In the sleeve-valve-engined Willys-Knight there is no pounding of metal upon metal. No elaborate mechanism of rocker-arms and springs . . . You never have carbon troubles. There are no valves to grind . . .

The Knight engine is simplicity itself. It consists of but two metal sleeves operating with a gliding motion. No vibration. No friction. Simply two single sleeves working smoothly, silently, up and down, one within the other, in a constant film of oil—and that is all!

Stop That Old Cough Quick

Mixtures containing chloroform or other drugs give only temporary relief by deadening the nerves. They often upset the stomach and do more harm than the cough itself.

Modern science has created Bronchuline, a cough medicine which contains an ingredient pronounced by specialists to be of outstanding value in relieving coughs and respiratory irritations.

Bronchuline is a high quality medical preparation for chronic coughs, asthmatic and catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, croup and hoarseness. Guaranteed free from drugs, opiates and sugar. Sold by all good druggists.

GAS in Stomach Hurts the Heart

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour, acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fullness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly banish gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia—recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 13 years.

OPTIMISTIC SPIRIT PREVAILS AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANNUAL

A new high water mark in optimistic community spirit, high civic endeavor and ideals was set by the eleventh annual meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce which was held with an attendance of nearly 200 at a dinner at 6.15 Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel, and the climax of the evening came with an inspiring address by Champe S. Andrews of New Haven, born and raised a southerner, who spoke upon "Why I Turned Yankee."

Suspended back of the head table in the banquet hall was a fine 12-foot photograph of the city, the work of Don Houghton, and the room had been beautifully decorated with autumn leaves by Otto F. Ernst, with baskets of red roses on the tables. Swahn's orchestra furnished the music for the evening very acceptably.

President James L. Case called for the singing of America as the meeting opened and the invocation was given by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott before the diners were seated.

After the dinner had been served, President Case opened the business meeting, referring to the secretary's annual report which had been distributed in printed form to the membership. He also stated that the financial experience of the chamber had been quite satisfactory this year and he went on to say that the value of such an organization could not be expressed merely in words. Destructive criticism had been reduced to a minimum in the past year. Mr. Case said. Whatever had been done had back of it the foundation laid by previous officers and committees in the past ten years, during which the presidents had been Charles A. James, Charles F. Wells, Herbert M. Lerou and Arthur E. Story.

A city such as is Norwich, said Mr. Case, may not offer as many and as varied opportunities for business and commercial development as cities of larger means, yet I am confident as a community, we still have many undveloped fields.

"Acres of diamonds" are to be found if we will but seek to discover them. Norwich will grow and prosper only in proportion to the effort, sacrifice, and loyalty our citizens preach and practice in their daily lives. We have a wonderful history, but the future will be largely what you and I help to make it. The call of the times is for men and women of character and ability who are willing and desirous of doing their best, of being their best, and of giving their best, in season and out of season. The World Uses What Norwich Produces" is a commendable slogan, but that it may be as truly applied to you and to me, and to every other citizen, within our borders, as it is to things temporal and material, is a cherished desire and dream of mine. Such is a worthy ideal and well worth striving for.

Following a finely rendered baritone solo, Mother O' Mine by Frank R. Murdy, the president bestowed the highest praise upon Secretary John J. O'Rourke for his efficiency and faithfulness in the office and called upon Mr. O'Rourke who was given a thunderous greeting of applause as he responded briefly in acknowledgement, saying that the reports indicated that Norwich has the strongest chamber of commerce in the state.

Greetings from Mayor Waters

The gathering rose and applauded as Mayor Milo R. Waters was introduced by President Case, who referred in a pleasant way to the mayor's nomination for lieutenant-governor on the democratic ticket.

His Honor brought the greetings of the city bestowing many compliments upon "Jim" Case, who, he said, was picked out whenever there was a hard job to be done in Norwich, and he also complimented Secretary John O'Rourke as an able political manager for Mr. Case. Nothing has done so much for Norwich, the mayor declared, as the chamber of commerce and it is worth every cent of money and every ounce of energy we put into it.

For Thames Valley Committee

James N. Hammond of New London responded for the Thames Valley Citizens committee and the New London chamber of commerce, referring gracefully to the cooperation for the common good by the two cities on the Thames river and declaring that nothing will be impossible for Eastern Connecticut through such splendid team work.

Greetings from the meeting were sent through Rev. A. H. Abbott to Rev. J. Eldred Brown whose thirtieth anniversary as rector of Trinity Episcopal church was being observed Tuesday evening by a reception.

From State Commerce Chamber.

Fred W. Orr, field secretary, brought the greetings from the Connecticut chamber of commerce, declaring that the Norwich chamber has just reason to be proud of its officials, especially President Case and Secretary O'Rourke, and he asserted that there was no place in the state where more had been accomplished by a chamber of commerce than in Norwich. He quoted a Norwich man who said he considered the Norwich chamber had a president and a secretary who were second to none holding similar positions in any state in the Union. The speaker offered the help of the state chamber of commerce to any effort in which the local chamber might be engaged and spoke with emphasis of the value of the chamber of commerce as the watchdog for a community against the aggressive spirit of the west in trying to induce New England industries to move to western states.

President Case called upon Mr. Murdy again, saying that it was a request that he sing On the Road to Mandalay, to which Mr. Murdy responded and was loudly applauded, giving an encore number in return.

Why I Turned Yankee.

President Case introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Andrews, with an amusing reference to his own attendance at a convention in the south, and the eloquent address of the New Haven man upon the subject, Why I Turned Yankee, was listened to with the closest attention. At its close Mr. Orr led the assemblage in three rousing cheers for the speaker and his splendid address.

In part Mr. Andrews spoke as follows.

Connecticut Salesmanship

I first heard of Connecticut from my grandfather who ordered a closed carriage from a firm in Connecticut in order that he might ride in comfort from one county to another to preside over the sessions of the superior court of Georgia. The carriage arrived with the varnished surface cracked with innumerable lines crossing and re-crossing each other. He complained to the manufacturer, who sent a representative to see him. That gentleman upheld the banner of Connecticut salesmanship by explaining that the varnish had not cracked. It was intentionally made with that effect for the high class southern trade so it would have a finish like the alligators and mark the owner as a true Georgian. And grandfather believed him and thanked him for the brilliant idea, like a true southern gentleman who knew not of high pressure salesmanship as brought to perfection in the state of Connecticut.

Reprisals by the South

At a later date we evened all scores. In many a Connecticut home I find treasured as priceless relics of the Civil war, "minnie-bullets," embedded in wood cut from the battlefield of Chickamauga. I have not dared to reveal the fact that one of our leading industries is the shooting of fine saplings full of minnie-bullets in the spring only to be sold a few months later in their wooden casements as genuine relics of the bloodiest battle of the Civil war.

New England, to be true to its traditions, ought to encourage and invite the pioneer. Yet let it be said at the outset that you do not such thing.

New England Pessimistic

Pioneers do not understand pessimists. From all over New England goes up the voice of the pessimist. You are frightened by the bogey of southern competition, of the melting pot that has not melted as you thought it would. You are bitter at the labor unions that are the product of your own making and bewail what all along you must have known, that you and your materials of manufacture are far removed. This sort of publicity work from the lips of New England manufacturers queer in the ears of men from other sections who agree with Burke that "To love the little platoon we belong to in society is the germ of all public affection."

Whether you like it or not, your success is bound up with the success of Bridgeport, and the success of Bridgeport is indissolubly linked with the fate of New England. If you do not hang together you may hang separately.

New England Assets

And what a wonderful list of assets you have to the credit of New England, assets that speak for themselves if only you will give them the air. Not the air of discouragement and pessimism, but the free fresh air of a fair field and no favor, where the best man wins.

Let's start with the two things which California and Florida, for instance, always sing to the stranger within their gates—scenery and climate.

Scenery

Well, I have seen all California has to offer, from her sequoias in the hair to her crimson fish at Catalina. Beautiful, I admit. And yet to live with and die with I would not trade all of them for the green carpet that grows beneath the green elms of Connecticut in summer, or for the snow clad hills and icy crags along the coast in winter.

It is not more or better scenery you need in Connecticut. It is more poets and better ones to proclaim the glory of the scenery you already have.

Climate

As for climate, I—a newcomer in your midst—alternately laugh and rage to hear the climate broker from California and the sunshine salesman from Florida pity the poor devils who have to live in the New England climate.

The fact is, that for the rheumatics and men suffering from swollen and inflamed pocket books, Florida and California may for the moment have the call. But for general health and work, so the scientists tell us, the best climate in the world is the one where the winter temperature does not average much below 32 degrees and the summer temperature does not average much above 64 degrees. In other words, the average of the year should be about 51 degrees. In addition, the ideal climate should have a relative humidity of about 70 per cent. much of the time. One thing more, the best climate for work must be a climate where frequent ordinary storms produce variable changes in the temperature from day to day.

Now where is this much desired climate to be found? Well, only 4 per cent. of the total land surface of the earth can boast of it. This in turn is divided into two parts, the European portion, representing 2 per cent. of the total land surface and 17 per cent. of the world's population. The American portion, also about 2 per cent of the total land surface, contains about 5 per cent of the world's population. Yet this 4 per cent. of the land area of the world holds 70 per cent. of the world's power and civilization.

If you make a map of this belt of ideal climate, you will find it is also a map of many other significant things. It is the map of the world's human energy. It is the map of the world's healthiest area. It is the map of the world's greatest educational resources. It is the map of the world's distribution of genius. If you chart the 2 per cent. of favorable climate found in America you will find the same result. Our energy map, our health map our wealth map, our educational map, and our map of the distribution of genius, coincides with the map of favorable climate.

And where is Connecticut on this map? Listen, Mr. Blue Sky salesman of California and Mr. Sunshine swooper of Florida, neither of your states are in it. But Connecticut is in its very center.

I am sorry I cannot pursue the subject further. The whole subject has been exhaustively treated in a 450 page book entitled "Civilization and Climate," by Ellsworth Huntington, Research Associate in Geography, Yale university, published by the Yale University Press. It is a book that has much to do with confirming my judgment that Connecticut is hard to beat as a place for working and living. I have sent several copies of this book to Florida enthusiasts, with more yet to be sent. I think every secretary of a chamber of commerce in New England ought to be required to pass an examination in this book before being employed.

Connecticut doesn't need any different or better climate. What it needs is better salesmen to sell what it already has.

Density of Population

And now one or two other points. If you have something to manufacture or sell, why not put your factory in that part of the country where the greatest number of possible customers are to be found? East of a line drawn from Washington to Buffalo you will find nearly half of the people in this country, and New England is the densest part.

Mr. Manufacturer, if you need money in your business, as most of us do, why not come to New England, that holds the purse strings of the nation?

Good Roads

If transportation is the foundation of commerce, why not come out of the mud of the prairies and clay of the hills, — to where there are more hard surface roads per 1000 population than anywhere in the world, and that means New England. For forty years I have heard about the road going to be built, but before I died I wished to ride on some already built, so I came to New England.

The Sea

As for lakes and inland rivers, I am tired of that story also. It takes the sea to civilize. Away from the tang of the ocean men lose their salt. In whaling days the sea made New England famous and prosperous. The time will come again when, after you have gotten over your fright at ghosts and your fear of losing something you really never should have had at all, that you will discover the ocean again, and with an export trade based on scientific study and thorough preparation, you will bring fame and prosperity back to New England through the medium of the sea.

New England does not need any better sea or finer shore than yonder ocean and sand. What you need are more youths who can climb high enough—even if their feet are bruised—until their eyes can behold the sea.

Mechanical Genius

Ours is a machine built civilization in America our prosperity depends on machinery. Our wealth, our commerce, our power, at last is built on productive machinery. The industrial age is a machine age.

New England's leadership in industry has been based on your superior ability as inventors, designers and builders of machinery. And with what result? For the most part you have sold your machinery, your genius as mechanical engineers, to the south, to the west, to South America, to the Orient. With what result?

Textile mills in New England are faced with a destructive competition with mills all over the world using machinery that originated in New England. Your own guns have been turned against you. Machine building may be a fine industry, but it is nothing compared to the industry based on the productive power of the machinery you build. The power of machinery is the power to coin money, the most useful or the most baneful—according to who controls that power. In New England, by selling your mechanical genius to all who have the price you have taken away from New England much of her commercial supremacy, based on the original and exclusive use of your machines.

If I did not have such an unalterable dislike of government in business, I would favor the government licensing all machine builders, as they do the radio stations. If business voluntarily consented for the United States chamber of commerce to license machinery builders. It would be more desirable, but most desirable of all, New England genius in making fundamental machine inventions is the future ought never to make them the basis of a machinery business, but the basis of creating another business to fabricate and sell the product of your own machine invention.

If Gillette, after inventing the safety razor, had started out to sell machinery for building safety razors instead of selling the razors themselves, New England would have lost one of her conspicuous examples of success based on controlled invention. If Eastman had built machinery for making Kodaks, instead of building Kodaks and selling them, where would the Eastman Kodak company be today? Why have not more of you followed the example of the United Shoe Machinery company, that takes its profit from the use of their machines wherever they may operate? More patents are granted to residents of Connecticut than to residents of any other state. But what becomes of them? For the most part they pass to the benefit of the whole world through the channel of the machinery builder. That is petty cash stuff and New England will never regain her commercial crown by such methods.

I hear the Boston chamber of commerce is starting a cooperative buying campaign for New England merchants. Why not make it a cooperative campaign for buying in New England.

Competition

Not long ago I heard a New England father telling his sons that he believed they would prosper more if they moved to a newer country where competition was not so keen. Well, competition is in the end a form of warfare. It is cruel and relentless. Our government seems to proceed on the theory, that competition must be encouraged, even though those who compete must fight a duel that means death to both. To that extent I can understand the advice of that New England father.

But there is another side to competition. It is inescapable. Sooner or later overtakes even the newest of countries and the richest of countries. You cannot avoid it indefinitely by moving on. Men grow great by overcoming obstacles and opposition. Great business men are the outgrowth of competition conditions. Competition brings out the reserve forces of men: it makes available the unknown resources of character; it melts away the dross in men's character and leaves only pure refined gold.

That New England father may have advised his boys correctly, but if so then I have overestimated the granite in your character. Whether right or wrong I prefer a competitive field for my three sons, and therefore I shall strive to have them like New England rather than have them run away to kindlier skies where courage and skill are not necessary, perhaps, or where men strive mightily for supremacy.

It is not necessary for me to disparage the land of my birth in order to do justice to the land of my adoption. I would not have this Union all southern—that would be like removing the red and white from the flag, leaving only the blue. Nor would I have it all western. That would be like removing the red and blue, leaving the white. Nor would I have it all New England. That would be like removing the blue and the white leaving only the red. Our flag is beautiful because we have mingled with its gorgeous dyes the milky baldric of the skies, and striped its rare celestial white with streakings of the morning light.

No New Englander should be a stranger in the south. No southerner ought to be a stranger in New England.

Meet the Challenge

President Case closed the meeting after the address by Mr. Andrews with a few earnest words in which he said that he felt a greater loyalty to Norwich and to Connecticut would be felt as a result of all that had been said and he believed the citizens would meet the challenge and grasp the opportunity that perhaps they had not seen before.

After the singing of a verse of the Star Spangled Banner, President Case declared the meeting adjourned about 9:20 o'clock.

Treat Colds 2 Ways

With ONE Treatment

WHEN rubbed over throat and chest for all kinds of cold troubles Vicks VapoRub does two things at once:

(1) Its ingredients are vaporized by the body heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing, and

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain and thus aiding the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE REPORT SHOW WIDE RANGE OF CIVIC ACTIVITY

Activity that has covered varied and important fields of community interest is shown in the work of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce as the annual report of Secretary John J O'Rourke for the year from Oct. 1, 1925 to Oct. 1, 1926. The report was distributed Tuesday evening at the annual meeting of the chamber which was held at the Wauregan hotel and is as follows:

Secretary O'Rourke acknowledging with gratitude the loyal support and co-operation he has enjoyed at all times from board of directors and the membership.

Community Spirit

The foundation of a progressive town is its community spirit. The soul of a community is at work when faith in the community, courageous work for it, loyalty to it, and genuine affection for it, are inspired in its citizens.

The Chamber has constantly endeavored throughout the past year to foster the community spirit of Norwich and to develop the town's personality. Several general meetings of the membership were held, which were devoted entirely to this effort. Speakers of prominence addressed these meetings. They declared their belief in the fact that our New England Communities remained true to the ideals and abilities of a long line of successful leaders. They stressed the necessity of an active faith in the future of Norwich, and a loyalty to the home town that was put to work. They reminded us that these were essential factors in making a community go forward.

In order to bring these matters more concretely before the public mind, and to create enthusiasm and affection for Norwich, especially in the minds of our school children, the Chamber conducted an essay contest in all the schools of the town on the subject—"Why Is Norwich a Good Place In Which to Live." Several hundred essays were written, many of them indicating an excellent knowledge of our community; all of them expressing genuine affection for Norwich. Prizes were given for the best essays in each school.

Another stimulating effort to kindle public interest in our home town was carried out successfully in the Slogan Contest conducted by the Chamber. Approximately two hundred slogans were submitted, the winning slogan being—"The World Uses What Norwich Produces." Prizes were given for the best slogans and the contest did create a great deal of public interest.

The Thanksgiving meeting of the Chamber was unique. At this meeting the educational, the business, and the religious progress of our community life was interestingly brought before the public mind. The effect of the meeting was impressive in the way the attention was fixed on the future prosperity of Norwich.

Community Advertising

The Chamber has advertised Norwich wherever and whenever it was possible to do so during the past year. One hundred road signs were contracted for to be erected at various points on all the heavily traveled highways to Norwich. The signs were erected on the routes from Hartford, New Haven, New London, Springfield, Worcester, Providence and Westerly.

Through the courtesy of the New Haven railroad, a two-page picture of the junction of Broadway, Main and Shetucket Streets was printed on the company's time tables. Vital statistics concerning Norwich accompanied the picture.

"Welcome to Norwich" cards were printed and distributed at seven conventions held here and in other cities. The cards had the emblem, "The Rose of New England," printed in colors. On the reverse side was printed the diversified products of Norwich industry, the excellent transportation facilities with which we are served, and the slogan "The World Uses What Norwich Produces." These cards proved very popular, and much favorable comment was heard at the various conventions where they were distributed.

The Chamber acted as hosts and extended welcome and hospitality to visiting delegates at three state conventions held here during the past year. On all these occasions automobiles were generously provided by the members to transport the visitors on trips around Norwich, to the Submarine Base, and to the State Hospital.

Although something has already been accomplished to advertise Norwich, the need is apparent for adequate funds to give greater publicity to our home town. The state legislatures of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are appropriating large sums of money each year for this purpose. There are a number of municipalities, especially in the South, which annually appropriate large sums to advertise their respective communities; and in the west, there are Chambers of Commerce which annually spend from $20,000 to $100,000 for publicity purposes.

Thames River

The deepening of the Thames River channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich passed the second step toward accomplishment, when the United States Board of Army Engineers recommended that this section of the channel be deepened from fourteen feet to eighteen feet.

On January 6th of this year, Congressman Freeman introduced to Congress a bill calling for an appropriation of $350,000 to do the work, with an annual maintenance appropriation of $20,000. This bill is embodied in the omnibus Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Bill now before Congress for action. It is expected that action will be taken by Congress when it reconvenes for its next session.

The report of the Army Engineers to Congress concerning the Thames River channel justifies the efforts of the Chamber in promoting this project. The successful conclusion of this effort will entitle Norwich to be classed as a seaport town, which means the saving of thousands of dollars annually in freight rates.

The deepening of the river channel gives to Norwich a strong, selling argument for the future industrial development of our community. It is a big asset also for the surrounding manufacturing towns. It was due to the fact that it would benefit a large portion of eastern Connecticut that the town of Norwich was not called upon to bear fifty per cent. of the expense for doing the work. The policy of the United States Army Engineers has been for several years to have such improvement made on a fifty-fifty basis of expense by the federal government and the town which profited by the improvement.

Community Chest

Several conferences, attended by representatives of fifteen organizations, have been held to discuss the merits of a Community Chest for Norwich. Experiences of other cities prove that this is a matter for serious and careful deliberation. It must be viewed from every possible angle of experiences affecting the community.

This subject was discussed at a general meeting of the Chamber held last March. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, who was the general Chairman for the New London Community Chest Committee, was the speaker of the evening.

The Chest idea must be generally understood by the community at large, in order to receive the support necessary for its success. This takes time. Rarely has the Chest become established, unless sufficient time has been taken to educate the public to its aims, purposes, control, etc.

The Chamber is acting as the coordinating agency for the consideration of this question.

Civic Council

A Civic Council has been established in Norwich by the Chamber during the past year, having this as its purpose—"The object of this organization shall be to act as an Advisory Council to the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, by which a comprehensive public sentiment can be obtained on important civic matters." Its membership is composed of the President and Secretary of all the non-sectarian organizations of the town. Representatives of the town and city governments are invited to its meetings.

The Council will act as the clearing house of information on matters of general civic interest. The merits and demerits of any important civic matter can be better understood and explained to the various participating organization through the medium of the Council.

The Council has adopted by-laws and will hold regular meetings for the consideration of matters brought before it.

Aviation Field

The Chamber has considered and investigated the question of a local aviation field through a committee appointed for that purpose.

Major Ira Longanecker, U. S. A., commanding officer of the Boston airport, accompanied the committee on a tour of inspection in Norwich to investigate the available sites for such a field.

Later, Mr. P. H. Spencer, President of the New England Aircraft Company with headquarters in Hartford, also made a tour of inspection accompanied by committee members.

The number of local available sites is very limited because of the topography of our town. The airship field must be one free from obstructions such as trees, surrounding hills, buildings, etc. Its area should be large enough so that airships can land or take flight in any direction of wind.

Norwich should give this matter further consideration. Commercial aviation is coming, just as sure as the automobile came. With the approval of the members, further activity on this project will be given by the Chamber.

Fire Insurance Rates

The Dean system, which is being put into effect throughout all New England cities, was explained by the Chamber and publicity given to this method for fire insurance ratings.

The system already covers twenty states in the middle west, and Massachusetts. Gradually it will be in effect throughout the United States. It is founded on a credit and debit basis for each piece of property insured in every town. It is regarded and accepted generally as an equitable method for determining fire insurance rates. In some instances rates are lowered and in other cases rates are increased, depending on the degrees of fire hazards in each individual case.

Trees and Town Forest

The beauty of a community is greatly enhanced by the number and the care taken of the trees controlled by the town and city. The committee having this matter in charge conferred with Mayor Waters, Street Commissioner Donovan, and Mr. Henry Gilbert of Danielson, who is a tree expert, regarding the conservation of the trees within the city limits over which the city had control. The result of this conference is to be found in the increased appropriation voted for the care of trees and the employment of an expert to do the work.

Norwich is one of the few cities in Connecticut to have a town forest. This was made possible through the generous gift of eight acres, located near Trading Cove, by the Misses Lucas of Sachem Street. These public-spirited citizens are fulfilling the wishes of their father in presenting this tract to the town for public use. Miss Nancy Lucas is a member of our committee in charge of public recreation and forestry.

The need for conserving the national lumber supply of the country and the replenishment of forests for the same reason, is apparent. The state governments are giving their attention to this necessity for an adequate lumber supply, and an increasing acreage is being gradually developed in each state, under public control, for this purpose.

The generous gift of the Misses Lucas to the town of Norwich is indeed commendable. Through their generosity the first town forest in Norwich and New London County has been made possible.

Fort Shantok State Park

The first state park in New London County is a reality through the activity of the Chamber, assisted by the New London Chamber of Commerce. At the last legislative session an appropriation was voted to purchase the site for Fort Shantok Park. The cooperation of our local state legislators in bringing this project to a successful conclusion merits the genuine-

WESTMINSTER

Last Sunday the text was Esther 4:14. Theme Saved for Some Purpose. Monday there was an all day meeting of the W. C. T. U. of the town, Buell Union, at the parsonage with dinner served at noon to 25. Five more came in the afternoon to hear the program which proved most interesting. This was due to the presence of two speakers with important subjects who came from distant places, Rev. Mr. Elder of Cape, Colorado and Rev. Mr. Deming of the Marathi speaking of people of western India. Both proved very attractive speakers who answered many questions asked by those present.

Rev. Mr. English of the Second church Putnam accompanied the speakers as he has arranged their appointments for Windham county. All present will follow the work at home and abroad more keenly, intelligently and sympathetically because of the talk of these men whom they were privileged to hear.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. is scheduled to be held with Mrs. Arthur Bennett, the second Wednesday in November.

Monday evening the republican caucus for state officers was held at the town hall. The building was filled with earnest men and women. Quite a number of democrats and young people of both sexes not yet voters were in the caucus which was the largest in years if not ever. Clinton E. Frink and Andrew J. Clark were renominated for representatives.

Thomas Jones of Jersey City and his children have the deep sympathy of the community in the death of his wife which occurred after a long illness on Monday, Oct. 11. Mr. Jones is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. A. Jones of this place. Most of the time during the illness of his wife their children have lived with their aunt where they will remain.

Charles S. Taylor left Westerly on Tuesday morning for Providence where he is under summons as a petit juror for the re-convened May term of the United States district court before Judge Arthur L. Brown. It was expected that many of those who had previously demanded jury trials would retract their previous pleas and enter pleas of guilty in liquor cases. In cases of second offenders a number of cases were reported as ready to be brought to trial. Criminal cases not settled at this session of the U. S. court will come before the November term when on the third Tuesday will be taken up cases which will probably demand considerable time for trial.

Excellent High Priest William Spencer of Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons of Pawcatuck at the stated convocation on Monday evening in Masonic hall in Westerly announced that Ex. Companion Sampson Spry complete the term of Captain of the Host Robinson Hindle of Bradford, who has taken a position of boss folder in a textile plant near Worcester, Mass. With Excellent King J. Westerly grange, No. 18, Patrons of Husbandry, George Maurice Nye, patron, met on Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock in Westerly grange hall, when a neighbor's night program was observed.

Charles M. Gardiner, high priest of Hamilton of Springfield, Mass., was present. There were also present guests from North Stonington, Stonington and Mystic as well as from all Washington county making an attendance of about 225. Beside the regular grange meeting, Miss Bessie Cross of Charlestown, R. I., rendered a vocal solo and instrumental music was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Rietzel of Pawcatuck. Light refreshments were served at the close of the evening's program.

Collection of taxes at the Westerly town treasurer and tax collector's office in the Westerly town hall is proceeding slowly. Taxes are payable from the 15th to the 31st of October inclusive, there being no discount this year as formerly and after Nov. 1st interest at the rate of 12 per cent. is added. Of the 4,000 taxpayers listed in the Westerly tax lists only about 900 had paid on Tuesday. But few poll tax payments have been made.

Congressman Richard S. Aldrich of the Second Rhode Island district on Tuesday morning named five Rhode Island boys as candidates for the United States naval academy at Annapolis three as principals, two as alternates.

Michael Joseph Pescatello, 54 Morgan street, Westerly, who had been named as second alternate by Senator Jesse H. H. Metcalf, received the first nomination. As alternate, Pescatello has already passed the metal tests.

Francis Hoye, Jr., of 74 Arnold avenue, Edgewood and Donald C. Carter of Hillsgrove, Warwick, are the other two principals. Vincent J. Meola, 74 Prince street, Providence was made alternate for Hoye and Melveen J. Barber, 5 Beach street, Edgewood, is alternate for Carter.

The candidates will take examinations required for entrance to Annapolis next April. Three vacancies from Rhode Island will be created by graduation of Rhode Island boys, now at the Academy, in June.

Westerly Young Women's Community association will begin its winter activities with a public meeting next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the vestry of Christ church. Entertainment will be furnished by Bessie Mae Kelley, reader and cartoonist of Boston. A large attendance is anticipated.

The present officers of the association are: President, Miss Ruth V. Davis; vice president, Miss Mary Wilcox; secretary, Mrs. Franklin C Smith, and treasurer, Miss H. Louise Ayers.

The death of Rev. David Nelson Beach, Sr., former president of Bangor Theological seminary for 18 years, who started his half century career of religious leadership in Westerly in 1876, and preached his last sermon at the Beneficent Congregational church in Providence Aug. 8, following a short illness, occurred on Monday in Southington, Conn. He was in his 78th year. For a few months he was acting pastor of the Park Place Congregational church of Pawtucket, the pulpit of which is now filled by his son, Rev. David N. Beach, Jr.

Coming from a family prominent in religious work and being the father of two ministers, Dr. Beach occupied a prominent place on the honor roll of his profession. An active champion of righteousness he was often referred to as a living witness to the gospel of good will to all men.

Mr. Beach was born in South Orange, N. J., Nov. 30, 1848, the son of Joseph Wickliff and Mary Angeline (Walkley) Beach. He received his A. B. degree at Yale in 1872, won his B D. degree at Yale Divinity school in 1876, a D. D. at Yale in 1881 and later won further honors at Western Reserve.

He was ordained at the Pawcatuck Congregational church of Westerly on June 15, 1876, occupying the pulpit there for three years. From Westerly Dr. Beach went to the pastorate of the First Congregational church of Wakefield, Mass., in 1884, accepting a call from the Prospect Street Congregational church of Cambridge where he remained for 12 years.

In 1896 Mr. Beach became pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church in Minneapolis. Three years later he accepted the pastorate of the First church in Denver, Col., moving to that city on account of his wife's health.

He returned to the east in 1903 to accept the appointment of president of the Bangor Theological seminary. The Convocation Week lectures which were instituted early in his administration have drawn speakers of national reputation to the seminary and have proved highly successful.

Mr. Beach was married three times, his first wife being Lillian Tappan of Gloucester, who died in 1902. His second wife was Dora Freeman of Wakefield, Mass., who died in 1915. On Oct 16, 1916, he married Ellen O. Walkley of Southington, who survives him.

Besides his widow, Mr. Beach leaves four children, Dorothea of the faculty of Smith college; John, in business in New York city, residing in Montcalir, N. J.; Joseph W., a director of Near East Relief work in the orphanages of Armenia and the Caucasus, and David N. Beach, Jr., pastor of Park Place church, Pawtucket.

Rev. Mr. Beach came to Westerly in April, 1925, to officiate at the funeral of Dr. Albert H. Spicer, Sr., whose death occurred on April 7, and with whom Mr. Beach first made his home when coming to Westerly to preach.

H. K. Goetchius of New York, summer visitor at Watch Hill where he has been the chairman of the house committee and greens committee of the Misquamicut Golf club, arrived here Tuesday noon to be the guest of Harry Milner.

President Booth C. Davis of Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y., has returned to New York city after being the week end guest of his brother, Samuel H. Davis in Westerly.

David McG. Newall of New York city arrived in Westerly on Thursday afternoon on a short business trip.

Frank Nichols of New London was a business caller in Westerly and Pawcatuck on Tuesday afternoon.

SAYS MEXICO THREATENS IDEALS OF AMERICANISM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 19—"The Knights of Columbus million dollar fund is not established for the purpose of seeking intervention but rather to educate the populace of the face in the Mexican situation" said Peter W. Collins of Boston, national lecturer in an address made at the town hall here Tuesday night under the auspices of San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus before some 500 people. With members of the Catholic clergy of this city and neighboring towns and Grand Knight Patrick A. Connor occupying honorary chairs on the platform, District Deputy T. Frank Cunningham of this city was chairman of the meeting.

Giving three basic reasons for his lecture Mr. Collins said that Calles was grinding Christian civilization into the dust, that the ideals of Americanism and justice were threatened and that organized labor of which he is a member and past holder of prominent offices, was threatened by the red communism of the Mexican labor organization with which it is affiliated. Reviewing the constitution of Mexico as adopted by Carranza, Obregon and Calles the speaker said that it was gun made and gun enforced against the will of 98 per cent of the Mexican population. He quoted the constitution adopted by Caranza, naming the clauses forbidding religious teachings, min'sterial property ownership and abolishing free press and public expressions. He then quoted from the Russian constitution adopted under Lenin and finally compared both with the great humane document, the constitution of the United States. "President Wilson recognized the Caranza government after receiving a written guarantee that this recognition would be respected," said Mr. Collins, "but the bandit executive and his successors have violated every clause of such a guarantee." If we do not recognize the Russian government because it is founded on the unprincipled influences of communism and bolshevism why than should we continue to recognize the Mexican government, which is practically a carbon copy of that of Russia," queried the speaker.

"Intervention means war and we do not seek war" Mr. Collins said, "but what we do advocate is abolishment of governmental and labor affiliations with Mexico, with no intervention other than might be necessary to protect American lives and property." Quoting President Coolidge, who said, "that our rights and principles go where our sanction goes," Mr. Collins advocated the removal of the existing sanction of American recognition of Mexico.

The meeting opened and closed with a patriotic song and was followed by a banquet to Mr. Collins as guest of the K. of C. council at the Nathan Hale hotel.

COMMERCE CHAMBER REPORTS SHOW

approval of the members of the Chamber and the general public of this section of the state. Arrangements are being made for the formal opening of the park on Columbus Day, October 12th, with an interesting program.

Plans are now being made by the New London and Norwich Chambers of Commerce to secure a state beach reservation, located near New London. It is proposed to have a state reservation, similar to Hammonasset, for the public use by the people in the eastern section of Connecticut. This matter will be presented to the next legislative session.

Broadcasting Station

The Chamber conducted a broadcasting station for six weeks during the past year as an experiment, and to test the public sentiment for supporting a permanent station. The studio was made possible through the courtesy of the Hanover-Curland Company; the broadcasting equipment was housed in the Thayer Building, through the generosity of its owners; the Norwich Gas and Electric Department, the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, the Travelers Insurance Company, and a number of local merchants, all gave splendid cooperation to make the experiment successful.

Public sentiment was not of sufficient strength in Norwich to warrant the expense of maintaining a permanent station. As an experiment it was unique, proved highly interesting, and gave Norwich a broadcasting trial, to the enjoyment of a large number of citizens. Reports of actual receptions of programs were received from all over the New England states, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Revised Building Code

A committee of the Chamber has prepared a revised code for Norwich which is based on several good authorities. The committee spent much time on this subject and carefully studied all the regulations on the various phases of construction. A number of conferences were held with the electrical, plumbing and heating, and construction contractors during the year The electrical and plumbing contractors have considered the sections of the code pertaining to their work, making some recommendations for the regulations. The construction contractors have not as yet completed their consideration of the sections by which they would be governed.

The present building code was adopted in 1898. Adequate building laws are a protection to life and property. Properly enforced, they are the best safeguard to owner and tenant alike.

Streets

The Committee on Streets considered the following matters during the year: the improvement of the road-bed on Main Street from the Chelsea Bank to Preston Bridge; the rebuilding of Boswell Avenue in its entirety; the improvement of the West Thames Street road-bed by resurfacing it between the trolley tracks; the maintenance of a properly supervised public comfort station on or near Franklin Square. In the opinion of many citizens the men's comfort station at the foot of Ferry Street is a common nuisance and should be abolished.

A new thoroughfare was proposed to relieve traffic congestion in Franklin Square. It was proposed to the New Haven railroad officials that a one way thoroughfare be made from Ferry Street passing the rear of the Palace theater and the Lerou-Macpherson building, and entering the New Haven's property at the passenger station. The railroad officials informed the Chamber that other plans of development which they are considering would interfere with the proposed new roadway.

Traffic Bureau

The traffic bureau of the Chamber has given considerable service to manufacturers and shippers in quoting freight rates, and routings, from a number of the railroads operating from New York.

Attention has also been given to bus operating schedules, for Norwich has become the bus center of eastern Connecticut.

The Bureau held several local conferences with officials of both railroads and the American Express Company, at different times, attended by a number of local shippers. These conferences were for the purpose of securing better service in freight deliveries.

Improvements in freight deliveries from New York have been made by the Central Vermont and New Haven railroads. The Thames River Line has also improved their delivery service to the surrounding towns.

The Chamber is fortunate in having Mr. W. S. Moon, as the chairman of this bureau. He has a wide experience in freight transportation matters, the benefit of which he has freely given to such matters as are brought to the Chamber's attention.

Credit Bureau

In order to give the best possible service to the local business concerns and professional men, a credit bureau was established during the past year. Approximately 16,000 accounts are on file in the bureau's office. These include local and surrounding towns.

The Bureau was established and is operating under the supervision of the manager of the Hartford Credit Rating Bureau which insures Norwich having an efficient bureau. The local bureau is also a member of the National Association which gives to it the services of over seven hundred other bureaus located throughout the United States.

Miss Isabel Drohan has been engaged as the manager of the Norwich Cred't Rating Bureau. The bureau occupies part of the offices of the Chamber.

Mercantile Affairs

The Chamber has rendered every possible cooperation to the local merchants. While the modern Chamber of Commerce is neither a merchants' nor a manufacturers' organization, (its membership includes professional men and women as well) every possible assistance to these interests is recognized and freely given.

The office sends out notices for meetings; furnishes out-of-town business addresses on inquiries; supplies information concerning manufacturing firms located elsewhere; takes up matters concerning local freight, express, and postal deliveries; replies to communications concerning local business statistics for prospective new business concerns; secures information from other cities relative to various business factors.

The Chamber endeavors to have the merchants realize their responsibilities to the buying public by giving quality merchandise and dependable service, at fair prices. This organization also endeavors to foster and promote trading at home, for it realizes that unless the home-town people trade with home-town merchants, the community suffers. The buying public demands good stores, good merchandise, good services, justifiable prices. These cannot be maintained unless the local merchants are supported by the local people. The judgment of a city is largely based upon the quality of its stores and the Chamber is ever zealous of the fair name and reputation of Norwich.

Industrial Matters

What the Chamber endeavors to do for the merchant is likewise true for the manufacturers. In a number of instances the Chamber has given very valuable cooperation to some of our industries. The most important and the most frequent forms of assistance are in securing freight rates and routings; supplying information concerning the products made and names of manufacturers of other concerns located elsewhere; and acting as the coordinating agency for the mutual welfare of industry.

The Chamber realizes that one of it principal functions is to increase the number of industries for the town We can assure our members that no stone has been left unturned to fulfil this function; by letters furnishing vital statistics, and by personal contact with the prospective manufacturer when possible.

During the past year seventeen prospective manufacturers were requested to consider Norwich for locating their plants.

The Chamber was successful in bringing three small concerns to Norwich during the past year. The combined payroll of these concerns amounts to approximately $1,500 weekly.

It is pertinent at this time to remind our members that in common with other New England towns we are faced with the competition of other sections of the country which are making serious efforts to attract our industries to their respective towns During the past year several such offers have been made to several good

White Oak Coal

Let Us Show You How You Can Make a Real Saving On Your Coal Bill This Winter!

NEW RIVER SMOKELESS WHITE OAK COAL COAL

Why YOU Should Burn

WHITE OAK COAL

1. Low volatile.
2. Kindles quickly.
3. Costs less per ton.
4. Low in ash waste.
5. Burns slowly, lasts long.
6. Gives more heat per ton.
7. It is clean, and smokeless.
8. Entirely free from clinkers.

IN 1925 we experienced a tremendous coal shortage. During this time White Oak Coal mined in the heart of the famous smokeless coal fields of West Virginia was brought to our attention. We have made a thorough investigation of this type of coal, and are now ready to make immediate deliveries and recommend its purchase. We suggest that you investigate White Oak before ordering your winter supplies. We have stocked this coal because we feel that in so doing we are better able to solve the heating problems of our customers.

Thousands of New England homes are now burning it with the utmost satisfaction. Fuel experts appointed by the New England Governors have investigated this type of coal, and report that it contains more heat, less ash waste, and if bought at two-thirds the price of New England's usual fuel, that the consumer actually gets twice as much for his money.

INVESTIGATE AND CONSIDER WELL WHITE OAK COAL.

NEW LONDON MURDER RECALLS CRIME WHICH HAPPENED TEN YEARS AGO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—Preceding the murder of Rose Fella Monday, New London has not had a murder in about ten years. George Washington, a Negro, killed Lizzie Waters, a white woman with whom he was living on Douglass street. He got away from this section, but in New Jersey he killed a school teacher in a lonely section. He was apprehended for that crime, was convicted and was hanged before the New London authorities could get him into their custody. He was a big, husky Negro, an admirer of dogs and women.

VOTING MACHINE RULING OF COUNCIL APPROVED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—The action of the city council in deciding to defer the introduction of automatic voting machines in this city at the election that is but a fortnight away is generally approved by citizens. Certain ordinances must be enacted to enable the adoption of the machines legally, and to pass these will require some time more than two weeks, if the procedure be regular. The ordinances might be rushed through in less time, but the wisest of the advisors of the councilors regarded that course as taking a chance that informality might be claimed and the whole vote of the city made be cast out. Monday members of the council were cautioned on the phase from Hartford and they were asked to go cautiously and to assert any possible contingency that would raise the question of the legality of the city's action in adopting the voting machines. It is also held that the machines must be studied by those who are to operate them, and that the seven days before the election was not sufficient for all voters to become acquainted with the operation of the machines.

The petition for the improvement of the highway on Stoney Hill which was presented to the city council on Monday evening presents a difficult task. Within the recollection of man that highway has never been passable to vehicles. It is now a cobblestone road, very steep and such as no operator of a vehicle would care to undertake to traverse. How the street can be treated except to lay a cement road there is not obvious. The whole length of the street must be treated to a cement covering from Huntington street to Main street to make it even passable.

FELLA HELD FOR MURDER FOR JANUARY TERM OF COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—The police court this morning disposed of the case against Fortunato Fella, the man who killed his wife in Bank street Monday evening, as she was on her way to her home after working all day that she might support her children. In about two minutes the complaint was presented by the prosecutor and alleged murder in the first degree. Fella was represented by a lawyer who demurred to the complaint, and did not offer a word of testimony. The demurrer was overruled and Fella was held for trial at the January term of the superior court without bail.

Fella married his wife in Italy. She has had a hard time of her existence with him, and has often been abused. The woman was a frail person who would not weigh a hundred pounds, yet her husband killed her without mercy. His defense is likely to be insanity it is understood.

LAWYER MAY NOT COLLECT CLIENT'S CASH IN BANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—Salvatore Piazzi, came here last Thursday to work as a carpenter, but when he could not get high wages he would not take a place as a builder. He brought with him Lillian Ann Palmer Travis, a comely Hebrew girl and with her he lived as her husband at 590 Main street. A sailor, John E. Gillespie, happened to be in the house last night under the influence of liquor, it is claimed, and then missed a diamond ring. He could not account for its disappearance, so he reported to the police that it was stolen from him at the house. He also told of happenings there that led the police in a raid. As a result Gillespie and the pair mentioned were arrested and in the police court today were charged with being persons of lascivious carriage and behavior. All pleaded guilty. Lillian and Salvatore were fined $25 each, in view of the information that the sailor gave to the police the complaint against him was disposed of by a suspension of judgment. Piazza had $50 in a New York bank on deposit and this he made over to a lawyer who advised him and the girl how to plead. The police say the lawyer will never get the money he is supposed to have made sure of, for payment on the account was stopped by telegraph.

A complaint against Harry Hankerson, an inspector for the telephone company, did not reach trial today in the police court here. Hankerson is charged with stealing $50 from the home of Rev. Chester Howe while in the premises attending to the transfer of a telephone. Hankerson's home is in New Jersey and there he was sought and found by the police and was returned here late yesterday in the custody of Detective Cavanaugh, who went to Newark after him. Hankerson is represented by an attorney, who asked that the case might be continued till the 22nd inst. He is at liberty on a bond of $250.

Harry Snooks was hustling down Montauk avenue at a speed of forty-five miles an hour and passing intersecting streets as if he was passing an ordinary road. He deserved just he was unaware of the speed of the machine as the speedometer was not in working order. In suspending judgment the court warned him not to be apprehended again.

Joshua H. Hubbard of Douglass St., was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman George Lavoie charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Hubbard, who has been arrested many times, engaged in a quarrel with David Goodman and it was on the latter's complaint that Hubbard was arrested.

Stephen Zeker, Harris building, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Corcoran charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances and from the attitude taken by Zeker he apparently believed he was a privileged character and had a right to violate the laws of the city. Zeker was driving his automobile through State street and stopped it while he engaged in conversation with a pedestrian. The stopping of the car in the street caused a tie-up of traffic for a block and when Officer Corcoran remonstrated with Zeker he informed the officer to "Take my name and I will see the judge about it." Instead of doing as Zeker requested, Officer Corcoran took Zeker to the police station and there he was insolent and surly. He was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow when he can have a talk with Judge Prince.

City Manager William A. Holt today received a letter from Smith Stevens, Mayville, Cal., requesting information as to the whereabouts of his niece, Olga Anruch, daughter of Jacob Anruch, who resided in New London 40 years ago. Nothing is known here as to the whereabouts of the woman.

Mrs. Mary Palmer, 21 Tenth street, made complaint to Patrolman George Laboue this morning that last night while she was crossing Hallam street bridge on her way home about 10 o'clock, she was accosted and insulted by sailors.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary J. Card was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the residence of her niece, Mrs. Annie Church, 139 Blydenburg avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Congregational church. Burial was in Riverside cemetery, Saybrook.

WOMAN PARTLY UNDRESSED ARRESTED ON STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—A young woman employed in a local restaurant, was arrested this evening when she appeared intoxicated on Shapley street and in a disgraceful condition for garments were disarranged, part of her attire being on the ground. Complaint was made to the police and Sergeant Samuel Hick and Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran went to Shapley St. in the police automobile and took charge of the woman. After being put in a cell she disrobed, evidently believing she was in bed at her home in order to protect her from possible pneumonia she was placed in a cell close to the steam heating device and blankets were procured to provide her with additional protection.

A Ford runabout and a Chevrolet coach came to grief at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets at 8 o'clock this evening with the result that when they were separated both cars were considerably damaged. The Chevrolet sustained the greater injury, as its headlights were gone, its bumper torn from its fastenings and its mudguards bent. The Ford rumbled away ready for another encounter. The parties operating the cars had no complaint to make and each accepted the situation as it was. So no arrests were made. Police Officer Dennis Cavanaugh was at hand to take notice of what happened.

The case of the state against Harry Holloway alleging the embezzlement of a considerable sum of money from the Thames Loan company while the latter was manager, but there is no doubt the case will take place. Mr. Holloway has been under the care of a doctor for several weeks and his condition is such now as will permit his appearance.

Patrick Connell, laborer, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant Sam Hicks and Patrolman Ernest Opperman charged with intoxication and upon complaint of a woman named Paul, residing at 10 Tenth street. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Connell was at the home of the Paul woman where he became a nuisance because of his condition.

GIRLS OF SCHOOL AGE LEARN VALUABLE LESSON

Find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Medicine

LOUISE LOUTHAN
ROUTE 2, CHARLESTON, ILLINOIS

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this dependable medicine to their daughters. School girls are often careless. They get wet feet. They overstudy or they fire themselves with too many dances and parties. They get run down.

Many an active girl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, has found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is helping her to find better health and energy.

"I gave my fifteen-year-old girl Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She had been out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school again. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."—Mrs. ALICE LOUTHAN, Route 2, Charleston, Illinois.

"My daughter was out of school two terms. I have known about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all my life and finally decided that she should try it. Three bottles helped her in various ways for the next couple of years."—Mrs. W. E. GILLETTE, 936 E. 52nd Place, Los Angeles, Calif.

"I have always been sickly, and until I was fourteen my father was very strict about my perfect attendance at grammar school. I have gone to school through hard storms and often taken cold. When I was fourteen I took to my bed and did not get up for eighteen months. Everyone thought I could not live. Just four months ago I began taking your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I could notice a great change almost at once. Now I feel like a new person. I wish all girls would try Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful medicine."—Mrs. C. M. SMITH, Union Village, Vermont.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Dolores Del Rio, much heralded screen beauty, is seen in a stellar role opposite Lloyd Hughes in the new First National comedy-drama, "Pals First," which comes to the Breed theatre today and Thursday as the main picture of a double feature attraction.

Miss Del Rio's rise to prominence is one of the most phenomenal in Hollywood annals. A few short months ago she had not even contemplated a film career. The beautiful star is one of the richest heiresses in Mexico.

"Pals First" has to do with the adventures of three crooks, one of whom masquerades as the owner of an ancestral southern home of aristocracy. With his two crook pals he is welcomed as the returned master of the establishment.

The film boasts one of the best surprize endings of the season. The cables are not only reversed, but turned upside down.

Lloyd Hughes, Alec Francis and George Cooper as the triumvirate of yeggmen carry the male honors of the production, supported by a strong cast of favorites. The story is from the novel by Francis Perry Elliott. Edw'n Carewe directed.

In play and book form "Pals First" achieved immense popularity.

"The Boy Friend" which is the second on this bill is a satire on the stage the book, disguised in this case as the "The Book of Charm" and offers Bell dozens of opportunities for the display of his particular brand of humor. An excellent script was prepared by Alice D. G. Miller from the play, "The Book of Charm," by John A. Kirkpatrick.

Marceline Day and John Harron have the leading roles, and Walter Pennyson, Gertrude Astor, Elizabeth Patterson, Otto Hoffman, Gwen Lee and others are in the cast.

Capitol Theatre, Willimantic

The Mendoza-Axt music of "The Bat Parade" coming to the Capitol theatre, Willimantic on October 31st and November 1, a feature of that remarkable super-picture directed by King Vidor and written by Laurence Stallings, A. the resources of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer went into the production and among other things Major Edward Bowes of the Capitol theatre, New York arranged with David Mendoza and William Axt to write a score interpreting every character, mood and scene in the story. The music is filled with the famous French ditties and American songs of 1917-18 together with much original composition by Mr. Mendoza and Dr. Axt. Its rendition is one of the greatest musical treats of the season at the Astor theatre, New York, where "The Big Parade" is now being shown in its second year, and in order to duplicate that metropolitan treat for local audiences a quartet consisting of twenty symphony musicians is carried by the organization on tour.

Capitol Theatre—Willimantic.

When Grace Griffin, International singer, next appears at the Capitol theatre, Willimantic for a special four-day attraction starting Sunday evening, October 24 has audience will comprise many friends who have heard her and have joined in the popular request for her return to this section. Gerald Griffin is widely known in Norwich and it is expected that he will draw hundreds from that city. In the world of song Gerald Griffin "has arrived" He ranks today as one of the foremost singers, and with his years of Europe and this country, his fame is widely established. The talented young Irish tenor was accorded receptions in Australia, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, New York City and many other cities. His coming is not advertised as a vaudeville act. It is something more. Something far more superb. Nothing less than a great concert by a great artist. This is a rare opportunity for eastern Connecticut people to hear Irish airs sung in that wonderful voice of great range and rare purity and sweetness admirably suited to the rendition of Irish music.

Sold in Westerly

Henry D. Smith has sold his seven-room cottage at 39 Spruce street, Westerly, R. I., to Lewis R. Greene, who will make it his permanent home. The sale was made by the Norwich Land Title Insurance Co.

Norwich Produce Market

Apples continue plenty with a fair demand for the better grades but poor lots move slowly. Native pears and grapes are offered in moderate quantities at somewhat lower prices, supplies of New York state grapes are increasing while California table grapes are higher.

Supplies of beans and sweet corn are very limited but cauliflower is a little cheaper. Prices of cabbage appear a little firmer with beets, carrots and parsnips unchanged. Potatoes continue firm with Maine stock slightly lower than natives while sweet potatoes remain easy. A few tomatoes are still offered but only fair quality. Squash is offered quite freely and limited quantities of pumpkins.

Heavy fowls and chickens are firm but light weight are easy. Eggs remain very firm with fresh ones scarce. Butter also remains firm.

Dressed meats are steady except pork which is firm.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Burton Agency Sells Another

Edward and Mary McCabe of this city have sold their six-room cottage located at 107 Fifth street to Ephraim and Helen De Mirth of Hill's grove, R. I., who will move to this city this week.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

Palace Theater

Claire McDowell, one of the screen's foremost character women, plays the role of John Gilbert's mother in that actor's first starring picture, The Big Parade, coming to the Palace theater on October 25th. It is a King Vidor production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Miss McDowell has been on the screen as long as there have been pictures. Coming from the New York stage, she was a leading woman of prominence.

The part that brought her to the notice of the public as a character woman was the mother of Mary Pickford in Heart of the Hills, still remembered as one of the finest cinema portrayals. She plays the part of the Mother of Hur in the gigantic production of Ben-Hur and was last seen as Lon Chaney's wife in Victor Seastrom's production of The Tower of Lies.

Product Names Company

"Many a company has named a product. Seldom does a product name a company," says Kotex company, in announcing to its trade the adoption of a new name by the organization formerly know as the Cellucotton Products company.

Effective immediately, Kotex company is the name under which the production manufacture and sale of Kotex, the scientific sanitary pad, will be continued, due to the world-wide acceptance of this product which—six years ago—made its dramatic entrance into the medical and social world.

The Kotex company retains all patent rights to the trade name Kotex and continues as the only manufacturer using Cellucotton, the super-absorbent, in making sanitary pads.

New sales offices and warehouses in Boston and Baltimore are announced at the same time, to facilitate service to dealers and jobbers in those territories.

Broadway Theater

More favorable comment has rarely been heard from patrons of the Broadway theater than that bestowed on the five act Keith Albee vaudeville autumn bill and the special photoplay Flaming Waters. Lovers of exceptional entertainment should see it while means as it leaves tonight.

The last half of the week the management has a still greater surprise for his patrons both in vaudeville and pictures. There will be five sensational acts, and the theater going public who saw such pictures as The Four Afam and Westward Ho let it go at that, but a few of the Emery Johnson experiences will rejoice to know that Harry Lewis, the veteran character actor who was starred in these productions, has returned to the Johnson banner in his latest opus, The Last Edition, which opens tomorrow and is established to be one of the year's biggest specials.

Palace Theater

Betty Bronson in her latest brilliant comedy success The Cat's Pajamas in which this beautiful and talented star is supported by Ricardo Cortez and Theodore Roberts and the big melodramatic hit The Midnight Limited will open their last showing today. The Cat's Pajamas is a comedy drama that is delighting audiences all over the country and marks the return of the screen of Theodore Roberts after his long illness. Roberts is without doubt the most beloved actor in pictures and he wins us in this charming photoplay to give us again one of his delightful characterizations. The Midnight Limited starring Wanda Hawley and a big cast is a stirring drama of railroad life filled with high dramatic action and big scenes, with climaxes that will hold the spectator to the edge of the seat. The Newlyweds and their baby in a rollicking comedy entitled Snookums Tooth is a riot of laughter and Walter Lang and his concert orchestra provide their usual big class of musical entertainment. A more entertaining program than this can hardly be imagined. Tomorrow Harry Langdon is coming in his new super-special The Strong Man and Patsy Ruth Miller in Rose of the World. The Palace double feature programs providing both quality and quantity are proving immensely popular with the patrons.

Russian Symphonic Choir

The Russian Symphonic choir under Basile Kibalchich conductor, will appear in concert tonight at Slater Memorial hall.

This concert is certain to prove a real joy to music lovers. Perfection of attack, beautiful tone and correct intonation are only a few of their outstanding achievements.

SHARP REACTION IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—The stock market experienced another sharp reaction today after operators for the advance had failed in their attempt to continue the rally begun yesterday. Net losses in scores of popular industrials ran from 1 to 6 points, with a more moderate decline in the leading railroad shares. Trading, which had turned extremely dull during the morning, quickened perceptibly under the renewal of bear attacks, the day's sales, however, running below 2,000,000 shares.

The reaction took place in the face of much ordinarily constructive developments as the decline of nearly $82,000,000 in broker loans, the lowering of the renewal rate on call money and the increase in the American Radiator dividend. In the absence of any unfavorable business news, the selling was described in brokerage circles as a further correction of a top-heavy speculative position. At today's closing prices, many of the popular industrials were selling 20 to 30 points below the years's high levels while many of the rails were down 10 to 20 points below the high prices established a few months ago.

U. S. Steel common broke from an early high of 130 3-8 to 124 3-4 and then ra. ed to 125 1-8, off 3 1-8 net. General Motors tumbled from 251 1-4 to 242 1-2, but snapped back to 244 1-2, off 7 1-8 net. Allied Chemical, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Case Thresher, Colorado Fuel, Commercial Solvents B, Dupont, General Asphalt, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Warner Pictures and White Sewing Machine preferred were among the many issues to sell down 3 or more points.

New lows for the year, or longer, were recorded by Electric Refrigerator, International Cement, American Tobacco B, Hudson Motors, Foundation Co. and Canada Dry Ginger Ale. Mack Trucks and Gulf States Steel sustained their previous maximum quotations, Timken Roller Bearing touched a new high, but failed to maintain its gain.

Selling pressure against the rails was not effective against such issues as Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and Missouri Pacific common.

Active wheat futures advanced nearly 2 cents on a broad demand with much of the buying ordered by reports of a better export demand. Cotton soared 5 to 9 points. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee quotations were marked up 30 to 47 points.

Banks were reported to have called about $20,000,000 in loans during the day, but the call money renewal rate of 4 1-2 per cent. was unchanged. Funds were reported to be available in the "outside market" as low as 4 per cent. time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Extended several of the 1926 high prices by the rising Norwegian and Japanese currencies again featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling closed slightly lower around $4.84 1-2, but French francs were firmer at around 3.92 cents and Belgian francs closed over 10 points to 3.92 1-2 cents. Italian lire were close to 4 3-4 cents. Japanese yen were quoted around 49 cents, and Norwegian kroner around 26 1-2 cents. SELECT "SAMUEL HUNTINGTON" FOR NAME OF NORWICH TOWN SCHOOL

By the choice made by the town school board at its meeting Tuesday evening in the school superintendent's office at the court house, the new school house to be built at Norwich Town will be called the Samuel Huntington school. The name honors the Norwich Town signer of the Declaration of Independence, who was governor of the state from 1786 to 1796.

The name was suggested by the Society of the Founders of Norwich and was proposed by Henry G. Peck and voted upon at the annual meeting of the society in June.

The town school board also had the name of "John Mason" suggested to it for the school, but "Samuel Huntington" was the choice.

The entire membership of the board was present at the meeting at which chairman Walter F. Lester presided.

Fellow Superintendent E. J. Graham reported upon his investigation regarding the petition for an eighth grade at the Bishop school. He did not recommend an eighth grade there and the board laid the matter in the table.

Resignations were received and accepted from Miss Alice M. McKnight, kindergarten teacher at Elizabeth St. school, and Miss Mary F. McIntyre, fourth grade teacher at the same school.

The board voted to close the schools for the afternoon on Armistice day.

It was reported that specifications for the new schools at Norwich Town will be ready about Oct. 25 and will be put out for bids.

The board organized for the year by re-electing Walter F. Lester as chairman and Judge Thomas J. Kelly as secretary. The standing committees were named as follows, chairman Lester being an ex-officio member of each committee; finance, J. C. Macpherson, chairman, Edward G. APPLE CROP IN STATE SHOWS GAIN THIS YEAR

Apples in Connecticut this year are in better condition on the ground than [illegible] at this time of the year, [illegible] eight per cent. better than in 1925, according to the New England crop reporting service of the [illegible] Statistician W. A. Rogers and U. D. Stevens of Worcester, Mass. The condition was on Sept. 1, 88 per cent. of normal, compared with 80 on Oct. 1, 1925, and the estimated production is [illegible] barrels against [illegible] The ten-year average of condition is 85 per cent. of normal. The ten-year average of production is [illegible] barrels.

Apples in New England as a whole are four per cent. of normal and consequently apples in this state are comparatively in far better shape than in New England. The production reported in New England is about 12 per cent. below that of 1925. Consequently the production estimated for Connecticut is a good bit better comparatively than for the six states. It is believed that native Connecticut apples will bring fair prices from November along. Apples from the west may be cheap. Except for this Connecticut apples would bring high figures.

SAYS PROHIBITION SHOULD BE THOROUGHLY TRIED

At the Sunday morning service at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster, preached upon the subject, The Prohibition Question Again as Related to Law Enforcement. His text was I Corinthians, 8:13, Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no meat while the world standeth.

In part he spoke as follows:

Any intelligent reference to the prohibition question today must recognize the American saloon in the background with its entanglements into the industrial and educational and social and political life of society. To combat its evil influences as a social center, about every remedy suggested by ingenuity and special interest has been tried; moral suasion, restrictions as to location and hours of sale and character of patrons, high license fees and government dispensary eliminating profit and third party political action—all have been tried and under all, the saloon and the liquor habit have branded themselves as persistent and defiant law breakers.

Following such repeated failures of restrictive legislation, American public opinion—some 100 years ago—culminated in the determination to outlaw the saloon and to pass drastic prohibition laws.

The southern and western states led in the movement. After most of the states had enacted state prohibition laws, national war time prohibition was declared as a conservation measure. Following this the state legislatures, with an eagerness which was remarkable and a unanimity which was amazing ratified the proposed 18th constitutional amendment which had already passed two successive congresses. No other amendment has ever been adopted after a half century of educational agitation, by such a close approach to unanimous judgment on the part of our law makers. Certainly the history of the 13th and 15th, and 19th amendments appears in startling contrast.

Realizing that this amendment was approved by [illegible] most of the country had [illegible] state prohibition and had lived under prohibition, it seems the part of [illegible] to say that [illegible] reflected the [illegible] of a great people [illegible]

20 KNOWN DEAD, SEVERAL HUNDREDS INJURED BY THE HURRICANE IN CUBA

Eight Were Killed by the Collapse of House—It is Feared That There Will Be Considerable Loss of Life Through Drowning—A Large Number of Steamers and Sailing Vessels Were Either Sunk or Damaged—Forty Fishing Boats Went to the Bottom—Streets of Havana are Clogged With Fallen Trees—Monument to the Battleship Maine Was Destroyed—Miami is Prepared For an Emergency, But the Storm is Reported to Have Veered Off Toward the Bahamas.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Cuba felt the blast of a West Indian hurricane today, and after six hours of terrific wind and raging seas Havana lies tonight in darkness, with a death list of not less than 20, her streets clogged with fallen trees and wreckage, part of the city under water and many buildings showing the devastating marks of the great storm.

The monument erected by the Cuban government in honor of the 266 Americans who lost their lives in the Battleship Maine which was sunk by an explosion in Havana harbor in 1898, was levelled. Only the base and the four bronze guns, relics of the battleship remain. The twin marble columns are fallen, and the American eagle which graced the top, was blown away and has not been found.

The destruction in Havana and Havana harbor was widespread. Many ships were sunk or badly damaged. The Bacon and national observatories were wrecked; oil and gasoline tanks were blown down; flimsy structures crumpled.

The sea rose many feet; in the lower part of the city the waters swept the second story of some of the houses. Trees fell, by the score; automobiles were hurled from one side of the street to the other and hurtled back and thither. With the great waves came showers of spray from the sea heavy with salt. All business was suspended; tramways ceased to function; few were hardy enough to go on the streets, and those who went did so at the peril of their lives.

What has happened in the outlying districts and the other provinces of Cuba is not known, as telegraph and cable communications are down.

With the storm moderated, rescue parties, comprising police, army and other government organizations went actively to work to clear the wreckage and carry help to those in distress. Apart from the dead and injured, numbered to be hundreds of injured, hospital alone reporting 100 up to this time.

MIAMI IS PREPARED FOR AN EMERGENCY

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 20.—(AP)—It was dark in Miami tonight as the city awaited the definite word of the path of the hurricane which was reported over Key West moving in a northeasterly direction. Weather Observer Gray said a shift of the winds may direct the storm east of Miami to the Bahamas.

Preparations for an emergency had been made.

Miami awaited in darkness tonight for word of the gale, all street lamps having been extinguished by the storm.

Business virtually was suspended in the afternoon following the issuance of advisory storm warnings. Numerous business houses were reported to have closed their doors and dismissed employes until the emergency passes. The streets were almost deserted.

The sound of innumerable hammers prevailed as cautionary measures were taken in boarding windows. Down town department stores planked plate glass windows and removed awnings. Shipping took heed of the recent hurricane experience and scurried to shelter in Miami river.

Every north bound train was crowded and the depot was filled with passengers anxious to out-distance the storm. The Dixie highway was jammed with automobiles headed northward.

Hundreds besieged the newspapers' offices and the weather bureau for the latest hurricane information.

The Red Cross at the request of Major Edward C. Romfh, placed all of its facilities in readiness to meet eventualities. A special train of 15 nurses, five doctors and a carload of medical supplies was in readiness to be sent wherever it might be needed.

The storm was expected to strike Miami about midnight, its present course indicated it may veer off eastward below Miami and proceed to the Bahamas.

PASSED KEY WEST AND HEADED FOR BAHAMAS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The hurricane centered near Key West, Fla., about noon tonight and headed off toward the Bahamas without causing material damage, Coast Guard headquarters were advised by the Key West station.

TILSON IS CONFIDENT OF REPUBLICAN SUCCESS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 20.—Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, majority leader of the house and eastern campaign director for the senatorial and congressional campaign here today that the present house will continue to be composed of a republican majority no matter whether President Coolidge runs again or not.

"It is too early to say whether President Coolidge will run again," the congressman declared. "He does not know himself. There is no doubt about it that he stands very strong among the business men of the country, notwithstanding propaganda recently emanating from Washington to the effect that he is slipping. My contact with thousands of leading business men of the country assures me that there is no foundation for this.

"The republican party was never stronger. Even in this time of prosperity it is not often a cold can be put bigger than a man's hand, such eruptions, such as the Ku Klux Klan and prohibition have set up now days in the air, and these have no bearing on the party whatsoever. There is every indication that the next president will be republican, and the next house will be more strongly republican than ever."

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Suspecting that Robert Sheehan, alleged gambler and narcotic addict recovering at St. Francis' hospital from a gunshot wound inflicted by a policeman, was receiving narcotics from an outside source, physicians at St. Francis' hospital called in the federal authorities with the result that Peter Drago, 43, of 136 State street, was arrested at the hospital tonight with a hypodermic syringe containing several doses of narcotic. Senator M[illegible] Name D[illegible] Into Inquiry

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, Klan Wizard, Quoted Before Congressional Committee.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Ku Klux Klan support of Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson, republicans, of Indiana, in their fight for re-election was testified totoday before the senate campaign funds committee.

Hugh P. Emmons, of South Bend, Indiana, a former exalted cyclops, declared he had been told by klan officials that Walter Bossert, of Indianapolis had been removed as grand dragon for Indiana, because he had refused "to go down the line" for Senator Watson in the present campaign.

Emmons also charged that W. Lee Smith, of Evansville, Indiana, appointed by Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, to succeed Bossert, had offered the witness $10,000 if he would support the Watson candidacy. Asserting that he had declined this proffer, Emmons charged that Smith told him that if he turned "traitor" he might "go down the line," reminding him that "the good die young."

The former Indiana klan official told the committee that he had been informed by Evans that the klan owed a debt to Senator Watson because he had been instrumental in the seating of Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas, described as one of "the best klansmen in the United States." The imperial wizard was quoted further as saying that Senator Watson had "gotten to" Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, with reference to the seating of Mayfield.

Relating that Evans visited South Bend shortly before the Indiana senatorial primary, Emmons declared that Evans had told him that if a big majority were given Watson, it might be that he would become a presidential candidate. The witness related that Evans had said that should Watson reach the white house he would appoint as ambassador to Mexico William Zambaco, formerly of Kansas City and now of Washington, who is general counsel for the klan.

Emmons, under continued, described Zumbaco as a person of great influence with United States senators and their wives.

"He wines and dines with them," Emmons said Evans had told him.

Emmons was on the stand for more than three hours. He detailed the organization of the Ku Klux Klan to Senator Reed and helped the senator to arrive at computations that with 4,000,000 membership in the United States, the annual income of the Klan would be $80,000,000. Senator Calvin Austin found from Portland, Maine, to New York, requested that the Klan be made in two rings and a necklace be taken from their settings and "thrown into the sea."

The will disposed of a large estate from which gifts to public and individual benefits alone total more than $100,000. Oberlin college at Oberlin, Ohio was bequeathed $25,000, Harvard college was given $20,000 and a collection of paintings, including works of Rosa Bonheur, Whistler and Pennell, was left to Williams college.

Professor Woods is professor of philosophy at Harvard and is mentioned in the will in connection with the request to Harvard, stipulating that Mrs. Woods' speciality was to be invested and the income employed by fellowship in the department of philosophy to be known as the "James H. Woods Fellowship."

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 20.—(AP)—The seventh arrest in the Hall-Mills case was made today when Mrs. Minnie Clark, member of the choir of the Church oof St. John the Evangelist in New Brunswick, was taken into custody on a warrant charging her with being an accessory before the fact.

Mrs. Hall is free in bail and the three men are held in Somerset county jail. All will be tried in the court of oyer and terminer November 3.

Felix Di Martini, a private detective of New York employed by Mrs. Hall four years ago, is held in Brooklyn for extradition as an assessory after the fact and William Phillips of New Brunswick is at liberty on bail as a material witness.

Mrs. Clark was arrested at her home in New Brunswick. She refused to leave on the plea she was suffering from a nervous breakdown, but detectives produced Dr. A. A. Lawton, who pronounced her in good physical condition.

Freeman Woodbridge, and George R. Merrison, attorneys for Mrs. Clark appeared before County Judge Frank L. Cleary and moved that the warrant be set aside and the charge quashed on the ground there had been no statement of fact, and that the arrest was made on supposition. Judge Cleary denied the motion and informed the lawyers that application for bail might be made before him tomorrow.

Mrs. Clark was said to have told Mrs. Hall of illicit relations between the minister and Mrs. Mills. She denied this as well as the reports that her aunt, Mrs. Mary Demarest, had testified before the grand jury that Mrs. Clark was concealing information.

EUGENE V. DEBS, 71, DIED LAST NIGHT

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—(AP)—Eugene V. Debs, outstanding apostle of socialism in the United States, died in a suburban sanitarium at 7:44 o'clock.

Mr. Debs would have been 71 years old had he lived until next November 5.

He suffered a nervous breakdown a month ago and retired to the sanitarium in which he died.

Because of his advanced years and heart disease, which had persisted virtually throughout his life, he offered but slight physical resistance when a turn for the worse occurred. Several weeks ago kidney disease developed as an added complication.

He lapsed into a profound coma last Saturday and failed to recover consciousness. It was his will to live which stayed death, said the attending physicians, who also remarked upon the period of coma as very unusual.

With the aged socialist leader at the end were his wife, Katherine, a brother, Theodore, and two sisters, Mrs. John Heinl, of Terre Haute, Ind., and Mrs. C. O. Mellioux, of New York.

PHILA. BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS INSOLVENT

Secretary of Banking Cameron Has Taken Possession of Six Associations—Action Caused by Embezzlements by Clark J. Wood, Treasurer of All Six Associations—Wood, Who Died Yesterday Near Philadelphia, Had Embezzled $90,000 of Their Funds.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20—(AP)—Close upon the announcement of the death last night of Clark J. Wood, the state banking department today took over six building and loan associations of Philadelphia with the statement that Wood, who was treasurer of all, of them, had embezzled about $90,000 of their funds.

Wood was president of the Penn Savings fund of Philadelphia at whose offices he conducted the business of the six associations. The savings fund concern is not under the supervision of the state banking department as it operates under a law which exempts it from state supervision. It still is doing business. State Secretary of Banking Cameron in a statement at Harrisburg said it was "rumored" some of its funds were embezzled by Wood.

Wood died at his home in Wayne, a suburb after an illness of three weeks. The cause of death was not made known but banking department officials said they had been given to understand that Wood, who was 72 years old, died of a stroke.

The six concerns taken over by the department are the Tradesmen's Building and Loan association No. 2, with liabilities of about $14,000; the Tradesmen's Building and Loan association No. 2, liabilities $12,500; the No. 3 Republic Building and Loan association, liabilities $15,000; the Assistance Building and Loan, liabilities $12,000; Artisans Building and Loan association, liabilities $117,000, and the State Mutual Savings Fund and Building association, of Philadelphia, liabilities $22,000.

The secretary of banking in his statement said that Wood's embezzlements were covered by means of the keeping of a separate set of records which were never shown to bank examiners or auditors who made regular audits of the associations.

WONDERS ACCOMPLISHED BY NEW CATHODE RAY TUBE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20—(AP)—A new cathode ray tube, which projects rays coming from an atomic and molecularly new light of a different color on the same spot, which has made many startling analyses of metals, and produced surprising results on gas, was officially announced here today by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, its inventor. He is assistant director of the research laboratory of the General Electric company. His announcement was made before the Franklin Institute which presented him with the Howard N. Potts medal.

Dr. Coolidge said he has not used the tubes' rays on humans nor has he found practical application for them. The tube apparently opens a whole field for electrical experiment and research.

An Associated Press representative witnessed a special demonstration of the rays in a darkened room as the tube poured its tongue's announcement. Dr. Coolidge said the tube produces many kinds of rays, the nature depending on the gas or material from which they come. The world's supply of helium, however, does not exceed one cubic foot, and at current prices a cost of $2,000, and at current prices a cost of $2,000, and at current prices a cost of $2,000, and at current prices a cost of $2,000, one hundred billion dollars.

The last named swimmer crossed channel over a course through 16 miles of water, 27 years and 11 minutes.

Miss Schoonmaker went into the water when she began her swim, weighing 144 pounds, when 7 was completed.

TESTIMONY FAVORABLE TO EVANGELIST M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson sought, through a witness in her conspiracy hearing here today, to dispel a breath of opprobrium cast over her name by the prosecution in connection with alleged visits of her former radio operator, Kenneth G. Ormiston, to the evangelist's room in the exclusive Ambassador hotel here.

Miss Florence Underwood, a nurse who attended a patient at the Ambassador last fall during the times the evangelist occupied room 350, testified she had never seen a man enter Mrs. McPherson's room. Miss Underwood stated she had known the evangelist "very intimately" for six years and that she visited frequently with her across the corridor at the hotel.

She said a man about five feet nine inches tall and of slight build had been employed to wax Miss Underwood's patient in and out of room 329, across from room 330, and in pursuance of this task had appeared near the evangelist's room about five times each day.

He said the deadliest known gases would be used. A force of 10,000 troops will be used, and they will be headed by Generals Obregon, Amaro and Manzo.

There are only 2,500 Yaquis in the field, as many of them have surrendered.

DOCUMENTS INTRODUCED IN THE MORSE TRIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)—Fletcher Dobyns, special assistant attorney general prosecuting the government's case in the Morse trials today read to the jury a photostat copy of the articles of return of the New York, Norfolk & Washington Steamship company, for 1911, which he said showed that the company had no income and was "not doing business," although capitalized at $10,000,000. The same amount was given as the value of "good will" assets of the company, which was a subsidiary concern of the Morse interests.

The document was signed by Harry E. Morse, as president, and N. H. Campbell, as treasurer of the company. Three sons of Charles W. Morse, and 14 other men are defendants in the trial, charged with conspiring to use the mails to defraud in the sale of stocks of the United States Steamship company and other steamship companies of the Morse interests.

Wrangling between prosecution and defense counsel again halted the trial for a period today when the government sought to introduce the names of persons to whom stock in the Morse companies had been issued. Judge Thacher, who is presiding at the trial, after listening to lengthy arguments, upheld the defense objection to the production of the stockholders' names until the government produces the original stock records themselves. The list of names which the government sought to introduce was compiled from the books of the Equitable Trust company.

FOREIGN POLICY SET BEFORE THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Oct. 20—(AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British's secretary of foreign affairs, set forth today before the premiers of the dominions and other delegates to the imperial conference, a review of Great Britain's foreign policy. Sir Austen's speech was delivered at a closed sitting of the conferees, and his statement is considered by them confidential, and has therefore not been made public.

An interesting feature of the session today was a message from King George in reply to the expressions of loyalty sent to him by the conference yesterday. The king said:

"I shall follow with interest and sympathy your discussions of those important questions which will come before you and the settlement of which I trust will promote the unity and greatness of the commonwealth of British nations."

Despite the existence of strong peace treaties, the questions of imperial defense is likely to provoke animated discussions at the conference. The Locarno treaty, which obligates Great Britain with the other signatories to guarantee the frontiers between France, Germany and Belgium, probably formed one of the subjects discussed by the British foreign secretary. This imposes no obligation on any of the British dominions, but nevertheless is opposed by some of the dominion delegates.

When called upon to take action in the matter of a collision between a horse-drawn vehicle driven by John Mathusek of South Chaplin and a Rickenbacker sedan, owned and driven by James Connell of Providence, R. I., the officials of the Chaplin town court decided that the case was not one for their hands but one which warranted civil action only. The wagon was hit from the rear on the Chaplin road by the automobile. Mathusek was thrown out but not injured. The Rickenbacker went partly down an embankment after the collision and damage of $100 was caused. The wagon was damaged to the extent of about $60. JEWETT CITY

A letter received from Mrs. J. R. Richardson from Jacksonville, Ill., tells of the experience they went through as a result of a flood. Her daughter, Miss Viva Richardson, accepted a position as piano instructor in the Woman's college and College of Music. They had only been there four days when a flood came and lights, gas and water were stopped. There were two cloudbursts. After the first one, the daughter started for the college. As she stepped from the curbing, she saw another flood coming. A man called to her to wait and he would help her. He got a car and took her home and then he was overtaken by the water and had to climb with others to a roof and spent the night there to be rescued in the morning. It was days before affairs got back to normal again.

OVER ONE HUNDRED TO ATTEND EVENING SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 20.—Over 100 applications have been received by Supt. W. E. Parker for attendance at an evening school in Danielson, assuring the establishment of such an opportunity to study as many who left school and are at work or otherwise engaged desire that they may better their knowledge of fundamental educational subjects.

People have flocked to the office of Supt. Parker the past three evenings to file applications to take a course of 20 weeks in an evening school. The great majority of these want to study English, learn more about arithmatic and reading and writing than they know at present. Their response has been gratifying to Supt. Parker and members of the town school committee. Some of the applicants desire bookkeeping and courses in stenography or typewriting, but the majority of them are looking for improvement in basic educational subjects.

It so happens that numbers of the prospects are residents of the town of Brooklyn, the eastern part of which is just across the Quinebaug bridge from Danielson. In view of the fact that Killingly and Brooklyn form a supervisory district under Supt. Parker it has not been difficult to obtain the approval of the Brooklyn town school committee to an agreement to share such expense of the evening school as will be entailed by having members thereof from the town of Brooklyn.

Now that it has been ascertained that there is sufficient demand for an evening school to warrant the establishment of one Killingly's school officials will proceed with the arrangements for its opening and for conducting it during the 20-week period that will cover the sessions into the coming spring.

ATTY. DARBIE REFUSES TO STOP OPPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 20.—Attorney E. L. Darbie is to have some opposition for the senatorship from the 28th district after all, not that he could not be rid of it if he so desired, but being a good battler, because he rather relishes it, Mrs. Dorothy Jones Bartlett of Putnam is to be a candidate against him. He was so informed from the office of the secretary of state at Hartford and said that if he wished to file a remonstrance against Mrs. Bartlett's candidacy he might do so, for her name arrived for printing on the ballots after the time for filing the names of nominees had long expired. Mr. Darbie said that he understood that Mrs. Bartlett's name as a candidate for senator from this district was received at the secretary's office after Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. Mrs. Bartlett's nomination at one time is questioning to speak but Attorney Darbie, who was speaker at the last house says he cannot be elected was his name is on the polls he does not desire to be on a technicality. In view of the attitude it is likely that Mrs. Bartlett's name will appear on the official ballots.

Attorney Darbie said he knows nothing about the history of how Mrs. Bartlett's name came to be sent in.

It will be recalled that the democrats of the 28th district held no senatorial convention this fall, consequently their chance to nominate a senatorial candidate formally went by default. The fact did not escape the attention of the republican organization of this district, and the failure was commented upon through the press of the district. Attorney Darbie's election was taken for granted. Now comes the unusually belated nomination of Mrs. Bartlett—a nomination which will be remonstrated against if so ordered, but he has no desire to press an issue wholly technical.

Brooklyn's town school committee has organized for the year with Joseph E. Stetson as chairman. The committee has named Harry E. Magnon to fill a vacancy caused by the removal from Putnam of J. Dyer Potter, now treasurer of the Cargill Trust company of Putnam. Mr. Magnon was named secretary-treasurer, a place that was being filled by Mr. Potter. While Daniel M. Havens, a member of the board, is likely to be absent from Brooklyn the greater part of the winter, he has not resigned his membership, as it was believed he had done earlier in the fall, this erroneous belief leading to interesting complications at and after the annual town election.

The presence the past few days at Brooklyn of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Mrs. Richard Derby and of the short visitation on Sunday of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt has given rise in Brooklyn to a rumor that the Roosevelt family is seeking to purchase a certain parcel of real estate not distant from the historic General Putnam inn, or the Mortlake House, as it is more familiarly known, an ancient structure facing the field where General Putnam left his plow to answer the colonial call to arms. The house on the property in which the Roosevelt family is said to be interested was built, it is reported, by one of Mrs. Roosevelt's ancestors, a Daniel Tyler, who was a prominent citizen of Brooklyn many years ago.

Of interest to all the communities hereabouts is the election by the Connecticut Savings Banks' association of Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank of Danielson as a member of its executive committee. This is an honor not generally conferred upon anyone who has been a bank treasurer for so short a term of years as Mr. Bard, and is indicative of the association's appreciation of his ability in financial and other matters.

Secretary Harold B. Atwood of the Danielson Rod and Gun club has mailed to members of the organization a communication embodying a letter recently sent out by J. W. Titcomb, superintendent of the Connecticut Fish and Game ecommission. In effect, this letter asks sportsmen to refrain from shooting partridge, ruffed grouse, during the present open season. This, the letter says, is entirely up to the sportsmen. They have a right to kill these birds at this particular time, but the number of partridge has been so greatly depeleted that it is regarded as an insurance against their extinction in Connecticut that hunters should pass them by this season.

This is the first year in three that the young ruffed grouse apparently have lived through the month of August in substantial numbers in the state of Connecticut, the letter sets forth. While the young birds seem to be healthy and vigorous, the breeding stock has been reduced to a dangerous minimum. In some sections of the state where partridge were plentiful three years ago, only a few remain. The loss was probably due to the so-called grouse disease, of which very little is known and which is being investigated by experts. It may be a periodical depletion of grouse by disease which is supposed to occur every ten years among grouse and rabbits. However this may be, hte fact remains that there is only a small fraction of the number of partridge in this state that were to be found three years ago.

In view of all these facts, the state fish and game commission is asking the hunters to exercise restraint and not shoot any partridge they may see. Toward the close of the hunting season the commission would like reports from hunters on the comparative abundance or scarcity of partridge in their particular hunting territory. The commission, having released large numbers of pheasants this year, requests that these be hunted in preference to partridge.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, is sending out notices of a special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange, No. 2, that is to be held on Saturday, Oct. 30, with Senexit grange of Woodstock instead of with Wolf Den grange of Abington, as shown in the yearly handbook. The session is to open at 11 a. m. and in the fifth degree only. The fifth degree is to be conferred. Following the degree there will be a recess period for dinner, this to be followed at 1:30 by an afternoon session. The lecturer's program has been arranged as follows: Chorus singing by the grange; address, Sayles B. Steere, past master Rhode Island State grange; piano solo, Dorothy Garfault, Providence; reading, Mrs. Orrie P. Anthony of Echo grange; baritone solo, Carl Feller of Senexit grange; address, Mrs. Nellie E. Blakeman of Oronoque, Conn.; vocal solo, Miss Ella L. Hall Quinnatisset grange; piano trio, Florence Gran, Sarah Healey and Julia Johnson of Senexit grange.

In spite of the inclement weather a fair sized congregation was out for the Sunday morning service at the Goodyear church. "The Advantage of Godliness" was the topic considered in the sermon from the text Psalm 3: 3: "He shall be like a tree planted by the river." Part of the choir being absent there was no special music.

The Goodyear Junior Boys' club held its first meeting of the season last Friday night. While there were only a few present it seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. During the coming winter the Junior and Senior Boys' clubs are to meet every other week alternately instead of meeting every week as was done last year.

Mrs. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear was at Bryant school, Dedham, Mass, last Friday and Saturday visiting her daughter, Lucile a member of the faculty of Dedham high school. She found Lucile pleasantly situated and very enthusiastic over the work of teaching. Mrs. Downs also visited Boston before returning home.

Harvest night was observed at Killingly grange Monday evening. Miss Helen Heath arranged the program with the following numbers given: Current Events, Howard Wood; vocal solo, Helen Keeth; humorous reading, Frank L. Bennett; vocal solo, Alice Jordan; talk, "How They Grow Things in the West," Mrs. Henry Heath; reading, Harriet Shippee; reading, Helen Heath; talk, "Something About Harvest," Walter G. Bruce; talk, "Farm Precedence," Charles E. Haines. Sayles' orchestra furnished some lively music for a dance at the close of the meeting.

SARAH B. BRADWAY, REAL DAUGHTER OF REVOLUTION, DIED IN HER 109TH YEAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 20—Mrs. Sarah Bosworth Bradway died this morning at her home in Eastford, shortly before six o'clock at the age of 108. She was born April 30, 1818.

Her death was not unexpected as she had taken no nourishment since Saturday and was almost in a state of coma. Her daughter, Mrs. Darwin Clark, who is in her 85th year and is herself a semi-invalid, visited her bedside several times during the night, found her breathing with apparently but little change in her condition. At 6 oclock when she bent over the bed she realized that death had occurred during the short time she had been out of the room.

Mrs. Bradway is probably the oldest Real Daughter of the Revolution in this section if not in the United States, as her father had fought in the Revolutionary war. In 1844 she was married to William Bradway who died in 1898. Five children were born to them, two of whom are living, Mrs. Clark, and Mrs. Bowen, wife of Aaron M. Bowen, for fifty years proprietor of the general store at Eastford and well known throughout the state. Among the grandchildren are George D. Clark and Mrs. A. W. Marcy of Putnam, Mrs. Maro Lewis and Mrs. Charles Clark of Eastford. There is one great grandchild, Keith Lewis of Eastford.

A few years ago Mrs. Bradway lost her sight and about a year ago the partial deafness from which she suffered became almost complete. Before that she had maintained an interest in passing affairs not only in her little townof Eastford where she had passed more than a century of life but in what was occurring throughout the country. She was justifiably proud of the fact that her father had been a Revolutionary soldier and had fought for his country's independence. She was a close observer of the happenings during the World war and afterwards. A year ago she began to lose interest in what was transpiring and never left her room and but seldom her bed.

During all of her long life she had been away from Eastford but a few times and then only for a day or two. She had never ridden in a train propelled by steam or electricity, had never ridden in an automobile or listened to a radio. Had it not been for deafness a radio set would have been put into her home two years ago.

Eastford is not on a railroad, never had a trolley line and not until a few months ago when improved highway conditions permitted, has there been a daily motor-bus service to the little town.

To a newspaper reporter who called on her on her birthday April 30, 1925, before she had lost interest in things around her, Mrs Bradway talked interestingly and intelligently. Although never in touch with the great changes that have taken place since her girlhood she was keenly aware of them, even to the fact that women wore their skirts and their hair short, that they smoked and on occasions, drank. In fact she retained a natural feminine vanity as she inquired of her daughter, before the reporter was admitted to her room, if she looked all right.

At that time she was able to get out of bed and dress herself unassisted. She apparently enjoyed the experience of being interviewed but she was not strong enough to answer questions except for a short period. Her daughter, Mrs Clark then in her 83d year, contributed some interesting facts about her.

"Mother eats three meals a day, she said, "and a luncheon at night. That is always light although she sometimes makes up on a piece of mince pie. She is very fond of mince pie and also prefers pie to cake. She also likes hot doughnuts and hot coffee. She never drinks cold water, her only cold drink being an occasional cup of tea, not iced but cold."

Asked if her mother ever went out of doors Mrs Clark replied: "Never, no storm thinks that freshair would hurt her. Even during this fine spring weather she will not permit the opening of the windows to let in fresh air. A few days ago I opened a window no more than the thickness of a knife blade. She at once noticed it and I had to close the window."

The house is heated by wood-burning stoves. There was one in Mrs Bradway's room and a fire was kept burning from early fall until late spring.

Her father was Allen Bosworth who enlisted on June 20, 1776, as a private in the company of Captain Stephen Lyon, which was one of the units of Col. John Chester's Connecticut regiment. He served in this command until October, 1778, and then became a member of Captain John Sumner's company, and when mustered out of the service in 1781 he was a private in Captain Benjamin Sumner's company. He was married twice and Mrs. Bradway was an offspring of the second marriage.

The reporter who visited her in April of last year commented as follows:

Mrs. Bradway was living when.

Napoleon was alive,

James Monroe was president of the United States,

Not a mile of railroad track in the United States and no trains, propelled by steam or otherwise, to run on them if there had been any tracks,

No steamboat to ply the waters of the Hudson,

No cotton gin in operation,

Three minutes was a record for mile heat in a horse race,

The Northwest territory had not been taken oer by America,

There were no sewing machines,

Only hand printing presses were in use,

Harvey had not discovered the circulation of the blood,

Flint-lock, muzzle-loading muskets the only ones in use,

Anaesthesia was unknown and major and minor operations were performed without the aid of any palliative and the patient had to stand it as best he could.

None of the great inventions that have come with the utilization of electricity, had come into use.

CHARLES G. MORRIS SAYS AUTOCRAT RULES STATE

DANIELSON, Oct. 20—(AP)—Charles G. Morris, democratic nominee for governor, speaking at a rally here tonight, attacked what he characterized as the "centralized, personal dominating government that J. Henry Roraback stands for and exemplifies."

"A few days ago," Mr. Morris said, "I had a message from an old time friend of mine. He has been prominent in his home town in republican politics but I believe that he is sincere in wishing for my success. The message was in effect, 'Knock J. Henry all you wish and you won't hurt anybody's feelings very badly, but if you knock the republican party you'll lose a lot of votes that otherwise you'd get.'

"Now, I'm not a politician in the ordinary sense of the word and I'm going to be free to say to you that I don't want your vote unless you want to and not merely Mr. Roraback as governor in fact, but the sort of government that Mr. Roraback stands for and exemplifies—centralized, personal, dominating government.

"Our tax burdens in Connecticut have been doubled in the last seven years under centralized republican government. And two years ago the republican state central committee under the boss of brass tacks in Connecticut finances dared to publish misleading figures to you showing only 15.8 per cent increase June, 1917, to 1922.

"Go to page 396 of the state registrar and manual for 1926and see whether you dare trust any other statement put out by that committee. The figures of state expenses from the state treasurer's report are printed in the registrar and manual and show over nine million in 1917 and over twenty million in 1932. Find the 15.8 per cent ratio between them yourself, if you can."

NO FREE TRADE FOR US

While the business of the manufacturing interests and industries generally calling for the removal of the tariff barriers which are standing in the way of the restoration of European foreign trade, it may be claimed that it is directed chiefly against the tariff walls of the European countries, but it cannot fail to be recognized that the desire is for world wide free trade. It will be noted that reference is made to the trade walls which the new countries have erected in Europe as the outstanding reasons for the industrial depression in Europe, but it is a fair assumption that eyes and thoughts of Europe are likewise turned to this country with full recognition of the great field that would be thrown open to European industry should the removal of the American tariff be accomplished.

That the misinformed public of the announcement at this time should occasion surprise is natural. President Coolidge promptly declares himself as opposed to any tariff slashing, to say nothing of tariff removal, and he well points out the effect that would be had upon this country if there was any such action.

What a field this would be for European industry, working long hours and on vastly different standards, if it were possible to flood this country with the products of foreign factories, thus undersselling American goods and shutting up our mills and factories. That would bring about a restoration of more than prewar industrial activity in Europe but it would also mean the wrecking of industrial activity in this country and away would prosperity go flocking.

This is a matter which is bound to come impressively to the attention of the voters just at this time. They know the effect of such a change and they know what would follow if those advocating tariff removal should get control. The mistaken idea of free trade has been revealed too often for an appeal to get much serious attention that calls for giving help to Europe, by throwing open our doors to whatever Europe can send here.

NORWAY'S PLEBISCITE

In connection with the demands for modification of the Volstead act and referendums on prohibition in this country, a vote of much significance has just been taken in Norway.

Less than a decade ago Norway was referred to as, "of all countries in Europe Norway is next to Finland, the one with the least amount of intoxicating liquor used." National prohibition was favored there by the royal family, cabinet members, the leader of the radical party, the union of Norwegian workmen and other influential persons and bodies. As far back as 1854 the country adoped local option. Since then unsatisfactory experiments have been made with publicly owned liquor stores. Seven years ago a law was passed prohibiting all beverages containing over 14 per cent. alcohol. Three years ago that percentage was raised to 21 and now by a vote of the people the majority believes that this restriction should be removed.

Norway has been having its troubles over the enforcement of the prohibition law. Premier Lykke has insisted that it was impossible and that the measure led to contempt and disregard of all laws, to extensive smuggling and lawlessness. Others have contended that prohibition should be maintained because since the trial it has been made manifest that only through the teaching of temperance could the abuse of alcohol for beverage purposes be eliminated.

Submitted to the people of Norway, they call for the ending of prohibition but all the communities are of that mind and it is possible that it will mean the return of Norway to local option, but apparently the experience with prohibition has not been satisfactory and a change is desired. With the desires of the people set forth Norway can be expected to wrestle with the new problem that will be necessary to meet the situation.

THE MIAMI DISASTER

Without attempting to give it a name, except by inference he would favor terming it the Miami disaster Colonel Peter O. Price, a director of the Florida chamber of commerce and a committee in the recent disaster, declares that whether state being called to account for the disaster or that what happened could have been foreseen and prevented. He does think that it should be made to appear that Florida when it concerned a section only 50 miles wide, which for the most part was "practically undeveloped wilderness. There is no part of Florida that the storm could have struck that is so undeveloped."

In the same way that the disasters at San Francisco, Chicago, and Johnstown were linked up respectively with those cities, rather than the states in which they are located he, with full justification, thinks the same should be done regarding what happened in Florida. It would serve to fix the locality of the havoc wrought by the hurricane instead of creating the impression that it covered the whole state of that Florida is not much larger than the devastated section, when as a matter of fact there are 58,000 square miles of territory in Florida and only 500 square miles in the area affected.

To overcome some of the inaccurate ones which have been sent out concerning the situation in Florida Colonel Price points out that while there are 7,000 to 18,000 people homeless due to the fact that during the so-called boom thousands of people from all portions of the United States flocked to southern Florida, most of them with nothing, many of them with very little. They knew nothing about Florida conditions, purchased land indiscriminately on the installment plan, constructed thereon small cheap houses and buildings, such ones as an ordinary rain storm would seriously damage. It is a gross injustice to claim that there are 18,000 families homeless. This he brands as absolutely unfounded and untrue.

Colonel Price is endeavoring to prevent Florida as a whole receiving a permanent and permanent harm and it can be appreciated that that is no more than any state under the circumstances might be concerned about.

LAW'S TECHNICALITIES

Repeatedly it has been insisted that the reason for so great a resort to lynching and mob rule was the delays occasioned by leaving proper punishment to the legal machinery.

In the state of Pennsylvania there is a case at the present time which well illustrates this. Over five months ago five armed men robbed a messenger of a bank and when a policeman attempted to capture them they shot him dead. Prompt work resulted in the capture of the men and for the good of all there were given an early trial with the result that four of the five were convicted and sentenced to death for murder.

That gave indication that Pennsylvania law was working as it should. But then technicalities began to be raised and advantage has been taken of the long time possible to file appeals and it would be a matter of 60 days before the case can be argued before the higher court. Inasmuch as the cases cannot be heard before the last of November there will be six months delay between conviction and the decision as to what their punishment shall be.

It gives such chances to escape the effects of the law that arouse ill feeling and resentment, and which in this instance prompts the district attorney to bring before the legislature of that state the need of revising the law so that such means of defeating the ends of justice may be eliminated and greater consideration given to the protection of the public than to convicted criminals.

It is a condition which does not exist in Pennsylvania alone but which deserves attention in whatever state it may found. It is such cases which convince the world of criminal methods that a law is supposed to nothing and that there is a premium for escaping justice.

EUGENE V. DEBS

During the past 30 years the name of Eugene V. Debs has been given more or less prominence locally because of his efforts in behalf of labor and socialism. He began his work as a young man as locomotive fireman, became a secretary, clerk, and then went back to the roundhouse, following which he had a brief experience in political office during which time he was active in labor circles and came into prominence by the conduct of a successful strike against the Great Northern railway. Later he was arrested because of charges of conspiracy made against him. He was acquitted but still took liberties with the law and soon after began serving time in jail for violating an injunction. Debs followed that by becoming more radical and embracing socialism, urging workers to use their shovels and our guns.

Debs appealed to those with a grievance, those with radical leanings and he was put forth five times as the socialist candidate for the presidency. His personality dominated the party and commanded the votes he received. But even in the later years he was no more disposed to obey the laws than in earlier days if they happened to be contrary to his views. That resulted in his conviction under the espionage law during the war and brought about his sentence to a federal prison which was followed by his admittance that he would do the same thing again.

Debs was a man of strong convictions, a strong leader and whose chief danger aside from fostering a spirit of lawlessness lay in encouraging those of radical tendencies to as great or even worse demonstrations than he made himself. He was a menace to orderly conditions and ruinously action but he remained firm to the end.

THE REVIVAL OF INTEREST

Miss Thompson had been principal of the Borwick high school for 15 years. She was the mainstay of the institution and "Big Sister" to all the pupils. Good health and a wholesome, hearty interest in her work had made her as dependable and necessary to all the school activities as "Pap," the faithful old janitor.

But she becae ill just three days before the glee club concert and she was their accompanist. Worse, the concert was to be broadcast and Alma Thompson had written home that if they tuned in at 8 p. m. on WWKL they would hear her play.

Friday morning came—that eventful concert day. And it meant more to Alma than usual, because it was her 40th birthday.

"I wonder if anyone knows it's my birthday," soliloquized Miss Thompson as she ate her breakfast alone in her room.

"It was 16 years ago today that Bill Porter gave me my first birthday flowers and they were the last, too," she added with a little sorrowful pout.

"I don't see why we quarreled. I'd rather be in a home with Bill today than playing for all the radios in the world."

And with that startling confession Miss Alma Thompson, principal of the Borwick high school, seemed relieved. Her orders had been to stay in bed until time to "listen in;" then she might go downstairs and hear her concert.

Eight o'clock came, the concert began, and the announcer's voice came clear.

"Borwick High School Glee Club. Prof. James Holland, director; Miss Keys, accompanist."

"I wonder what the folks will think," said Alma aloud.

"Where's Alma?" queried her folk some 500 miles away. And all through the captivating program Alma's father and mother wailed to hear their daughter's name.

The concert was finished, a complete success. The last number had more than fulfilled the promise on the program. The superintendent still thrilled with the success of the achievement, jumped to the platform and voiced his appreciation in unmistakable terms. He gave Prof. Holland his due, and he thanked Miss Keys for her splendid efforts and kindness in substituting.

"But," said he, "the greatest amount of praise belongs to one who is not here—to Miss Alma Thompson."

All was quiet. Even the listeners in sensed the calmness. He went on: "Because of a silent illness, Miss Thompson has not been able to accompany the glee club tonight. But this is the first time in 15 years that she has not been at her post. All these years she has insisted on assembly singing, leading it herself. She has instilled a desire to sing until we see the results tonight, a body of young voices that sings because it wants to sing, sings because it can't keep from singing."

Some 100 miles away Bill Porter was spending the night with friends.

"Ruth tells me the high school down home is broadcasting tonight," announced Ted at the supper table.

"That so?" asked Bill, interested at once.

"You used to be interested in that institution quite a bit, if I remember right," smiled Ted.

"Would be yet—if I thought I had half a chance."

They tuned in, but the announcer and program gave Bill no encouragement. It was a fine program, but why was some one else at the piano? Was Alma married? He was losing interest, but was still listening: "Alma Thompson—ill—to her belonged the praise—birthday 10 years ago and flowers." Bill was thoroughly awake again. He remembered he had given her flowers on her birthday, too, but only once.

Bill Porter had been sitting motionless, but the words sank in, every one.

"When's the next train for the city?" he asked.

"At 11:02; why?" asked Ted.

"By George! I'm going to Alma and it's more than a bunch of posies this time."—Detroit News.

NEW BOOKS

The Dead Ride Hard. By Louis Joseph Vance. Cloth, 304 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

The long list of books he has written make it evident that Louis Joseph Vance is not a budding author, and there will be quite as much eagerness to secure his latest book as has been manifested on previous occasions.

The Dead Ride Hard is a tale of adventure in Budapest in the days before the Red Terror was forced to give way to the White. The necessities of a king demand high risk, as the girl realized with every jolt of the car through the rain-scourged night. But Denise Vay, daughter of a line whose loyalty was as life hurled on to a sudden stop and a danger worse than death. For in the misty glow of a lantern, to feast for lawlessness of all Hungary, shrank from the gaze of a creature too base in his venomous wealth, ashen faced with the deformity of his spirit. It is the first score in the reckoning between the girl and a man who had once suffered her imperious scorn, the first count in a struggle that tears the emeralds of St. Stephen from their secret hiding place, puts the trust of the Vays to its final test, calls Andrew Brull, American, to the service of the lady he loves, and turns the tide of revolution for those who ride hard to their doom.

Not since the Lone Wolf has Mr Vance written a tale so athrill with excitement and terror, with swift, powerful characterizations and glamorous romance.

Carrots, Just a Little Boy. By Mrs Molesworth. Illustrated by Marion Oldham. Cloth, 171 pages, published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $1.50.

There never was a more lovable little boy than Carrots or a kinder Sister than Rose. Here is the story of their quaint childhood, the nursery jokes, their games on the beach, their visit to their kind auntie and beautiful cousin, Sibyl, their wonderful plans and joys and disappointments and even some of the stories they had read to them.

Carrots is itself an ideal story to read aloud because of Mrs. Molesworth's happy gift for selecting just the details that hold children breathless with interest in a quantity so often wanting in modern juveniles. It catches children, too, by sheer curiosity as to what boys and girls did or were expected to do a good many years ago. This is the loveliest edition of Carrots that has ever been issued. Miss Oldham's illustrations in their soft colors and chanoles of round cheeked children are attractive enough to frame. It is a most appealing volume of an a tractive series.

Eveli. By Johanna Spyri. Illustrated by Blanche Greer. Cloth, 272 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $1.50.

This is another of the Stories All Children Love series and most attractively presented.

It seems as though Madame Spyri must have had the power to look into the heart of youth, so well does she portray the thoughts and actions of the boys and girls in her stories. Herein lies the secret of her popularity.

The present collection of three little stories, Peppino, Eveli and The Stauffer Mill, are among the best that Madame Spyri has produced, but of the three it is hard to say which is the most pleasing. We are carried away at first by the tale of little Peppino, how he saved Helmina and her friend from harm, and how, as a result, sorrow came to him out of joy, and finally, joy out of sorrow. Next we are stirred by the touching story of little Eveli, so shy and so unhappy until little Beni came into her life and opened up to her a new world of bringing happiness to others, and most of all to the one who had treated her with contempt. And finally there is Jorli, whom adverse circumstances brought to the Stauffer mill, from which he was at first driven away and then brought back by the kind hearted wife of the mill owner.

Make the Most of Books

Weigh By Your Own Experience

Weigh and consider all you read in the light of your own experience. He is like the crowd when they are extremes and authors avoid boldness. Between all kinds, good and bad, there are many shades of true and false. We must value them for what they are, not for what they pretend to be, and, setting aside our own preconceptions and prejudices, be ourselves open to those who seriously and sincerely hold other views than ours.

The author does not make us feel what he feels and see what he sees. Some one of his readers does; many do not. We must form our own judgments and not be carried away by the opinion of others. We must be ourselves. A writer is a poor excuse for refusing to heed a crossing tender's warning resulting in the death of four at Medford, Mass.

Stories That Recall Others

Learning Quickly

Johnny is in his third year of school. He is just taking up the science of physiology in a moderate form. The other evening his mother asked him: "What did you study about today in your health class, Johnny?"

"We studied about our stomachs and intestaments," he solemnly replied.

Completely Reformed.

Johnny, aged three, received six downy chicks from a loving and well intentioned grandmother. His mother released them from the small box in which they came and went to look for something larger in which to put them.

Johnny was frantic over these downy cuties and after a few fearful approaches, picked one up. He felt the call of the wild and when his mother returned there were only five little chicks.

Mother explained Johnny's act in all its cruel phases, as many good mothers have done before to sons who have left the nest to choke a chicken. Son seemed duly impressed and was exceedingly kind to the remaining five until mother was called to the phone to discuss "a recent bridge party." When she returned three chickens had joined their ancestors. This had gone too far for mere talk and mother applied the age old remedy. It was a good hand and she laid it on freely.

Being his first acquaintance with a fervent spanking it was only by great effort that he was able to calm down in time to go to the table for lunch.

In walks the maid with one of the new double-decke dmilk bottles. Son was accustomed to this queer bottle, but with his shattered nerves it appeared in a new light and he broke into hysterical tears crying, "I won't have my milk bottle choked. I won't have my milk bottle choked. I won't have anything choked."

Dementia Praecox, a Growing Menace

By WM. ELLIOTT DOLD, M. D.,
New York City

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

To the layman, or even the general practitioner of medicine, the name "Dementia Praecox" conveys but little of the menace it provokes in the minds of specialists in diseases of the brain.

As the name suggests, this disease, in most cases, is an insanity of the early years, though a third or more of the cases met with are 25 years of age and upwards.

It has been estimated that 50 per cent or more of all the patients filling our state and private hospitals for the insane suffer from the disease now known as Dementia Praecox. It has been asserted by those who are trained in such statistical details that this disease costs the states of the Union more than any other form of illness.

Considerably over 15,000 of these praecox victims are admitted yearly to these institutions, and it has been truly designated as our "most insidious enemy."

Go into any country, and it will be found that this disease is present. Medical men all over the world are studying it and endeavoring to discover some mode of treatment that may ameliorate its distressing effects.

Surgical operations are resorted to and portions of the intestinal canal removed. There are treatment by glandular extracts, special diet, and re-education along various lines, especially in the arts and crafts department of many public and private institutions.

From personal experience I have become convinced that an enormous number of young people exhibit symptoms that cannot all be called evidences of absolute mental derangement; but these people are considered by relatives as "cranky" or eccentric. In the aggregate they compose an army. They are the "near-praecoxes" and fill the ranks of that undesirable body known by various names—tramps, hoboes, chronic loafers, often criminally inclined. To society this menace is as real as it is tragic.

Other diseases have been conquered and there is every reason to hope it will win an army of capable, earning workers, the same success may be obtained with Dementia Praecox. In the meantime, many hundreds in any large city of the country will be stricken every year.

Therefore, a word to the relatives, a hint to the family physician, to note among the young such things as lack of interest in school duties, lessened power of application, the tendency to seclusiveness, unusual and strange moods.

These subtle changes may seem too slight to seek aid from an specialist, but this is often of vital importance. The methods of treatment are steadily improving and much may be done to check the manifestations by experienced and judicious care.

Time isn't exactly money, but some people spend the just as foolishly as the other.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Navy Day

Mr. Editor: The Navy league of the United States has again obtained the approval of the president of the United States for celebrating Wednesday, October 27, 1926, the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, as Navy day. The purpose of Navy day is to bring the citizens of the country into intimate contact with their navy and to let them know its mission, condition, value, and needs. The Navy league feels confident—and we agree with them—that as the citizens' knowledge of their navy increases so will their determination to keep their vital first line of defense at a proper standard.

In order to further this desired acquaintanceship of all the naval stations and vessels of the United States will be "at home" to the people on Navy day. Like all hosts we hope for many visitors.

This base—the only naval station in Connecticut—will be open to visitors from 9.00 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, October 27, 1926. Boats will run from the city landing near the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad station New London to the base every half hour while the base is open to visitors.

Every mother knows that her children love the delicious fruity taste of "California Fig Syrup." And that's because they know that this is the best way to clean the little stomach, liver and bowels when cross, feverish, constipated, breath is bad, stomach sour, tongue coated, or little one has a sick headache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic or stomach-ache, due to the constipated, undigested food and sour bile. A teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative" and in a few hours you have your child's stomach, liver and bowels sweetened, purified and working right again. And a few hours later you can see for yourself how thoroughly it has worked—how all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat, stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy because they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, sold by "California Fig Syrup Company."

The Great Procession

Did you ever happen to think, when dark
Lights up the lamps outside the pane,
And you look through the glass on that wonderland
Where the witches are making their tea in the rain,
Of the great procession that says its prayers
All the world over, and climbs the stairs,
And goes to a wonderland of dreams,

All the world over at eight o'clock,
Sad and sorrowful, glad and gay,
These with their eyes as bright as dawn,
Those almost asleep on the way,
This one capering, that one cross,
Plaited tresses, or curling floss,
Slowly the long procession streams
Up to the wonderland of dreams.

Far in the islands of the sea
The great procession takes up its way,
Where, throwing their faded flower-wreaths down,
Little savages life of their play;
Though they have no stairs to climb at all,
And go to sleep wherever they fall,
By the sea's soft song and the stars' soft gleams,
They are off to the wonderland of dreams.

In a Library

In that great, silent room
Lined on all sides with books,
The sunshine filtering through old, leaded glass.
They did not notice my half-hushed despair
At the dear beckoning sight
Of that wide world of books;
They did not see my eager, wondering looks;
They only thought that I must wait somewhere
Within countless treasures that called out to me.
In friendly greeting, so persistently
That I reached forward. How could I choose Among so many? After a long while
I finally ran had out and took
A dearly cherished book
And perched myself and because the very lines
Seemed so heavily in deep, firm blue
Were ones I loved and treasured too!

"Were we so very long?" my three friends said.
I looked about the dear, low-vaulted room.
I heard at the well-thumbed book upon my lap.
And shook my head.

It is believed that the saddle and the boy's rubber-soled shoes acted as insulators and saved him from death.

France has just learned that it may possess the dean of all women swimmers. Madame Cuvelier Despres, in taking out her ticket for the municipal swimming baths at Tourcoing, a busy manufacturing town in northern France, gave her age as 87 and the date of her birth as August 12, 1839. Madame Despres belongs to the swimming profession. Her father was a swimming teacher, and she learned from him at the age of four. Her husband received several medals for saving life from drowning.

The setting up of a women's international police commission was due primarily to efforts of Commandant Allen.

PROSPECTS FOR MORE THAN 5,000 IN ARMISTICE DAY PARADE HERE

Preparations have proceeded so far for the Armistice day parade and so many responses have been received from organizations that will participate that the committee can at present see 5,000 or more in line, according to a statement made Wednesday night by Arthur E. Story who is chairman of the parade committee.

Already 47 units can be counted upon to be in line and there is every indication that the parade will be larger than the parade of two years ago and it will certainly be more colorful on account of the various organizations which will participate. Governor Trumbull and his entire staff, Putnam Phalanx with its distinctive costume, Sphinx Shrine patrol of Hartford, with 120 men in line, the Knights Templar of both Norwich and New London, who will be in full regalia and numerous other fraternal orders that will make the parade a dress occasion insure a spectacle that will be worthy of the day and will bring thousands of visitors to the city on Armistice day.

There will be at least 15 bands, besides drum corps, in line, and it is planned that floats shall be one of the features of the parade. It is hoped that the number will run up to 35. Already a number have been decided upon and the committee has announced that it will be their request that the floats generally shall depict the signing of the Declaration of Independence and kindred subject, except such as the World war veterans and their auxiliaries want to use as appropriate to their own particular period and relation to the celebration. Within a short time the committee is to issue suggestions applying to the kind of floats that they will deem suitable for the parade.

The parade hour has been set for 2 o'clock in the afternoon and Major Charles A. Hagberg is to be marshal. A reviewing stand is to be erected in Franklin square where Governor Trumbull will review the parade with his staff.

The committee has been met everywhere with the greatest enthusiasm by those planning to take part in the parade and feels greatly indebted to fraternal organizations and other societies for the cooperation which they are giving toward making the day the biggest event that Norwich has known for a long time.

RUSSIAN CHOIR PROGRAMME ENTHUSIASTICALLY APPLAUDED

An unusual musical evening was enjoyed Wednesday at Slater hall by a large audience that gave enthusiastic applause to the Russian Symphonic choir, a colorfully costumed group of ten women and eleven men, with Basil Kibalchich as conductor. All the selections were given without instrumental accompaniment and the ensemble displayed at all times notably fine intonation and shadings, singing with spirit and expressiveness that made their programme a delight.

In a group of seven selections of sacred music that opened the programme, special recognition was given to Credo (Gretchaninoff), with alto solo by Mlle Angelova, and the concluding number of the group, Ave Maria (Lvovsky) which was repeated in response to the call for an encore.

The second group included seven classical numbers in which an especially interesting number was Andante Cantabile from Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 which was given with a humming accompaniment simulating an orchestra.

A group of seven folk songs concluded the programme, this part opening with a fine rendering of Song To the Hills (Woodford-Finden), which was sung in English and closed with a Czechoslovakian dance song which was given with vivid color and spirit. A Lullaby (Ladov) sung by the women of the choir was a very acceptable number and Soldier Marching Song, given by the men only, was warmly received.

SAY WATERS WORDS SHOW DEMOCRATIC DISAGREEMENT

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—The republican state central committee issued the following statement today:

We have read the particular obsolete statement of the Democratic candidate for Governor in question. Passing by the most glaring, which seems to be an integral part of all recent democratic statements, we find him quoted as saying this:

"In only the last three years we have had a former State Treasurer Gilpatric charged, found guilty and sentenced to Atlanta for robbing the Farmington bank, and it is hard to believe that the funds of the state did not suffer in like manner."

Two years ago, when he was a candidate for governor, the present Democratic gubernatorial candidate made a similar statement.

A special investigating committee was appointed in the Gilpatric case by Governor Trumbull to check the report of the accountants, who "found no evidence of misappropriation of the funds of the state," and transmit their report to the governor. On this committee was Ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, Morgan B. Brainard and Charles G. Morris. Mr. Morris acted as secretary of the committee and submitted his signed report for the committee, dated June 9, 1926, which stated: "The committee has examined the report with care and approves the findings of the accountants."

The apparent lack of confidence which these prominent democrats have in each other is decidedly humorous. Evidently Candidate Waters is not impressed by the signed statement of Candidate Morris in the Gilpatric matter. If the unexpected should happen, and the democrat candidate for governor should be elected, undoubtedly Mr. Waters would insist upon personally checking the written statements of Mr. Morris. From his outburst, we assume it would be his idea of protecting the interests of accuracy.

We suggest that the democratic candidate get together and present such contradictions as this. They must be embarrassing.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY PARTY WAS ENJOYABLE EVENT

Maria was the recipient of many gifts.

TWO APPEALS HEARD IN SUPREME COURT

Two appealed cases were argued here Tuesday morning before the supreme court, which adjourned without day after the business had been concluded. Chief Justice George W. Wheeler presided and prayer was offered by Rev. J. Eldred Brown when court opened at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The cases argued were defendant's appeal in Benjamin A. Armstrong et al vs. Antonio Leverone of New London, involving the right to use property at Ocean Beach for commercial purposes, and the defendant's appeal in Mr. and Mrs. Onni M. Petroman vs. Otto Anderson, both of Ashwillet, in the town of Griswold. The appeal is from a verdict of $264 for some wood that was cut.

Four cases were transferred to the first district at Hartford for hearing in January, one case was withdrawn and one was continued to the next term of court.

There are some things that are better said than done, but lovemaking isn't one of them.

CHRIST'S HUMAN BODY THE CHURCH, SAYS PREACHER

The ushers at St. Patrick's church estimate the average of the evening congregations this week at between fifteen and sixteen hundred men, women and older children. This attendance is supplemented by a considerable number at the morning masses at 7 and 8 o'clock. There is no diminution of interest in the novena in honor of St. Therese, but, the fervor grows as the days go on.

The ideals which exalt and inspire the church body were well set forth at the exercises Tuesday evening, when the mission father, Rev. M. A. Kelly, of Philadelphia announced his text—"I believe in the holy Catholic Church."

He took up those words which so many in these days use to conjure with —especially the word "mysticism" and gently riddled the stock arguments of the psychologists and the hazy theories of the great general public that there is something about salvation essentially which exempts itself from ordinary rules.

The Roman Catholic church is the outcome of the mastery of the Incarnation. The sole way in which mere man can attain to spiritual perfection on earth is in and by and through this body, he said, founded by the Son of God, for man's salvation and sanctification. It is the human body of Christ remaining in spite of Judases and Herods and Pilates, and the soldiers and men which gamble for Christ's garments. It has risen from ten thousand deaths, is firmer with each new year in its unchanging coherence to the principles laid down by its founder, Jesus Christ.

The missionary had a long list of petitions to read out, which had been placed in the receptacle at the statue of St. Therese, to be submitted to the members of the congregation for their pious prayers:—19 for financial aid or help; 1 for the return of a wandering boy; 91 for restoration to health; 6 for work; 4 for increased business prosperity; 21 for new positions or improvement in present ones; 7 for vocations in life; 15 for conversions, or a return to the sacraments; 4 for the holy souls, 21 for the grace of a happy death; 8 for unison in the [illegible] families; 1 for God's idea for [illegible] on a coming marriage; 9 for help in studies; 1 for a safe journey; 2 for pardons; 1 for "reconciliation; 1 for help in a certain temptation; 57 for special intentions not definitely stated, and 1 for a special favor.

Wednesday evening's sermon demonstrated in an especial way the surprising analytical power which characterizes Father Kelly's exposition of a subject. His text was "Child, Give Me Thy Heart." There is neither need nor reason, for any Christian seeking to follow literally any saint, since every human soul is destined to have its own particular spiritual experience. Likewise there is endless room on the road of the following of Christ and it is not given to any two souls to have exactly the same experience in traversing that road. Through the beneficence of God, His grace elevates, refines, enlightens and sanctifies each soul; but the fundamental handiwork of God is always left identical with itself.

Each of the saints man reverently accomplished the holy will of God as manifested to the worlds need, in a measure in which it was given to each in imitating the sainted in all of its traits, the salient fact stands out that the one way to holiness—to be a saint on earth—lies in the imitation of Christ.

As Therese offered daily sacrifices as blossoms in the pot of her holy soul, each and all can grow to perfection by the making of every temptation, every pain, each disappointment in life, the frustration of ideals, the loneliness, the weariness of soul and body, misunderstandings, sacrifices, in the spirit of St. Therese, which may prove as roses before the feet of our Redeemer. The humblest, the poorest, the most obscure, can, through cheerful acceptance of such little daily sacrifices make the best answer to the appeal of Christ, "My child, give Me thy heart."

In the Rosary and prayers, Rev. John J. Reilly led for the evening, also pray benediction. The chorus and choir did excellent work under direction of Mr. LaFontaine.

The missionary announced that the parish children were to meet him at 4 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon for instruction, then at the same hour Friday are to go to confession, receiving communion Saturday at the 8 o'clock mass.

A long list of petitions for prayers and intercession was submitted; one of these was for a happy ending of the troubles of the church in Mexico.

During the afternoon and evening, Tuesday and Wednesday, the mission father heard hundreds of confessions, also conferred with a number who sought his advice in spiritual perplexities.

SHOWS CONTRASTS BETWEEN CONNECTICUT AND DAKOTAS

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Oct. 20—Speaking before the Republican Women's club of Hartford at a republican rally held in the Hotel Bond, tonight, United States Senator Hiram Bingham discussed federal aid as applied to Connecticut. Incidentally, he called attention to the fact that Congressman Oldfield of Arkansas was bitterly opposed to protective tariff.

"The wheat states of North and South Dakota," said Senator Bingham, "have been notably unwilling to follow the president's lead in matters of taxation. In fact it is my impression that the senators from North Dakota have constantly voted against everything which this administration was particularly interested in. On the other hand they are very keen about federal aid, not only as regards roads, but also as regards cooperative agricultural work, vocational education and the maternity and infancy doles. They look with distress and dislike on the attitude taken by Connecticut. Let us see if this is fair.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925 for every dollar of taxes paid to the federal government by the people of Connecticut we received back in federal aid payments .028. The state of North Dakota for every dollar paid to the federal government in taxes received back in federal aid $1.17. Furthermore, each of these states got more federal aid in total amount than did Connecticut, yet Connecticut contributed in federal tax payments thirty times as much as South Dakota and forty times as much as North Dakota. Let those who are in favor of federal aid projects think on these things.

"Connecticut is one of the fourteen states that receive back less than five cents in federal aid for every dollar paid in federal taxes. North Dakota is one of the five states which receive back actually more in federal aid than they pay into the federal treasury in taxes.

"Congressman Oldfield of Arkansas is one of those most bitterly opposed to a protective tariff and most eagerly engaged in attacking this bulwark of our prosperity. Congressman Jeffers of Alabama is another who has recently attacked the prosperity of Connecticut and the protective tariff which favors it. Both of these congressmen come from states which belong to a group of thirteen states which receive [illegible] more than 27 in federal aid for [illegible] put into the treasury. M'MAHON TO SELL HIS MANAGERIAL RIGHTS IN KAPLAN TO BILLY GIBSON

MERIDEN, Oct. 20—(AP)—Denny McMahon, of this city, manager of Louis (Kid) Kaplan since 1920, will sell his managerial rights in the affairs of the retired featherweight champion of the world to Billy Gibson, pilot of Gene Tunney, heavyweight titleholder, it was learned here tonight. The transaction will be completed in New York, Friday.

McMahon assigned no other reason for the move other than that he was not satisfied with the number of bouts Kaplan has been able to obtain during the last year. A splintered left thumb, injured in Kaplan's bout with Tommy Cello last August, has kept the former champion idle since then.

Under Gibson, McMahon believes, Kaplan will have his way to the top of the lightweight division, which he entered last August, when he found he no longer could make the featherweight limit of 126 pounds.

Although Kaplan has been ready for the bell for the last month, McMahon has found it practically impossible to arrange suitable matches in the Connecticut opening.

Danny Has a Neighbor

Be neighborly; in many ways
You'll find that neighborliness pays.
—Old Mother Nature.

The great storm didn't last long. Storms of that kind seldom do. But while it did last it was a bad storm, a very bad storm. Danny remained in the broken piece of hollow stub where he had found shelter. He remained until jolly round, bright Mr. Sun came out again. Then he poked his head out to look around. Almost the first thing he saw was one of Johnny Chuck's relatives. It was a young Chuck and he was poking about among the fallen branches and pieces of the old tree, and he was grumbling.

"Now I suppose I've got to go and dig a new hole," he grumbled. "Yes, sir, I've got to dig a new hall down to my bedroom. When this tree blew over the entrance to my old home tore things up around here. I don't know but it would be better to dig a new home altogether."

"Excuse me," said Danny most politely in his best squeaky voice, "this litely storm was quite severe, wasn't it?" The Chuck looked at Danny. "You might call it that," said he.

"Do you live here?" inquired Danny.

"I did live here," replied the Chuck. "The entrance to my home was right under this tree. Now, everything is so torn up I don't know whether I shall live here or not. Why do you come from?"

"I don't come from anywhere," replied Danny. "My home is in the Old Pasture and I'm looking for a new one. I'm looking for a place to live."

"The Old Pasture, eh?" said the Chuck and chuckled. "I've lived in the Old Pasture all my life and I've never seen anyone who looked like you. Are you a Rabbit?"

Danny shook his head. "No, I'm not a Rabbit," said he. "I'm a Meadow Mouse." Then he looked at the Chuck suspiciously. "Are you trying to get me to stay so you can have me for a meal?" he inquired.

The Chuck looked at Danny again. "Land sakes, no!" said he. "I'm a vegetarian. I wouldn't eat you for anything. Why don't you stay around here? There's plenty of room for you and me and the rest of the family. There's room for a whole lot more, and I'll take it as a favor if you will."

Danny looked around. He could make a nice home in a piece of the fallen tree. It would be rather pleasant to stay where there were people. He looked at the Chuck. "Are you sure you want me to stay?" he inquired. "Don't you want to drive me away?"

"Certainly not," replied the Chuck. "I'll be glad to have you stay. I'll be real neighborly. I'll help you dig a new hole. I'll help you get settled. I'll be glad to have you stay."

That brought her to the attention of the police, who found her very scantily clad. She couldn't have gone abroad without risking prosecution in that garb. In court she admitted that she was drunk, but denied that she had in any way disturbed the peace of people who might be near her. There wasn't any chopping after that for Connell was hustled off to a cell in [illegible] the court this morning that he drank two bottles of beer and said they didn't have the slightest kick in them. How that could be under the circumstances Judge Brinsmade didn't quite comprehend, so he ordered that Connell be committed to jail for twenty days, but on the promise of Patrick to abstain from drink the judge suspended the execution of the sentence.

James Mack, 2 Starr street, was at the S. P. Learned mission lodging house, North Bank street, last night and fell down a flight of stairs. It was believed that Mack had sustained serious injury and Thomas Cornell, janitor of the lodging house, notified the police of Mack's mishap. An officer was sent to the lodging house and returned to police headquarters with Mack. An examination revealed that Mack had received injuries no more serious than bruises.

TUGGING AT BEDCLOTHES BURGLAR WAKES WOMAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20—Morris Mallove, Bank street jeweler, residing at 33 Tilley street, reported to the police this afternoon that an attempt was made early this morning to burglarize his home.

About 2:30 o'clock the would-be burglar went to one of the bed-room windows, which was open and endeavored to enter the house. The bed, which was occupied by Mrs. Mallove, was against the sill and as the crook reached through the window to pull himself through, he grabbed the bedclothing. The tugging on the bedclothing aroused Mrs. Mallove, who leaped from bed and rushed to an adjoining room occupied by her husband. The crook meantime retreated to Tilley St., and disappeared in the darkness. Mallove did not make a report of the attempted burglary then, retiring and he waited until 5:30 o'clock this afternoon before going to police headquarters and supplying Desk Sergeant Timothy Sullivan with the facts in the case.

ANOTHER MURDER WITNESS REPORTS TO POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20—Max Hillsberg, 20 Denison avenue, employed by P. Adel, Bank street fruit and produce merchant, who witnessed the slaying of Mrs. Rose Fella, wife of Fortunato Fella by the husband in front of the Adel store Monday afternoon, made complaint to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky this morning, alleging that Patrolman John Sullivan had used vile language to him and had threatened him with arrest on a perjury charge in connection with the murder of Mrs. Fella. It is understood that the complaint will be dropped, as the trouble was nothing more or less than a personal argument between the officer and Hillsberg. The argument is said to have taken place when Sullivan entered the Adel store and remonstrated with Hillsberg because of the alleged act of the latter circulating a story that it was Hillsberg that captured Fella and not Officer Sullivan. The officer is alleged to have used harsh language to Hillsberg, which fact prompted the complaint. Vincent Goode, chief petty officer aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell, another witness of the murder, went to police headquarters this evening and informed Desk Sergt. Timothy Sullivan that he saw Fella make the murderous attack upon Mrs. Fella who saw Fella disappear through an alley and emerge on Howard street, near Woodbridge, where Sullivan and not Hillsberg seized the murderer.

Thomas J. Shaughnessy, seaman on the U. S. S. Bushnell, went to the police station this afternoon and made complaint that a gold watch belonging to him had been stolen. Officer Ernest Opperman visited the pawnshops, but did not find any trace of the watch.

Carl Larson, 109 Willetts avenue, made complaint to the police this evening, charging evasion of responsibility when an unidentified automobile struck an auto belonging to Larson and then fled. Larson stated that he had left his automobile parked in front of his residence and about 6.30 o'clock the unidentified automobile crashed into Larson's car, demolishing a wheel and crushing the gasoline tank. The driver could not be found. Witnesses of the crash gave conflicting registration of the automobile.

The new board of registration has completed its session for the purpose of making voters and as a result of the series of two meetings there were added to the city's voting list, the names of 257 voters. These voters will be qualified to vote at the state election next month.

Clifford Robinson of Oxford, and Miss Marion Daboll, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Ezra Daboll, 25 Mahan street, were married yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Spalding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at the church parlors. Wilfred Dupre was best man and Mrs. John Perry, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mr. Robinson is employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Arthur S. Vogan, member of the crew of the submarine V-1, and Miss Hilda Thibeault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thibeault, Benham road, Groton were married at Sacred Heart church, Groton, Monday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William J. Fox, pastor of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Thibeault attended the couple.

Walter T. Murphy, president of the Walter T. Murphy Amusement company and manager of the Lyceum, Crown and Capitol theatres, surprised his friends yesterday by becoming a benedict. His bride is Miss Lena B. Arnold, New York vaudeville actress, who has long appeared on the Keith Circuit. The marriage was performed in the municipal building, New York yesterday afternoon and the couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. James Sneedy, New York and Miss Dorothy Mack, a member of Miss Arnold's musical revue. Miss Arnold has given up theatricals and following her marriage her revue, "The Village Girl" disbanded. Mr. Murphy is the son of Mrs. Margaret A. and the late John Murphy, and made his home with his mother on Starr street.

BADLY BEATEN WHILE WALKING ON CITY STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20—James Romano, about 24, residing at 18 Belden court, was murderously assaulted this evening by Joseph Michell, Jefferson avenue, when the latter found Romano in company with Michell's daughter, Miss Mary Michell. It was at first believed that Romano was fatally injured, but it is now thought that he will recover. Michell was not arrested for he succeeded in hiding himself away although the police have made a systematic search for him. He did not return to his home after the attack upon Romano.

Romano and Miss Michell were on Montauk avenue about 7 o'clock and when in front of Naumeag school Michell came up behind the couple and with a club that he held, struck Romano one or more blows close to the base of the skull and upon the neck. Romano was rendered unconscious for he dropped to the sidewalk. Upon regaining consciousness, Romano went to his home and in a dazed condition incoherently related what had occurred. The police were notified and a physician was summoned, the latter treating Romano after it was decided his case was not of sufficient gravity to send him to a hospital. After the physician had departed from the Romano house, the young man suffered hemorrhages from the nostrils and ears and another physician was summoned. Romano again being prescribed for. Neither physician was of the opinion that Romano's injuries would become fatal.

"Im not very well satisfied with that parrot you sold me," said the customer.

"What's the trouble, lady?"

"You said it was a good talker and it never utters a word unless I give it half a dozen crackers."

"That's it, lady. I forgot to mention that the parrot is a politician after-dinner speaker."—Boston Transcript.

Palace Theater

Hobart Bos Bosworth was born and educated in Marietta, Ohio, later moving to San Francisco. In 1885 he joined the McKee-Rankin stock company at the California theater, and at the age of 20 played Macbeth. On the stage he played opposite Julia Marlowe, Amelia Bingham, Mrs. Fiske, and many others, retiring in 1900 and seeking the wilds to regain health lost through over work. In 1909 he entered pictures, acting, writing and directing his own Hobart Bosworth productions. He is probably best remembered for his role of The Sea Wolf, roles in Joan the Woman, Behind the Door, Below the Surface, The Cup of Life, and The Eternal Three. He now plays the role of John Gilbert's father in, The Big Parade, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which comes to the Palace theater on October 25th.

It was directed by King Vidor from Captain Laurence Stalling's story of America's world crisis.

Harry Langdon opens today in his latest feature comedy The Strong Man that has been hailed with delight by the New York critics as the finest comedy yet produced. The critics were unanimous in declaring that Langdon had definitely arrived in the first rank of comedy kings. Florence Comstock eminent critic said, "Harry Langdon deserves the crown of clowns, for the first time in the history of the movies Chaplin has a real rival in creating comedy that is artistic as well as funny. Langdon is a genius and after seeing The Strong Man I wondered if indeed he had not outstripped the best work of the cane-twirling Chaplin." The Strong Man is screamingly funny and the star is supported by a great cast including Priscilla Bonner, Gertrude Astor, William V. Mong and Robert McKim. Of equal importance is the other feature of this big double bill Rose of the World, the screen version of Kathleen Norris' splendid story with a distinguished cast including Patsy Ruth Miller, Allan Forest, Pauline Garon, Rockcliffe Fellowes and Alec Francis, one of the most powerful romances ever screened depicting the color and drama in the everyday problems of real people. The added attractions include Gene Tunney in the seventh chapter of his exciting adventure serial The Fighting Marine and the Palace Topical Events with news of the world today, with fine musical accompaniment by Walter Lang and his Palace concert orchestra, taken as a whole, just about as fine entertainment as one could give anywhere.

If Emma Goldman, anarchist once deported from the United States, desires to return as she has indicated to correspondents, she will have to apply to some American port of entry, immigration officials said yesterday.

Investment Merits

Broadway Theater

No greater aggregation of Keith-Albee vaudeville stars has ever before appeared in Norwich, than the five acts which open at the Broadway theater today.

The management's autumn special bill met with a decided stamp of approval the first of this week and it can easily be predicted that this new special fall bill will meet with ever greater response from lovers of real, good entertainment. The five feature acts will be found in the theater ad in this paper today. A single reading will convince that it is one show that should not be missed.

Big scenes that thunder across the screen in majestic succession; a broad, warm, human story with wide-spread appeal, brilliant direction and the superb interpretation given to the leading role by Ralph Lewis combine to make The Last Edition, a melodrama of intense interest. The picture is the latest production of Emory Johnson's maker of The Third Alarm. In the Name of the Law, Westbound Limited and other outstanding successes; and it will prove at every presentation at the Broadway theater opening today that the popularity of this type of entertainment never wanes. As its name would suggest, The Last Edition is a newspaper story; but contrary to the usual run of newspaper stories it gets right down into the "guts" of a big newspaper plant and deals not so much with the bright young reporter as with the drama that floods the life of an obscure foreman of the press room.

Breed Theatre

"The typical American."

This was the title bestowed upon Eugene O'Brien by Dimitri Buchowetzki, celebrated European director, in choosing O'Brien for the leading role in "Graustark," Norma Talmadge's new starring production made by Joseph M. Schenck for First National. As Grenfall Loggy, young American adventurer, O'Brien has a typical role in McCutcheon's charming old-world romance.

There are not ten actors in the United States who could play the part satisfactorily, Buchowetzki claims.

"Graustark" presents Norma Talmadge once more in a young romantic role, following the tremendous success of "The Lady" and "Secrets," both of which were character parts. The new picture is expected to add fresh laurels to Miss Talmadge's motion picture career.

It presents her as Princess Yetive of the mythical kingdom of Graustark, situated in the mountainous south of Europe. Although surrounded by old-world conventions, she manages to break through and, with the aid of O'Brien win her way to happiness.

"Cascarets" for Bowels, Stomach, Headache, Colds

Clean your liver and constipated bowels to-night and feel fine

Get a 10-cent box now.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.— (AP) —The stock market presented a spotty appearance during the greater part of today's session, with several of the industrial leaders touching new lows on the current movement. A brisk buying movement developed in the last few minutes of trading, reducing or wiping out many of the earlier losses and leaving closing quotations decidedly irregular. The volume of trading showed a marked expansion in volume, with the day's sales again running above two million shares.

The erratic price movements bore no relation to the day's news, although speculators for the decline attempted to place a bearish interpretation on the publication of the manifesto of international bankers pleading for a removal of European trade barriers, and on the weekly steel trade reviews which called attention to a slight lessening of activity in the industry. Call money was again in plentiful supply at 4 1-2 per cent and unusually favorable quarterly earnings statements were published by the Republic Steel, Transcontinental Oil and a few other industrial companies.

U. S. Steel common broke below 134 for the first time since last spring, but closed at 135 3-8 for a small fractional gain on the day. General Motors dropped from 145 to a new low on the current down-swing at 141 1-2 but snapped back to 142 1-2, unchanged, on the day. Dupont dropped from 187 1-2 to 186 and then advanced to 188 7-8, where it was off over 3 points on the day.

Heavy liquidation of several specialties seemed to bear out rumors that pools which had been operating in those issues had been forced to dispose large volumes of stock, although there were no serious wide-open breaks. Food shares were the hardest hit, new 1926 low prices being established by Southern Dairies A and B, Continental Baking A and B, Park & Tilford, New York Canners, Canada Dry Ginger Ale and Graft Cheese.

On the other hand, several industrial issues developed independent strength, particularly Timken Roller Bearing, which advanced nearly 5 points to a new high record for the year; Radio Corporation, which moved up over 4 points to 55 1-4 and American Brake Shoe & Foundry, Consolidated Gas, Mack Truck, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth and Vanadium Corporation, all of which showed net gains of 2 points or more, the last named responding to the declaration of an extra dividend of $1.

Atchison and Chesapeake & Ohio displayed strong resistance to selling pressure but most of the other popular rails drifted lower, despite reports of a continuance of record-breaking freight traffic.

The money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial papers rates were unchanged.

Cocoa and coffee prices eased slightly, but wheat and sugar held fairly steady.

Reports of new high records for the year by Italian lire above 4.35 cents and Norwegian krone above 24.35 cents, coupled with a new low for Germany sterling at 4.80 5-16, featured the foreign exchange market. Other [illegible] held fairly steady.

Keefe Gives Advice on Health

Quick Recovery From Severe Stomach Troubles, Nervousness and Run-down Condition Proves Value of Tanlac.

Patrick Keefe, well-known citizen living at 24 Court street, New Haven, Conn., suffered from many serious ailments for several years before he found relief. He says, "My stomach gave me so much trouble I became weak and run-down. Everything I ate caused continual belching and sour, bloated my stomach.

"The poisons of constipation swept through my system ravaging my liver and kidneys. Whenever I moved pains shot across the small of my back. And my nerves became affected. Instead of sleeping at night I would toss and turn. For two years I suffered intensely. Then Tanlac came to the rescue.

"This wonderful tonic cleaned out my system, toned up my organs, relieved my stomach trouble and nervousness. It gave me new strength and health. I recommend Tanlac to everyone."

Give Tanlac an opportunity to relieve your suffering, to give you health. The first bottle brings amazing results. At your druggist's.

ENUMERATORS GUY AND DOWNES FIND 7,586 CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE

The result of the canvass by Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes to ascertain the number of children residing within the limits of the town of Norwich whose ages are between 4 and 16 years discloses the fact that there are 7,586, which is a gain of 94 over last year. The state pays to the town the enumeration grant of $2.25 for each child so found from the fund created for aid to the public schools and this is not shared by private institutions of learning.

On the enumeration this year the town will receive from the state the sum of $17,068.50 which will be more than enough to meet the estimate of $17,000 from the state which was made by the town school board in its budget for 1926-27.

The enumerators are required to classify the children as to age and school attendance. This classification as to age shows the following: Under 5, 310, from 5 to 7, 122, from 7 to 14, 28, from 14 to 16, 360. School attendance is shown as follows: Private schools, boys 326, girls 280; public schools, boys 2,154, girls 2,196; parochial schools, boys 896, girls 1,014.

The enumeration in the districts as compared to last year is as follows:

MADE THE MOHAWK TRAIL IN VERY DENSE FOG

Tourists who pick out the Mohawk Trail these days are likely to find it far from enjoyable if they happen on a foggy day. Richard Bundy and Ernest Disco made the trip last Saturday and Sunday by automobile, leaving here Saturday night and going as far as Stafford Springs where they stayed over night. Sunday morning they started out at 6:30 for Greenfield by way of Springfield and made the trail from east to west. The fog was so thick that they were compelled to travel, even in daylight, with the headlights of their machine burning, and in low speed. From North Adams at the westerly end of the trail they came on to Pittsfield and through Springfield home, reaching here Sunday night.

SOCIAL WORKERS COUNCIL SEES MYSTIC ORAL SCHOOL

The Social Workers council of New London and Windham counties met Tuesday afternoon, at the Mystic Oral school, Mystic. Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, of New London, who was to have spoken on "Child Labor and Future Citizenship" was unable to be present. Miss Betsey Mitchell of this city, president of the council, conducted the business meeting. Announcement was made of the special lecture course by Dr. Lloyd J. Thompson being given under the auspices of the United Workers of Norwich, and a musical comedy-romance, "The Ambassador," to be presented by the Junior Welfare League of New London. "The Ambassador" is interesting in that it is a community effort on the part of the colored people of New London.

Walter J. Tucker, superintendent, and Mrs. Helen B. Tucker, principal, of the Mystic Oral school explained and demonstrated the work of their school. Mr. Tucker pointed out that there were two methods of teaching the deaf—the old sign method and the present oral method which is employed at Mystic.

A demonstration of rhythm work was given in the auditorium. A group of children gathered around the piano and, with eyes closed and one hand on the piano from which they receive the sound vibrations, they beat with the other hand the time of the piece being played by the teacher. ... how many chords had been struck. The school was founded in 1869 as a private school, later being taken over by the state. For the past six years Mr. and Mrs. Tucker have been in charge. At present there are 14 instructors. There are 190 children in the school and about as many more on the waiting list.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker with the assistance of their staff entertained the group at tea in the dining room of the new building. Frederic Denison and Mason Manning of Mystic, two members of the board of directors, and Mrs. Frank Mitchell, an honorary member of the council, were among those present.

HARKNESS ESTATE GREW TO $85,000,000 TOTAL

An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, widow of one of John D. Rockefeller's early partners, who died on March 27 at her Fifth avenue home in New York has been made public by her son and executor, Edward S. Harkness. The estate reached the unexpectedly high total of $85,000,000. Both the late Mrs. Harkness and E. S. Harkness, her son, are well known in this part of the state, having a residence in Waterford.

Mrs. Harkness, who had lived quietly at her home in New York and had attracted little public attention except on the occasions of her bountiful bequests to public welfare enterprises, inherited $50,000,000 when her husband died several years ago, and the appreciation by the sum of $35,000,000 was far beyond earlier estimates.

The publication of the inventory followed a petition, for the designation of an appraiser in the New York inheritance tax proceedings filed in the surrogates court of New York county, by Edward S. Harkness, through his attorneys.

No statement of the amount which will fall to Mr. Harkness was obtainable, but it was estimated that the residuary estate, all of which goes to him would amount to about $60,000,000. The estate will pay about $16,000,000 inheritance taxes. Of this, about $8,000,000 will go to the federal government, New York state will claim $3,000,000 and inheritance taxes payable to the various states in which the corporations issuing the stocks owned by the estate will be about $5,000,000.

The estate is notable not only for its great size but also on account of its liquidity and the high value of almost all the long list of securities which comprise it, of the entire $85,000,000, except $1,597,204 is in securities. This relatively small remainder includes a cottage at 135 West 52nd street, New York, cash and miscellaneous items of intangible property.

The inventory reveals the late Mrs. Harkness as one of the largest holders of Standard Oil stock, the industry in which her husband made his fortune. Among the estate's Standard Oil holdings are 564,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey common valued at approximately $22,000,000 in the market but on 157,650 shares of Standard Oil of New York, 100,900 shares of Standard Oil of California, 50,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana and large holdings in other Standard Oil units plus the stock and similar allied industries.

Mrs. Harkness also held 12,050 shares of Anaconda Copper, more than 10,000 shares of General Electric, 15,000 of American Telephone and Telegraph, 27,519 of Union Carbide, 1,000 shares of United States Steel, 4,573 shares of the National City bank and 1,235 of the New York Trust co.

Mrs. Harkness was a heavy holder of railroad stocks also. Among such holdings were 1,000 shares of Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, 4,000 of Lackawanna, 2,463 of various issues of Illinois Central, 6,200 of New York Central and 2,400 of Nickel Plate.

The holdings in bonds are equally impressive. Besides a long list of industrial and railroad bonds, there are $6,908,050 par value of American Liberty bonds.

Stolen Car Recovered.

The Ford roadster of Martin J. Enright of 278 Central avenue, which was stolen in New London Sunday night, was recovered Wednesday. It was found abandoned on the road that leads from the Military highway to Ledyard Center. The Norwich police informed Mr. Enright of the finding of his machine.

MYSTERIOUS LIGHTS WERE FIRE UNDER STILL

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 21—The mystery of flickering lights and ghostly shadows which struck fear in the staunchest of hearts who braved nocturnal visits to the deep woods on the Norman S. Bryant farm in West Somers, was solved Wednesday night when Deputy Sheriff Herbert Hadsell of Somers and State Policemen Howard Burns and Fred E. Taylor of the Stafford Springs barracks, invaded the somber recesses of the woods under cover of pitch darkness and a driving rain and came upon a large still in operation. The strange lights came from a brisk wood fire in a stove on which the still was set. Bryant was busily engaged in tending to the outfit. He exclaimed in fear and surprise when he found himself suddenly surrounded by the officers. He was taken before Justice of the Peace W. H. E... where he furnished a bond of $500 for his appearance this Friday night in the Somers town court. Bryant has already been arrested twice of violating the liquor law. The first time he was convicted and fined but the second time the still was located in a vacant house in the neighborhood and it could not be definitely established that Bryant was the owner. Mysterious shafts of light that have appeared at night for the past few months and sometimes licked the skyline above the tree tops aroused the suspicion of West Somers residents and the matter was finally reported to the police.

Shabbily dressed and giving the appearance of being down and out, an old man, who said that he name was Joe Legacy, aged 74, of Woonsocket, R. I., plodded wearily into police headquarters Thursday forenoon and pleaded with Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady to be sent to jail. "Please give me six months in jail?" he asked in broken voice. Asked why he wanted such an unusual thing, the old man quavered that this was a tough old world. He said that he had no home and no friends and that on account of his age he could not find work. The world held nothing for him but starvation and exposure to the bitter winter winds. "Please, won't you send me to jail?" he pleaded again as tears came to his eyes. Powerless to grant his request, Chief Grady directed Legacy to the office of the selectmen. There he was told that no help could be given him as he was a resident of another state. In desperation he again returned to the chief of police where he was told definitely that he could not be sent to jail unless convicted of some violation of the law warranting such a sentence and that the best thing for him to do was to return to Woonsocket and seek charity there.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it sweeps the intestine clean and urges nature to act normally.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer refunds the purchase price. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. DANIELSON

PROVIDENCE TRIO PAY HEAVY LIQUOR FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 21.—Fines totaling $825, not to mention costs of prosecution, were assessed against a Providence trio in the Killingly town court Thursday morning for being caught while involved in an alcohol running exploint.

Michael Antocicco, 30, was fined $200 for transportation, $200 for keeping with intent to sell and $25 for operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so. Including costs, the total assessment against him was $443.89.

Michael's brother, Charles Antocicco, was fined $200 for accompanying a car in which alcohol was being transported, and the wife of Charles, Annie Antocicco, was given a fine of $200 by Judge W. Fenner Woodward, also for accompanying the load of contraband. Costs also were assessed against husband and wife.

The Antocicccos did not have enough money with them to pay the full amount of the fines and costs, but did manage enough to discharge the assessments against the husband and wife. Michael was held here in custody of State Officer Streamens while the freed pair hurried over to Providence to get the money needed for his release.

Things began to go bad for the Antocicco family about 8 o'clock Wednesday night when, in the rain their car skidded into a state highway fence at the top of Stearns hill while they were speeding into Danielson from Providence. Someone of the observers who came to look the car over, as people do when there is an accident, telephoned for a state officer. Officer Streamens was not long in discovering that there was a cargo of alcohol aboard. The officer found that the car contained 8 gallons of alcohol in cans. He placed the two in the car under arrest and they were held at the barracks on North Main street throughout the night. The car that figured in the affair was not badly damaged. It is a practically new machine, a used model, and has not been fully paid for, one of the men arrested said. It is believed that the alcohol in the machine was destined for Hartford or some other city in Connecticut.

Finding of a baby's bonnet in the car appeared to observers of the party immediately after the accident why it thought there was a baby in the machine. It appeared to them that the wearing had been a baby, but nothing more than the bonnet was found after the car had been looked over thoroughly.

The man and wife of the party did not have such good luck in getting money for the release of Michael. They returned here early in the afternoon with $200 of the $427 needed for his release. They were told that the full amount of $443.89 must be forthcoming before Michael was again a free man, so they hurried off to the city after more money. They had not returned by nightfall and Michael was not that time facing the prospect of being taken from the barracks to Brooklyn jail.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said Thursday afternoon that his checkup of the death of Robert Louis Butcher, three years of age, and of Phoenixville, revealed few facts in addition to those contained in the first story of the affair. It seems to be definitely established that the little fellow shot himself in the head with a bullet from a small calibre rifle that had been left standing in a corner of the room of the home. Parents of the little boy and two other children, the oldest five and the youngest barely two years of age, who were at home when the accident happened, were at work about a quarter of a mile from the house.

Mrs. Abby Frances Brown, 78, died Wednesday night at her home at Foster Center, where she had been a resident the greater part of her life, coming there as a young woman. She was born in Warwick, R. I., a daughter of Joshua and Rachel Greene Havens. She leaves her husband and two brothers, William and Henry Havens of Foster Center.

Announcing

Victor's second sensational achievement in music . . .

The New Orthophonic

Victor Record

PERFECTED at last—a record that captures everything and misses nothing! A record of golden, natural, mellow tone, and amazing range—a record as good as the Orthophonic Victrola itself!

For two years, Victor experimented to produce this record. The entire resources of the Victor organization were enlisted to find a record that would contain all the musical elements which the Orthophonic Victrola is capable of expressing.

The new Orthophonic Record is the result. It is new—entirely new. It is recorded electrically, and is unparalleled in clarity, in tone, and in fidelity to the original. There is nothing with which to compare it, except the singing or playing of the artists themselves.

Reproduces all tones of all instruments

On these new Orthophonic Victor Records, high notes and low notes are now reproduced in their proper proportions. The bass is deep, sonorous. The higher notes brilliant, expressive. Tones that escaped former recording processes are now caught and reproduced with a naturalness that is positively startling. The spoken word has the breath of life. Even "s" sounds are now perfectly intoned.

Microphone recording—Orthophonic—Artists now sing or play in natural position before a microphone, just as they sing or play at a public performance. The microphone "hears" and records what you would hear were you there.

Unpleasant scratch eliminated—Made from a new, improved material, Orthophonic Records have eliminated those annoying surface-noises so common to the ordinary type of record. You hear the music and nothing else. Also, these records have longer life.

That elusive "third dimension"—Victor has captured what a great musician calls the "third dimension"—depth! Just as the great masters gave "relief" and depth to their paintings, so these new records give depth and roundness of tone to reproduced music.

Foremost artists in every class—Victor has always attracted the foremost singers and instrumentalists of the world—operatic—orchestral—popular and dance. Their confidence is more than ever justified by the lifelike fidelity of Victor's new Orthophonic recordings.

Record stops automatically—An exclusive feature of the Orthophonic Victor Record is a groove, cut "off center." When the music has finished, the needle swings into this groove and applies the automatic stop on all modern Victrolas.

Hearing is believing—Whether you own an Orthophonic Victrola or not, hear these new Victor Records. They play on any instrument—and vastly improve its playing quality.

Go to your nearest Victor dealer. Go expecting the musical thrill of a lifetime. You will not be disappointed.

CHAPLIN

Rev. Walter E. Lanphear has been engaged to supply the church at Eastford for six months and preached there last Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. Lanpnear are to occupy the parsonage where their household goods were moved the past week

An old fashioned husking bee was held at John F. Reed's on the state road in the north part of the town last Saturday evening. About seventy-five were present, coming from Worcester, East Hartford, Ashford, Eastford, Hampton, Windham, Mansfield. About 65 bushels of corn were husked and of course a satisfactory number of red ears were found. After the husking refreshments of mince pie, pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee were served to all, who report a jolly social time, they had through the evening.

Charles S. Turner, Etta Royce, Mrs. Flora Stevens, Mrs. Ellen Russ, Mrs. Eliza Russ, Mrs. Cora L. Trowbridge and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gallup attended the funeral of Mrs. J. Ellen Lanphear at Willimantic on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Lanphear was the widow of H. Dwight Lanphear and was a resident at South Chaplin for many years before removing to Willimantic. Mrs. Lanphear had many friends and was highly esteemed.

WAUREGAN

A most pleasing concert was given by the Rhondda Welsh singers at Plainfield Saturday, under the direction of Prof. Morgan. The question has been asked how the singers came to Plainfield and who was responsible. Rev. William Williams pastor of the Wauregan Congregational church received an offer from the booking agent of their services simply for their expenses. He, knowing of the quality of these men and their ability the leader being a relative of Mr. and Mrs. Williams approached Rev. George Reese of the Congregational church of Central Village and Rev. William C. Prentice of the Congregational church of Plainfield. They entered into the effort with a will. These three men immediately scouted Danielson, Brooklyn, Wauregan, Central Village, Moosup and Plainfield with the result that Charles M. Robinson and Addison M. Tracy of Wauregan, Charles Bragg of Central Village, Ray Green in behalf of the Plainfield Community House association, underwrote the guarantee and assured the contract. Later, support came from Jewett City, Moosup and Danielson assuring the financial success of the affair. Acknowledgment of the district is due therefore to all who helped in any way, with special thanks to Mr. Green who acted as secretary and to the Community House association for the availability of the Community House and Hotel accomodation.

Another question asked is why the members of the Rhondda party failed to appear in the several churches Sunday as was expected. The answer could have been given some 16 days ago had a letter mailed at London, Canada, arrived here before October 18th. In this letter the agent explains that the original offer was made for another town in the state the former residence of Mr. Williams, and as Plainfield was so far off the track of the party's itinerary, it seemed to him physically impossible for them to comply with the local contract.

However, he left the matter entirely in the hands of Prof. Morgan and his party. It is evident, therefore, that the party spent much effort, and suffered some financial loss, in fulfilling the contract. The keen disappointment of many, relative to Sunday's services, is more than counterbalanced by the good-will of the party.

The Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal church at 240th street and White Plains avenue, the Bronx, was destroyed by fire.

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—The Buick sedan 1926 model, registration 13-859, owned by William P. McGarry, 111 Washington street, Norwich, which was stolen in this city last night, was recovered in Brooklyn, N. Y., this afternoon and the thieves, two New London young men, were arrested. The thieves are Charles Hummell, 22, of 138 Jefferson avenue and Kenneth Davis, who has been residing of late at the Salvation Army and Navy lodging house, State street. Both are being held prisoners pending the arrival in New York of an officer from New London to bring the prisoners back here for trial. Hummell has been employed of late in restaurants and is a former member of the United States Coast Guard. Davis is understood to also be a recent discharge from the federal service.

Miss Margaret McGarry parked the automobile on Meridian street early last evening and when she returned she discovered it had been stolen and reported that fact to the police. An alarm was sent out to various police departments to be on the lookout for the auto, but the thieves managed to elude the officers and reached New York this morning. This afternoon Hummell and Davis were observed in Brooklyn in the car by Detective Edward Fox, New York police department, who questioned the pair and when neither could produce driver's license or registration, he placed both under arrest. At the police station Hummell and Davis admitted having stolen the auto in New London and to having driven it to New York. Detective Fox notified the New London police of the recovery of the auto this afternoon.

When the automobile was stolen it contained a suit case and a hat box filled with ladies wearing apparel. Detective Fox did not state whether these articles were found in the stolen auto.

NORWICH WILL DEDICATE WORLD WAR TROPHY

On Armistice day, the local post of the American legion will dedicate its war trophy, a 155 mm howitzer, which was captured by the American forces in the Argonne forest. Robt. O. Fletcher post confiscated it from the Raritan arsenal.

Just as a golfer has a number of clubs in his bag, using them for different plays, so also an army has different kinds of weapons, starting with an automatic pistol and winding up with a sixteen inch naval rifle. A modern army uses different kinds of artillery, depending on the object which it intends to destroy. In a battle of movement, the light field artillery such as the famous 75 and the German 77 or 3 in. pieces were doing the best execution. They can be moved quickly, have a good range and are capable of firing from 25 to 30 shells a minute. A battery of four guns, going at that rate, with shrapnell, makes it very uncomfortable, to say the least, for an advancing infantry division. How uncomfortable—ask some of the boys from Norwich who were in it.

A howitzer is a short barrelled affair, and it is used for shelling fortifications, entrenchments, depots, ammunition dumps and other objects of military and strategic importance. The shell is usually fired at a high angle, hitting the sky first and then everything else in sight. This little bird that is going to be installed as a decoration on the parade ground was a "hot patootie" when it was doing and it surely made things hot for the A. E. F. But it has played its last tune and will be silent for ever.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL HEARS REPORT OF SUCCESSFUL SEASON IN NORWICH

Norwich council of the Boy Scouts received reports at a special meeting held Thursday evening in the chamber of commerce rooms on the work done since February under Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefield, Jr., which were commended as making a fine showing for the period in which the new Scout executive has been in charge of the work in this city.

Edwin V. Ross, president of the council, presided, and the date for the annual meeting was set for Dec. 29 at the chamber of commerce rooms. The following nominating committee was appointed: George H. Young, Nathan A. Gibbs, C. D. Noyes, Judge Allyn L. Brown, Rev. A. H. Abbott, Rev. J. J. Reilly and C. Edward Smith.

Dr. R. R. Agnew was elected chairman of the budget committee to have charge of the annual financial campaign with power to select the committee to assist him.

A vote of thanks was passed to the chamber of commerce for the use of the rooms and to Max Hanover for providing music with the orthophonic Victrola.

After the business of the meeting had been concluded the council heard an inspiring talk from Scout Executive Henry T. Fowler of Middletown, who praised the record that the Norwich executive had made and went on to speak of scouting in general, saying that scouting is slowly but surely making its influence felt upon the character of the American boy, and also builds the foundation of the American citizen of tomorrow. When some of the great mercantile institutions of the country accept membership in a Scout organization as ample reference of an applicant for a position, we have a realization of what the Boy Scout movement does for the boys of this country. A Boy Scout's conduct is governed by his Scout oath of honor. His point of view upon his relationship with his girl friends, boy friends, parents and employer is governed by his Scout pledge. This training of the present day American boy is of such tremendous influence to every community, Mr. Fowler said, that it deserves the heartiest support of all citizens interested in the community and the glorious future of American manhood.

Scout Executive's Report

During the month of February a complete check-up both of the council records and troop records was made, and the national standardized office system of the Boy Scouts of America was set up in the council office. The check up of the troop records disclosed 107 active scouts, of this number 62 being Tenderfoot, 36 Second Class, and 11 First Class and Merit Badges. There were 8 active troops, 8 scoutmasters, 10 assistant scoutmasters, and 24 troop committeemen. The scout membership has grown steadily and at the present time the council has 11 troops, 11 scoutmasters, 12 assistant scoutmasters and 136 active scouts, of this number 135 being tenderfoot, 38 second class and 22 first class and merit badge. We also have 1 Lone Scouts on record in the council, making out total scout membership 203.

Owing to lack of time for preparation of a council Anniversary week program in February, Anniversary week passed quietly, four troops of the council having troop banquets during the week. On the Sunday following through the courtesy of the Y. M. C. A. Scouts were invited there for Scout Sunday. A moving picture being shown and an interesting talk given. Scouts were busy during the month feeding game birds. All of the woods around Norwich were covered by Scouts who hiked miles through deep snow with grain for the birds. Grain was distributed at intervals through the woods, and the places were visited later to ascertain if the grain had been eaten by the birds.

During March Scouts were actively engaged in the destruction of tent caterpillars, over 5000 egg masses being collected during the months of March and April. During these months four council troop hikes were taken to various points of interest, Scouts of four troops participating.

Scouts were also busy assisting at forest fires. Four fires were put out entirely by Scouts before much damage was done, while they helped at six larger fires.

In April Scouts from Norwich and Taftville cleaned up part of the grounds of the Miantonomo monument in Greeneville, two Saturday afternoon hikes being taken for this purpose. During the month and extending into May Scouts painted all of the American Legion grave markers in the cemeteries in and around Norwich, and also painted 400 others of the G. A. R. Scouts also helped at the Social Workers conference in this city. At the invitation of the United Commercial Travelers 40 Scouts participated in the opening of the Nipmuc trail on May 1, making the trip over the trail to Webster lake by automobile.

On May 21-22-23, fourteen Scouts representing the troops of the council attended the Eastern Connecticut Patrol Leaders Pow-Wow of Hartford, Middlesex county and Norwich councils held at Camp Pioneer.

Camp Tippecan opened on July 7 and closed August 2. Scouts from all troops of the council, excepting one, attended camp for one week or more. A feature of the camping season was the old Scouts camp from August 4-8. Six executive board meetings have been held since February, four finance committee meetings, two publicity committee, one civic service, one seascout committee. Two executive board and troop committee get togethers were held for the purpose of strengthening the troop committees and to make the committees more useful to the troops. At the first meeting Scout Executive Fowler of Middlesex County council, and President Woodworth of New London council spoke of the value of a functioning troop committee to the troop and the council, and at the second meeting Scout Executive Burdick of New London spoke. The results of these get-togethers has already been evidenced by the active interest taken in the troops by the troop committee.

Active work has already been done by the Seascout committee in the formation of a Seascout troop. Exacting requirements were laid down for membership in the troop, and a number of boys who have been Scouts but who are not now active in scouting have been interested, with the result that nine boys who have dropped out of scouting are once more interesting in the work

At the New London County fair just recently held the council set up an exhibit which included work in nature study handicraft, seamanship, map making, pioneering and fire lighting. To add to the attractiveness of the exhibit two totem poles were set up and a birch fence built and a number of model fire laws set up. A first aid tent was erected and a number of minor injuries treated. Scouts were busy ushering at the grandstand, helping with the parking of cars, running errands and finding lost children.

An audit of the council office records was made March 1, showing current and fixed assets of $1,174.69, with current liabilities of $417.27, making the net assets of the council $757.42. The cash balance in the bank March 1 was $53.13. During March a quiet campaign for funds was launched, which extended into May, which has brought in to date $2,792.55 in cash, with outstanding pledges of $602.00, making a total of $3,394.55. A financial statement of receipts and expenditures to date is attached hereto.

Although progress has been made toward a larger and more efficient scout membership andk more and better troops, there remains a great amount of work to be done. Our Scout enrollment is steadily increasing as is the number of troops. The greatest problem now before us is to do the recruiting and training of leaders necessary for new troops, also a more efficient check up of troop activity, and the development of minimum standards for all troops all on the same basis of graded activity.

Camp Tippican Report

The accompanying report was made on Camp Tippecan, the Scout camp at Beach pond, Voluntown, which was officered as follows: Camp director, F. J. Bielefield, Jr., assistant camp director, Victor H. Davis; junior assistant, Irving Manning; physician, Dr. R. R. Agnew; chef, John Jencks.

Equipment was transported on July 6 by Mr. Carpenter, chairman of the camping committee, and was set up on that day. Camp officially opened July 7, the Scouts being transported from Norwich by automobile, arriving at camp before noon.

The smallest number of Scouts at camp at any one time was eight, and the largest number was 43, with the total number of camper-weeks totaling 90. Two Scouts were provided for by the Norwich Rotary club, and two others by Dr. Agnew.

Included in the list of activities were overnight and 14 mile hikes. On one 14 mile hike the whole camp went to Bailey's pond, cooked their dinner there, and returned to camp in the afternoon. Four overnight hikes were taken by patrols, each patrol going around the lake. On Saturday afternoon of each week the patrol leaders organized and conducted a Camporee, consisting of different costumes for each patrol in a grand parade, following which each patrol had charge of one Scout field event. Each contest was judged by the patrol having charge. The Belt Honor system of camp awards used for the first time this year was very successful. One hundred and sixty two belt honors were earned at camp, and 81 more were earned after camp closed. Eighteen second class tests were passed, with 24 first class tests. Three Scouts were awarded their first class badges at camp, and six merit badges were earned. Sixteen Scouts qualified for the 50 foot swim, 15 for the 100 yard swim, and nine qualified for merit badge work in swimming. Besides this four Scouts were taught how to swim. In handicraft work great interest was shown in the making of witch hazel brushes, nearly every boy making one to take home. Eight bows and arrows were completed, and a number of sets of sassafrass napkin rings were made. Each patrol carved and set up a patrol totem in front of its tent.

This year the tents were set up in the grove newly cleared in the spring by various members of the council who spent a number of afternoons at the work. The advantages of the new site were fully appreciated by the Scouts on the first hot afternoon, when a thermometer set up in the sun registered 104 degrees, while one in front of the tents registered 84 degrees. During the second week of camp a special sanitary detail was recruited which buried the old camp latrine and erected a new one, which made sanitary conditions much more satisfactory.

Especial attention was given to the food and daily menu. The Scouts were given the best food procurable, and plenty of it. Four hundred and eighty quarts of milk were supplied, averaging more than a quart a day per boy. Three hundred seventy six pounds of meat were used plus $400 worth of groceries. The daily menu was planned in advance by an expert dietitian, insuring a healthy diet.

Health conditions were very satisfactory, there being no sickness. Each day was closed with an evening campfire. These were featured with stories by the camp director and some of the older Scouts, with song periods each evening when a number of new Scouting songs were introduced. At the campfire ceremonies the first was lighted by friction.

Two different minstrel shows were put on by the boys. An added feature of this year's camp was the Old Scouts' camp. The camp officially closed for the boys on Aug. 4. Noon of that day saw the camp deserted, but in the afternoon the Old Scouts began to arrive, and for the next four days 30 men enjoyed the camp facilities and had a most agreeable time. The sports included fishing, swimming, basketball and baseball, with a campfire in the council ring each evening. The campfire program included the lighting of the fire by friction, songs and stories.

The Old Scouts camp closed Aug. 8, and was so successful that it will be continued next year.

The equipment of the camp was taken to Norwich and stored on Aug. 9. Much credit for this year's success at camp is given to John Jencks, whose cooking was unexcelled, and to Messrs. Ross, Agnew, Bottomley, Young, Prentice and Carpenter and many others who gave much of their time to insure the camp's success, also to Weston Pulleh for transporting supplies to camp twice weekly, and to Dr. Agnew and Mr. and Mrs. Shields for transporting the boys to and from camp.

Maurice Heald, of Port Huron, assisted Mr. Tholen as best man and ushers were Grant Smith, Charles Moore, William W. Ottaway and John P. Ottaway, all of St. Clair. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, E. J. Ottaway.

After the ceremony a reception took place at the Burtless home on north Riverside avenue, where 150 wedding guests congratulated the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Tholen left Saturday evening for a wedding trip of a week.

Many pre-nuptial events preceded the Tholen-Burtless wedding and among the final affairs was a buffet luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Earle, Saturday noon, attended by the bridal party and family friends.

Friday evening the rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ottaway, north Riverside drive, attended by the bridal party and members of the two families, to the number of 26. Favors given the bridesmaids were slave bracelets and to groomsman and ushers, handsome leather sets including bill folds and key holders.

HAWKINS' MAXIMS, DATE 1651, OWNED BY DR. PENNIMAN

That industrious alumus of Norwich Academy, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, LL. D., Yale, '84, comes to public interest again by the statement in the new book by Charles Moore, "George Washington's Rules of Civility," that the only copy of the rare book, Hawkins' Maxims, of the edition of 1651 owned in America, outside of that in the possession of the Library of Congress, belongs to Dr. Penniman.

Among the hundreds of volumes of Washington manuscripts in the national library, two contain the school exercises of George Washington, written before he had reached the age of 16. One is devoted to mathematics, problems in surveying, and the like. The second book begins with legal forms, such as every planter should know; bills of sale and exchange, contracts, leases, et al. There is a Christmas poem, then the remaining ten pages are devoted to 110 "Rules of Civility and Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation" about which much has been written and little is known. These maxims were so fully exemplified in Washington's life that biographers have regarded them as formative influences in the development of his wonderful character.

The late Moncure D. Conway was the first Mr. Moore states, to trace these maxims to a treatise entitled "Biensecance de la Conversation entre les Hommes" prepared in 1595 by the pensionnaires of the French Jesuit college of La Fleche, and sent by them to their brothers at Pont-a-Mousson. One of the recipients, Father Fermin, translated the maxims into Latin, which edition appeared in Pont-a-Mousson in 1617, at Paris in 1638 and in Rouen in 1651. Later it was translated into Spanish, German and Bohemian.

Mr. Conway found in the British Museum an English version first printed in London in 1640. It was the theory of Mr. Conway that the Maxims were translated into English and made into copy-book form by Rev. James Mayre, who was born at Rouen, but who came to Virginia before 1635. He might have been Washington's teacher—his home was in Fredericksburg—but of that there is no proof. At any rate, comparison proves that the maxims as copied by Washington came from the Hawkins version, and not from the French; admittedly, Washington knew no French.

Francis Hawkins was born in London in 1628. The precocious son of John Hawkins, M. D., at eight he turned into English the French version of the Maxims. The pleased father took the Ms. to William Lee, who published it, about 1640. In 1646, a second edition appeared. Then followed in rapid succession nine other editions before 1672. A second part, entitled "Youth's Behaviour; or Decency in Conversation With Women," was added by the Puritan book-maker, Robert Coddington, in 1664.

Hence Puritans, as well as Roundheads, Protestants as well as Roman Catholics, regarded Hawkins' Maxims as stepping-stones to favor. Hawkins, at the age of 21, entered the Society of Jesus, Mr. Moore chronicles. In 1662, he was professed of four vows; ten years later he was a confessor at Ghent. From 1675 till his death, in 1680, he was professor of Holy Scripture at Liege college.

It is the theory that Washington's father, or one of his half-brothers, who were educated in England, might have brought back a copy of the Hawkins edition.

One copy of the edition of 1663 has survived in the Library of Congress. The New York, Harvard and Richmond libraries report no copies. Mr. Moore states. But the British Museum has the editions of 1646, 1650, 1663 and 1672, also a Latin translation of the same work, London, MDCLII. The Bodleian library, Oxford, has the seventh impression, 1661; eighth impression 1663, ninth 1668, and 11th impression, 1672. Trinity College library, Cambridge, England, owns at least two editions, 1663 and 1672. As noted, Dr. Penniman of Philadelphia, is owner of a copy of the edition of 1651 and the only other copy of the

STUFFY M'INNIS IS MADE MANAGER OF PHILADELPHIA NATIONAL CLUB

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Confirming previous reports current since the close of the baseball season, William F. Baker, president of the Philadelphia National League club, announced today that John C. (Stuffy) McInnis had signed a two year contract as manager of the Phillies.

The former member of the Athletics infield, who last saw service with the Pittsburgh Pirates, is to take charge immediately.

It was also announced that Benny Meyer, coach, will be released and Stuffy will name his own assistant.

McInnis succeeds Arthur Fletcher, manager of the club for the last four years. Fletcher yesterday received notice that he had been released.

Today's announcement from Mr. Baker created no surprise. He was known to have had several conferences with M Innis since the new manager was released by Pittsburgh and it was expected he would be the new pilot.

M Innis has never had managerial experience, but he has been a big league player since 1909, when he went with the Athletics direct from the Gloucester, Mass., high school.

"I am very happy over the situation," said Mr. Baker. "McInnis will be allowed to run the club exactly as he pleases and I am sure he will prove a popular leader."

McInnis will appear on the club as a player, and will therefore be one of the seven big league player managers. He will not play regularly, but will get in the game when he considers it best to do so.

MCINNIS BEGAN HIS -CAREER IN QUAKER CITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—John P McInnis, in his many manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, returns to the city where he entered his journey to baseball fame as a member of the Athletics of the American league. He is the third of Connie Mack's Shibe park infield to be graduated into managerial ranks. With Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank Baker he made up the infield referred to with all as worth $100,000. Today the same combination at the form displayed when the Athletics were winning pennants with monotonous regularity would be cheap at $1,000,000.

Eddie Collins is manager of the Chicago White Sox and Jack Barry managed the Boston Red Sox in 1917. Baker was never a major league manager but piloted a team in a minor circuit.

When McInnis joins the Phillies as player-manager, he will don his sixth major league uniform. He has appeared in five world series under the colors of three clubs, the Athletics and Boston in the American and Pittsburgh in the National league.

McInnis' part in the 1925 world series victory of Pittsburgh was recorded as more important than the records revealed although he batted .346 and fielded 1.000 in four games in which he played. He was inserted in the regular Pirate lineup at first base in the fifth game when Washington was leading, three games to one, and the Pittsburgh morale apparently was at that it might have been. The steadying influence of the experienced Irishman at once made its presence felt and the Pirates swept on to ultimate victory.

McInnis, who is now 36 years old, entered the major leagues with the Athletics in 1909 after serving an apprenticeship in the old New England league. He was a shortstop in his early career but in 1911 succeeded Harry Davis at first base for the Athletics. He was traded to the Boston Red Sox in 1918 and went to Cleveland in 1923. The following year found him with the Boston Nationals and last season he went to Pittsburgh. He was released by the Pirates at the close of the 1926 baseball campaign.

ACADEMY IN TOP FORM FOR CLASH WITH BRIDGEPORT

The Academy football squad is rapidly rounding into shape for the game on Saturday at the campus with Bridgeport Central High. A hard week's practice will be finished off this (Friday) afternoon with a short and light drill at the campus which should just about put the locals in top-top condition for the coming battle.

Indications at the present time are that Coach Earle E. Bergham will be enabled to send his strongest lineup into the fray on Saturday. The squad has been quite fortunate to date regards loss of men by injuries or other reasons and practically the entire starting lineup of all three games played to date will be on hand ready to do battle on Saturday.

If developed, the Academy eleven is regarded as one of the best contenders for the state interscholastic gridiron title this season, and come here with the avowed purpose of adding another victim to the already long list.

However, the Academy team is not the football team in some few years past to that a victory over the down means much for their and the locals will be in there fighting every minute of the way for the Red and White.

It is quite generally expected that when the Academy gang has decided Bridgeport on Saturday they will personally be assured of winning the remainder of their games during the season.

DEMPSEY TO ATTEND HEAVYWEIGHT BOUTS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Jack Dempsey will return to the pugilistic lifefront tomorrow night but only as a spectator. He will look on from a ringside seat in Madison Square Garden while eight aspiring young heavyweights pitch gloved fists at each other in a continuation of the elimination tests by which Tex Rickard hopes to weed out the challenging field for the crown recently yielded by Dempsey to Gene Tunney.

The show will give Monte Munn, former Nebraska football star, his first test. Munn who has won ten bouts in nineteen rounds, will square off against the rugged Cuban, Carl Morter in one of four ten-round scrimmages. It will mark his first appearance in a contest of more than six rounds.

The main event will bring together John Maloney of Boston and Arturo Godoy, of New York while other bouts pit Yael Okun of New York against Bob Lawson of Alabama and Jack Demave of New York against Sandy Siefert of Pittsburgh.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Efforts to match Pete Latzo, welterweight boxing champion, and Jimmy Jones of Youngstown, Ohio, for a championship bout here July 4 next year, were announced tonight by the Queensboro Athletic club.

The club wired a $30,000 offer to Paddy Mullins, the champion's manager, and stated it was prepared to post the money with the National Shawmut bank here as soon as a favorable reply was received. Al Lippe, the challenger's manager, has accepted the terms, the club announced.

CANADIAN-AMERICAN HOCKEY OPENS AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Plans for opening the schedule of the new Canadian-American Hockey league with a game in Boston Thanksgiving night were considered today at the organization meeting of the league here. The meeting decided that the playing schedule would be completed and announced by November 1. Representatives of the Boston, Springfield, Providence, New Haven and Quebec clubs attended, and it was announced that Brooklyn probably would enter the league later.

Each club submitted a list of available referees and it was decided that Charles C. Clapp of Boston, who was elected president of the league, should name all officials for league games. Final lists of players must be in the hands of the president by November 3.

The New Haven club will play its home games on outside rinks until its arena is completed about January 1. A working agreement between the new body and the National Hockey league was approved.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21—(AP)—John "Rip" Ordway, of Winchester, Mass., took the left halfback position in the Yale backfield today, filling the place of Larry Noble who is out with an injured shoulder. Ordway, it is expected, will carry the brunt of Yale's offensive against Brown Saturday. Earle Goodwine of West Lebanon, Ind., also had a trial in today's scrimmage, which was the first for the Yale eleven in more than a week.

PETERS IS ILLINOIS' MAIN THREAT AGAINST MICHIGAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The toe of "Frosty" Peters, champaign fireman, was the most precious cargo aboard the train which carried thirty-four University of Illinois football players toward Ann Arbor, Michigan, tonight.

Well founded among the followers of the Illinois accompanying the team to the Michigan game is the report that Zuppke will lead "Frosty's" drop-kicking against the four aces which Yost holds in Friemdmann, Molenda, Oosterbaan and Flora.

The Wolverines took cognizance tonight of the possibility that Peters, who drop-kicked two goals against Iowa Saturday, many resolve the Illinois threat into one of drop kicks rather than touchdowns and Yost gave his men a vigorous lesson in defense.

Purdue alumni are rallying to Chicago in the hope of seeing Saturday the unusual spectacle of a boilermaker victory over the University of Chicago. Phelan's team is a slight favorite since it held Wisconsin to a tie. Stagg if laboring in the confidence that the Maroone formidability is under rated.

Notre Dame's tilt with northwestern today took on the aspect of a social fete, with the vice president, the mayor of Chicago, the presidents of both institutions and possibly General John J. Pershing on the list of distinguished guests. The Wild Cat squad sees the prospect of its first victory over Notre Dame in many seasons.

Indiana departed tonight for Madison, Wisconsin, to meet Coach Little's Badgers Saturday, inasmuch as both teams have revealed stouter defense than attacking strength, each has been drilling this week to kick early and often and wait for the breaks. The Badgers are favorites.

Ohio state is girding against the rampages of Kutsch, Hawkeye Ace, with new qualms about its own attack. Minnesota has a non-conference foe in Wabash.

YALE WEEKLY CAUTIONS TEAM AGAINST OVER-CONFIDENCE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Yale football team, unbeaten this season, was warned by the Yale Alumni Weekly today not to forget that it still "has a good many things to learn."

After characterizing the Yale-Dartmouth game as "one of the most exciting and well-played that the bowl has seen in many a day," the Weekly says:

"But it is too early to base too ambitious prophecy of what may happen in the final games. Yale has a fine team this year and one that promises to work together and make the full use of its possibilities. It is not, in spite of some newspaper enthusiasts, a team of 'stars', and we are glad that it is not, as the most satisfactory seasons we have known in Yale football have been seasons where teamwork counted more than individual play.

"Things look bright at the moment. But we have not watched Princeton and Harvard games over a series of years and failed to be impressed with the fact that nothing can be certain until the games are over. Thus far, the Yale team of 1926 promises power and football knowledge. But it has a good many things to learn, including sensing the other side's offensive tactics as the play develops. The harder the lessons in the games that are to come, the more likely will be the final exhibition of all-around first class football that Yale men everywhere want to see again on Yale field this year."

SUZANNE ANNOUNCES HER LIST OF TENNIS RANKINGS

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen tonight joined H. Wallis Myers, noted British critic and William T. Tilden in setting forth rankings of ten leading international tennis players. Miss Lenglen, choosing her list of both men and women on past season performances alone and differed from the selection of both Myers and Tilden. The latter declared today he believed he ranked fourth rather than fifth as the English writer placed him. Mlle Lenglen gave him sixth place.

Men: 1, Rene Lacoste, France; 2, Jean Borotra, France; 3, Henri Cochet, France; 4, Vincent Richards, United States; 5, William J. Johnston, United States; 6, William T. Tilden, United States; 7, Manuel Alonso, Spain; 8, Howard Kinsey, United States; 9, Paul Feret, Frence; 10 Takeichi Harada, Japan women.

Men: 1, Helen Wills, United States; 2, Kitty McKane Godfree, England; 3, Molla Mallory, United States; 4, Elizabeth Ryan, United States; 5, Mary K. Browne, United States; 6, Senorita Alvarez, Spain; 7, Frau Bauman, Holland; 8, Joan Fry, England; 9, Didi Vlasto, France; 10, Eleanor Goss, United States.

RANDALL WINS HOTEL ASSOCIATION GOLF TOURNEY

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—For the third successive year Carl Randall of Baltimore and Conway, N. J., today won the golf tournament held under the auspices of the New England hotel association at the Amherst Golf club. The tournament has been staged each year since 1915 when the first cup was shown by congressman Allen G. Treadway.

Frank A. Cantwell of Bridgeport, Conn., was re-elected president of the association. A resolution was adopted protesting against the action of the Boston and Maine railroad in removing through trains on the eastern division of the line from Portsmouth, N. H., to Portland, Me.

A Challenge

FEW UNCROSSED GOAL LINES REMAIN AMONG EASTERN COLLEGE TEAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Eight eastern football teams continue play Saturday with one burden removed. They will not have to defend an uncrossed goal line. Only Boston college has escaped. Development in the latest gridiron skirmishes marred previously perfect defensive performances for Yale, Brown, Colgate, Dartmouth, Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse and Carnegie Tech.

Yale, Brown and Cornell won but they had to give as well as take before getting the victory. The others met defeat.

Boston college, with the only uncarred goal line, places its title in jeopardy Saturday with a game against St. Louis university at St. Louis, a city still interested in baseball but willing to accept football when there is no baseball.

Five teams had not scored before last Saturday's games but all counted their way into the charmed circle during the day. No team in the east has now failed to score. The latest to win admission to the select class are Rensselaer, Haverford, Middlebury, Boston university and Rhode Island.

With the responsibility of defending records above reproach removed, tension has been lessened for the several teams who may now devote their entire attention to winning the current games.

Outstanding contests in the east send Dartmouth against Harvard at Cambridge and pit Brown against Yale at New Haven. The Big Green team goes to Harvard the favorite but the Crimson, up and coming after a slow start, can not be counted out. Coach Hawley is reported convinced that the Green's forward passing attack was not properly geared in the game against Yale last Saturday and has spent some time in taking the machine apart to see where it was out of order.

Yale, at the moment the most impressive of the big three combination, is favored to turn Brown back but not in a field day event. The Bruins are expected to display enough offensive to make them a constant threat.

New York football fans have a menu of variety with three games to choose from. Columbia is an odds on choice against Duke, nee Trinity, of Durham, N. C. The southern team is in the throes of a revised system and has a new coach, Jimmy DeHart, former Pittsburgh star having moved from Washington and Lee to tutor the Blue Devils, as the Duke players are called.

New York university and Rutgers have a 36-year-old rivalry at issue, the Violet of New York being given better than an even chance, against the New Jersey invaders, which has not been the case many times over the long stretch the two teams have met.

Fordham has a hard afternoon's assignment in attempting to beat back the drive of a Washington and Jefferson outfit which has not yet tasted defeat.

Princeton should dispose of Lehigh and Pennsylvania is believed equipped to stop Williams, but the Navy may have a hard contest with Colgate.

EDDIE LORD EASILY OUTPOINTS TONNY JARRETT

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Eddie Lord, of Meriden, boxing under the management of Denny McMahon for the last time, easily outpointed Tommy Jarrett, of New Haven in the feature eight-round bout at Rakeski hall here tonight. Lord carried the fight all the way and he won a majority of the rounds. Lord weighed 131 1-4 and Jarrett 133 1-4.

In the semi-final, Johnny "Red" Allen, of Bridgeport won by a technical knockout over Young Emmons of Waterbury in the seventh round. In the other bouts, Herman "Kid" Silvers, Ansonia, outpointed Pee Wee Smith, Bridgeport; Jimmy Kelly, New York, outpointed Phil Chapman, Bridgeport and Billy Luby, Bridgeport, scored a technical knockout over Tommy Blue, Bridgeport.

Nutmegs vs. Noank.

The Nutmegs are scheduled to clash with Noank Crushers on Sunday in the game postponed from last Sunday because of inclement weather.

The locals went through a snappy practice session Thursday evening and should be at shape for the coming fray. The Nutmegs will without doubt start their strongest lineup in Sunday's game. The playing field here for Sunday's game has not been decided upon as yet.

GOVERNOR WILL ISSUE STATEMENT ON FINANCES

Speaking before the Women's Republican club of Hartford at the Hotel Bond Wednesday night Governor John H. Trumbull stated that he expected by Saturday to make public a compilation of figures on Connecticut finances which will be cause for considerable future comment.

"There is being completed for my use at Newtown on next Saturday night," said the governor, "a compilation of figures dealing with Connecticut taxes, departmental income, and state expenses, that is most interesting. Much has been said by our opponents about state income and expenditures. My statements on next Saturday will probably amaze them. Connecticut has a better financial story to tell than most people would imagine."

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

QUALITY where quality should be -in the tobacco

ALL smokers will agree that it's what's inside that counts — yet for years men have paid extra for containers instead of for their contents.

Granger Rough Cut now offers a common-sense innovation. Quality leaf, an exclusive and secret mellowing method, a special cool-burning cut — but no frills. A practical wrapper of soft foil; thoroughly satisfying, mind you — light, tight, comfortable to carry — but inexpensive; and as a result, a pipe tobacco of genuine quality which retails at ten cents!

Economy outside, quality inside; queer no one thought of it before. But it's certainly here now — and certain, too, of a record-breaking welcome.

WESTERLY

POST OFFICE REPAIRS ARE NOW COMPLETED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 21.—The work of repainting the lobby and interior of the Westerly post office has been completed, the lobby staging having been taken down on Wednesday. At a meeting of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce some months ago attention was called to the shabby appearance of the interior where the need of repainting of ceiling and side walls was most apparent. Congressional representatives for the Westerly district were asked by the Westerly chamber to call the attention of the proper department head at Washington to this condition. This resulted in bids being asked for the work which has just been completed. The interior of the office walls and ceilings have been repainted an ivory white with the lobby the ceiling has been given an ivory tint and the side walls a light shade of green. During the winter months Postmaster Thomas F. Dawson will make an effort to have a temporary wooden flooring with mat railing placed in position on the front post office steps to lessen the danger from falls when the stone surface is coated with snow and ice.

In Connecticut there are Thirty Business Organizations that lend money. For seven years they have been banded together with the ambition and desire to uplift and dignify the Loan Business. This organization is known as the Connecticut Industrial Lenders Association.

That You May Know

This is number two of a series of messages that will establish the Loan Business in the minds of the people as a necessary cog in modern business.

A Pledge of Service to the People

Each member of this association pledges himself to use every honorable means to induce all persons or companies engaged in the lending of money on salary or chattel security in Connecticut to observe the rates, terms and methods as fixed by State statutes, and to protect all deserving people against the payment of interest higher than that provided for by law.

Remember that the present day loan company, or industrial organization, rendering you interested service and getting a fair return for its charges. The Industrial Lender is nothing more nor less than a banker who makes small loans as a business proposition.

YALE CLINICAL DIRECTOR BEGAN MENTAL HYGIENE LECTURE COURSE

Opening the special lecture course at Slater hall Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the United Workers upon the general subject of "Mental Hygiene," Dr. Lloyd J. Thompson clinical director of Yale School of Medicine, spoke upon "Problems of the Early Years of Childhood."

He spoke as follows:

Not so many years ago, it was commonly thought that the pre-school period was a time when, except for the physical condition, the child could and should drift along until he became old enough to profit by the discipline and education of the public school. Not much thought was given to the fact that these formative years are by far the most important in the development of the personality of the individual. Many of you are probably not interested in children two or three years of age, because you have your share of problems with children more advanced in age. But to understand the problems of the older children we must pass back in their infancy or very early childhood and study the habits of reacting to the more simple and fundamental situations.

Let us consider the rate of development and we shall see the importance of these early years or, as I am tempted to say, these early months. Dr. Gesell says that the pre-school period exceeds all other epochs in developmental importance. It is only one clock hour, reckoning the entire span of human life as a day, but during that hour the major portion of the total stream of development flows under the bridge. The basic lines of both physical and mental organization are laid down during the formative pre-school years.

From the physical standpoint we can readily see that the rate of growth diminishes rapidly with age. In the first month the physical increase is 33 percent; in the twelfth month it has fallen to 2.8 per cent. Within six months the infant doubles its birth weight, but a little later on it is a matter of years before a given weight is doubled.

The importance of this early physical development is readily seen when we consider that 1-3 of all the deaths occur below 6 years. Over 80 per cent of all cases of diphtheria and of all deaths from diphtheria occur below the age of five. Rickets is essentially a pre-school disease. The concentration of development in this period carries with it an increase of developmental hazards so that many of the physical handicaps found later in life have their origin in this period.

Brain Growth in Early Years

What is true of general physical development is true of mental and nervous development. The brain grows at a tremendous rate during the pre-school age reaching almost its mature bulk before the sixth year. According to Donaldson, the human cerebral cortex attains its full thickness at about 15 months of age. The proportion of mental development during the first 6 years of life is treble that attained in the next 12 years. The mind develops with corresponding velocity. The infant learns to see, hear, handle words, comprehend, talk, and may even come to have temper tantrums, refuse carrots and spinach and say "no" to commands. He acquires an amazing number of habits fundamental to the complex art of living. Never again in his mind, his character, his personality advance as rapidly as in the pre-school period. Never again will he have an equal chance to lay the foundations of mental health.

Normal mental growth is not a matter of complete hereditary predestination, even in infancy. Undoubtedly many of the defects, handicaps and deviations come about after birth. Particularly is this true of the many faulty habits of reaction which keep the individual from finding a good adjustment to the world in later life.

Psychoanalysis has shown that very many of the symptoms of maladjustment in later life can be traced back to experiences or conditions or circumstances of the early nursery. In dealing with the so-called functional psychoses or those mental disorders in which no organic disease can be found, one finds at the origin of the complete, that the symptoms are the evidence of poor habits of adjustment which started very early in life.

Let us become a little more concrete and see what are the important adjustments for the infant. Before birth the child has practically no adjustments to make. He does not have to eat nor breathe, and he has no bother from loud noises, bright light, changes of temperature, etc. At birth he is thrust behind the comfort and protection of the womb and never again will he be in a world and receive impressions that demands attention and adjustment.

Form Good Habits Early

The first and about the only things that an infant in the first few months has to do are eat, sleep, breathe, eliminate waste matter. Practically all workers in child guidance are agreed that if the child has formed good habits in these functions, there will be little difficulty later on in the more complex adult life. The manner in which these simple difficulties are met is a behavior pattern for future development as the demands of reality become more complicated. If the child has learned that there is a certain law and order about these simple problems he will be more apt to fit in and make a good adjustment to life.

Even these simple adjustments are in conflict with the wishes of the infant has to give up some cherished desire to attend to certain needs. For instance the baby, being quite self-centered, would prefer the continuance of sleep but sleep is often interrupted by hunger, sounds, lights, full bladder, colic or a lot of unpleasant kicking and bouncing up and down by over-fond parents. It is possible to control these stimuli so that good habits are formed from the start.

The nursing period is usually considered solely a pediatric problem but there are many psychological problems very important. Digestive and other difficulties of infants frequently prove to be the result of lack of proper habits of eating in childhood. The first few days of the infant's life may be the basis of these later troubles. At birth the infant will instinctively suck on anything gently pressed on his tongue. For the restless, irritable baby the task of getting him to the breast and persuading him to draw milk is usually difficult. He is too eager or because of hunger if too busy crying. This unrest discourages the mother. She develops fears that he will not eat. Emptying the breasts is necessary and the nervous child does not do this. It is possible so important, what the mother eats as it is what she fears which is the most common cause of inability to nurse a baby and causes vicious habits of mother and child which lead to bottle feeding. A nervous or doubtful nurse may upset either the baby or the mother enough to make bottle feeding necessary. The baby should be left alone on a pillow except at the nursing period. And there should be a minimum of handling of the baby. He should be carried to the breast on a pillow when he is drowsy and sleepy, not when he is crying furiously. The mother's peace of mind is absolutely essential. A fussy over-anxious or despondent attitude on the part of the nurse may do untold harm. Before the period of weaning the child should be accustomed to taking orange juice and water from a spoon. Unnecessary difficulties of weaning may allow the child to become master of the situation at this early period and conscious of his own power so that the parents can never teach him, or may cause the child to form such habits of dependence upon the mother that he may never learn to stand upon his own feet. Methods of presenting food are most important. Idiosyncrasies of adults are mental in most cases. An emotional atmosphere slows up digestion. Parlow and Watson have proved the dependence of digestion on mental or emotional states. Grief, anger, anxiety interfere with digestion and the appetite is lost. Nervous unrest can produce prolonged dyspepsia even in infants. Teach the child to feed himself. This goes with neatness in other activities. Suggestion plays a large part. If there is a struggle when the child refuses a particular dish this food is forever afterwards repugnant to the child. Matters are made worse if the nurse antici-[illegible] refusal and tries to overcome it by [illegible] delicious flavor or other [illegible] over good food. The child sees [illegible] and her efforts go for [illegible]. There should be nothing to focus his attention on refusal. Place the food before him in a matter-of-fact, off-hand manner as if there were no question about his eating. Let the others present set a good example. Discuss other subjects and at the proper time take the dishes away. If the child has heard his finicky appetite discussed, try the opposite suggestion. Speak of his improving appetite or once a day [illegible] plate away before he has quite finished saying that he has eaten so much he must eat no more now. Sometimes a child has established a habit of negativism, that is, doing the opposite of what he has been told. Sometimes it is love of power or desire to attract attention that causes refusal of food. Negativism has developed because the child has been opposed with too many "don'ts" or other authoritative commands. The treatment for this is to cease active opposition, keep the child interested and occupied and become somewhat indifferent to food without comment, after a time take it away. Rarely will a child pull out in his poor habit until he becomes emaciated. In that case it is better to send him to a hospital where a good nurse, no nervous mother and a perfectly calm environment will soon cure him in a few instances even in the hospital it is necessary to resort to tube feeding. This is so unpleasant that he will not hold out any longer. In cases of vomiting changes of diet will often cure it. Faults in the environment must be overcome. When the cause of nervous unrest has been found and re-[illegible] the child's mind is at ease [illegible] show about the child. A [illegible] was well known as a nutritionist [illegible] found that this was due entirely [illegible] tion from the mother. Every [illegible] somewhat adjusted [illegible] feeding. Regular hours [illegible] are important [illegible] as well as of habits [illegible]

Rhythmical Basis for Habits

[illegible] children may at times [illegible] hour after being put [illegible] cry. The mother will [illegible] the child fearing the [illegible] child does [illegible] and if it has [illegible] comes to the [illegible] this because it is [illegible] has been kept on [illegible] When he returns home he [illegible] turned off. This situation [illegible] prevented. One case [illegible] of a child who was [illegible] awakened to see father when he [illegible] at night and the habit of [illegible] was established. The problem [illegible] to this is loss of sleep. [illegible] comes and talks to the child who wakes and cries at night or if mother takes the child in bed with her this habit will continue and may prove exceedingly troublesome.

Sleep walking occurs in older children. I have sometimes found that this is a symbolic expression of a desire for more freedom. One boy, age 12, would get up at night, search for his clothes, try the door and utter the word, "Play" over and over again. In the day time his mother would not allow him to play with other boys or go outside his yard for fear he might be contaminated by contact with other children. At school he did not know how to play. After he joined the Boy Scouts went to a summer camp and to the Y. M. C. A. his sleep walking was cured without any other treatment. Many instances of sleep walking are due to the fact that mother is domineering or over-solicitous. Careful investigation of each case will reveal causes. Night terrors cause considerable worry and sometimes produce a lasting impression on the child. Usually there are other signs of nervousness. This child is over sensitive and suggestible and very imaginative. One common cause is found where elders discuss newspaper horrors and family worries in the child's presence.

Rocking to Sleep

I hesitate to speak against rocking a child to sleep. It is true that without both child and mother miss a great deal of pleasure. In every audience some grandmother will rise and say she has always rocked her children and grandchildren to sleep and there have been no harmful results. The chief objection is that it forms an unnecessary habit of dependence. Nowadays parents wish to go out in the evening and such a habit is a great handicap to them unless a kind hearted grandmother is available. If sleeplessness or crying at bed time has become a habit too much attention only makes matters worse. A little quiet rhythmical patting is a good compromise and in serious cases even a mild sedative may be used under the advice of a physician If the fear of the dark has become a fixed habit this is almost always the result of suggestion. This is easily avoided in the first place but very difficult to cure once it has been established. One boy would not sleep before midnight. Punishment was of no avail. He was oversize and weight and oversensitive because he had been teased. Someone had told him that drinking milk and sleeping would make him grow and he refused to do both. He was also behind his class in school, though this was caused by his fear and worry, not by lack of intelligence. There are many advantages in the use of sleeping bags besides the mere fact that they keep the child from getting uncovered.

Proper hours of sleep are very important. Some parents send the children to bed as early as 6 or 7 o'clock because mother is tired and wants to get them out of the way. This means some hours of wakefulness in bed for the older children and may lead to forming habits either good or bad.

Some General Rules

Some general rules are worth careful consideration. First, stop all punishment. There are few cases in which it can be proved that punishment ever did any good. Stop arguing, reminding or shaming the child and stop emotionalism. Instead use hopefulness, cheer, and suggestion to eliminate fears. Praise the good results. Stimulate interest in success by using a calendar or red or gold stars to develop a sense of responsibility in the child himself All these must be used with discretion and without over emphasis.

POMFRET PRIEST SPEAKS ON POETRY IN BUSINESS

"Poetry in Business" was the subject of a very interesting talk by Rev. George Donohue of Pomfret that featured the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Rev. Fr. Donohue's subject dealt largely with the life and success of T. A. Daly as an illustration of the fact that a poet is as much of a business man as the merchant and that the so-called hard-fisted business man is not without a little poetic in his make-up.

Rev. Fr. Donohue said in part:

The poet is still misunderstood. In the popular mind, I fear he is a sort of dreamer, a mere powder-puff citizen who contributes little or nothing to daily practical life. Sometimes this misconception approaches the burlesque, and the poet is visualized with hair long and unkempt, in livery that shows both wear and shine, tall and ungainly; a sort of Lincolnesque figure at which even "Old Abe" himself used to poke fun; walking up and down the primrose paths of life with a far-away look in his eyes, that see dreams which will never come true.

The poet I have selected easily succeeds in destroying such false notions of pets. T. A. Daly is a native of Philadelphia, and therefore, an American. He was an ordinary printer by trade, which is more or less prosaic. When love came to him, as it comes to all, he married, and the newspaper detailed the event, but made no mention of the bridegroom, which is, once more, anything but romantic. Most husbands some at least on their wedding morn, but Mr. Daly did not even enjoy the common honor which falls to newly-married men. He made the well-worn wedding march to Niagara Falls by anticipating his salary two months, and, by dint of severe economy, he managed to regain Philadelphia. To his married life came eight children, three of whom served the flag in the marines in the late war, and one of them cleverly illustrates the latest book that has come from the Daly household and the Daly brain. Any man who shelters successfully, alone and unassisted, a family of ten, is something more than a powder-puff, whether the family appeared before or after the war.

His days were full of toil and of business such as fills your life; some of them were gray and dark, and he even confesses that often the larder was lean. He plodded on happily, however, and courageously, and in his spare moments tried to put some of his dreams into verse. For a period his moments tried to put some of his dreams into verse. For a period his efforts were merely occasional and casual, until he ambitiously strove for the national prize in poetry, and, unlike "Little Nello," his poem won. Mr Daly had arrived, and with the arrival came fame and money. His consequent songs have appeared in book form under the titles, "Madrigali," "Songs of Wedlock," "Macaroni Ballads," and "Canzoni," and his latest book, "Herself and the Household," which is a sort of autobiography but more truly a delicate tribute to his splendid wife. These details, I think, reveal a real man, of no mean courage and no little heroism, and, incidentally, he helps to define a poet by showing that he is always a man like the rest of us, who sees, perhaps, more than we see, and feels more keenly our common joys and sorrows, and has the additional gift of putting his thoughts in imperishable song.

If happiness is akin to beauty, and beauty, in the larger sense, is poetry, then you men, no matter what your business or vocation, are unconsciously poetic. You daily touch and sell beautiful things, and only things that are beautiful inspire song. What, after all, are your show windows but appeals, not merely to the eye but to the imagination which is the very world of poetry. When you and I had that subtle something called youth, don't you remember how we used to flatten our young noses against the show windows, especially at the Christmas hour? What a fairyland we saw; what color filled our eyes and how our young hearts raced in their young breasts!

No poet ever lived ever put into song the transfigurations that were ours. When Thomas Burke the English writer, was especially lonely in East London streets, he used to stare into the windows of a Chinese merchant's shop, so that he might smell the incense of the Orient, and continue his pilgrimage feeling that the smell of spices clung to his garments To me, it is never a real compliment to hear a man called a hard-headed and two-fisted business man. Good business needs heart as well as head. Do not be afraid of imagination, for bookkeepers and mathematicians go mad, but not poets. Let us see our lives and our business through the radiance of the imagination, and our success will not be less, and our merchandise will breed as fast. And when you die, men will write your epitaph, reading, "He was a good business man and something of a poet," which, in other words, means you had a heart as well as a head.

At the business session President E. A. Harris presided with E. LaRue Bliven acting as song-leader. Henry J. LaFontaine was at the piano after an absence of several weeks. One of the pleasing musical features of the meeting was the solo numbers by F. R. Murdy who sang If Winter Comes, and Beside a Garden Wall. There was also a very delightful duet number by Mr. Murdy and Mr. LaFontaine who sang Because You Are You. The guests at the meeting also sang a chorus number while Clint Lane, Judge Ayling and Walt Turner executed a trio selection.

One new member was obligated at the meeting. The club voted to hire a band for the Armistice day parade and the matter was referred to the board of directors.

Secretary Edward L. Jewett read an invitation from the Danbury club to attend a meeting of that club later in the month.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

STORRS LAYING CONTEST CLOSES THIS SATURDAY

The laying contest at Storrs is now in the last half of the ninth inning. Final scores will be chalked up next Saturday, Oct. 23, when the series closes. Meanwhile the whole outfit was held up well in the grind that has lasted for now nearly a year. Last week the total production for all pens was 3,010 eggs, which is a batting average of 307 for the entire team, good, bad and indifferent included.

Leghorns were the hardest hitters in the next to the last week. Hanson's Leghorn farm from Corvallis, Oregon, came across with 63 eggs or a mark of 759 on the basis of 1,000 for perfect. A pen of the same breed entered by George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was second best pen for the week with a total of 50 eggs. Willgerodt Bros. of Red Bank, N. J., were next in line with a pen of Leghorns that laid 43 eggs, and Adam Glass of Mobile, Alabama, was "nip and tuck" with a total of 42 eggs for the week.

Obviously these pinch hitters, so to speak, did all that could be expected and possibly more, and yet the above is not a fair statement of the performance by breeds, because the Leghorns as a matter of fact did a little less than 33 per cent, whereas the Barred Rocks topped 25 per cent in the 50th week.

The 1400 hens in the Storrs contest have entered the last week with an average production to date of over 17 dozen eggs apiece. Thirteen pens including Rocks, Reds, Wyandottes and Leghorns have already touched 2,000 eggs or better, all of which is a very creditable performance for ten hens. Toivonen Leghorn farm from Girard, Penn., has clinched the pennant, but the relative standing of a number of pens cannot be determined until the last day of the race. For example a pen from Massachusetts that has clung to third place in the Leghorn class for the last three months was nosed out last week by an Oregon pen that is now six eggs in front.

in a LARGE UNIVERSITY said about it—

"I know this report and this letter sound extravagant, but I assure you that this new baker's loaf has my unqualified endorsement and has aroused my enthusiasm that a product so uniformly fine is being produced."

Never before has there been a loaf of bread quite like this.

It ought to be good, for White Rose Bread was perfected with the cooperation of women and men whose whole lives have been devoted to the study of foods. They know better than anyone else the vital importance of bread. With their help we believe we have succeeded in giving you in White Rose the perfect loaf of bread.

Try it for yourself! Compare White Rose with any bread you have ever tasted! From your very first slice you will realize why thousands of women are turning with delight to this new loaf.

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 21.—Palmer Hyde was again the meeting place for a social gathering, when the Men's class of the M. E. C. and a few friends met at the home of Lewis D. Howe for the October meeting. The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter.

During the business session two items of interest to the members were discussed, the first being the report of the supper committee, showing that a substantial sum was realised from the supper, held a short time before.

The other item was the proposed trip to Wesleyan university at Middletown to meet Professor Slocum professor of astronomy, who will explain several instruments and offer an opportunity to use the large telescope. This should prove a real instructive trip. The date of the trip is to be announced later after further communication with Professor Slocum.

At the opening of the social portion of the evening, John Harris gave a short discourse on Lord Tennyson. Mr. Harris concluded his talk by a recitation of Lord Tennyson's, "Revenge."

Refreshments of ham, cheese and peanut butter sandwiches, pickles, fruit, chocolate cake and coffee were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Edith Howe and Mrs. Thomas E Gray.

After the refreshments several old songs were sung by the group present.

A rising vote of thanks was given the host and hostess for the enjoyable evening. The meeting closed with the class song and the pronouncing of the benediction.

Sore throats need this Double-Treatment

YOUR sore, aching throat probably needs the soothing, healing vapors that arise from Vicks VapoRub when it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime. And Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing;

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain and soreness and thus helps the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

It's Not Done Today

Whatever I do and whatever I say
My young daughter tells me: "That isn't the way.
When you were a girl, thirty summers ago,
It doubtless was proper, for you were all slow;
But now we are swifter, we're speeding along.
And you, Mother darling, do lots of things wrong!

And then I look back, when I'm sitting apart,
And think of those years that are dear to my heart;
Those lost years of roses and rapture and fun,
Whose nights were all starlit and days were all sun;
And dimly I seem to hear my young voice say:
"Oh, Mother, don't do that! It's not done today!"

And dreamily looking to years far ahead,
When Father and I have long slept with the dead,
I think although now she knows all to be known,
How little she will know when those years are flown;
And I know when that time comes her daughter will say:

$100,000,000 LOAN TO BE MADE BELGIUM

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—The long awaited international loan to Belgium, which will provide nearly $100,000,000 for the stabilization of that country's currency, probably will be launched in the American and European markets next week.

Although financial arrangements have not been concluded, it is expected that the American portion will be about $20,000,000. The loan will be floated here by J. P. Morgan & Co., and the Guaranty company, which have represented Belgium in previous financing operation. Private banking credits, similar to one of $30,000,000 recently obtained in London by the Central bank of Belgium, may be arranged at the same time.

RACHMANINOFF UNBENT WHEN CHALIAPIN WED

LENINGRAD Oct. 21 (AP)—Feodor Chaliapin has lit his new automobile part near the grave Rachmaninoff promises to unbend as to send the early morning serenade composed of each many friend on memorable anniversaries. The occasion was the opera's wedding in lead to the Soviet Dinner Tonight.

"The next morning" Chaliapin says, "after came across from beneath my window the dance of a moon-a group of girls with the composer Rachmaninoff in their midst had come to me my honor an early morning serenade . . .

"Then I tapped on the window pleased and signaled an impromptu concert." Thus one remarks "I started on my married life.

Chaliapin's marriage was an unusual affair.

"There was nothing that one usually has at weddings," he says. "No beautifully decorated tables no sparkling champagne bottles no flowers and nothing of wine. We had none of the bottles."

That same year Chaliapin was given the part of Boris Godounov to sing in the Rachmaninoff's direction.

"Rachmaninoff had just left the conservatory," he says. "He was a young man who enjoyed life, a distinguished musician and a pupil of Tschaikowsky. The elements of music I learned from him and I owe my theoretical education.

"I was so delighted with Boris Godounov that I wasn't content to sing my own part only, but learned all the other parts in the opera by heart—male and female roles, so that I could sing the whole opera from beginning to end. Later I learned that such a thorough mastering of a whole opera is a singer an enormous advantage; and so I always did the same afterwards with every opera I appeared in.

"After I studied the music of Boris Godounov to my satisfaction, I wanted to know all about the work from the historical side. I read Puschkin, Karamassin and others, but failed to obtain from them a correct picture of the epoch. Then I got to know the famous Russian historian Klutschewski, who described the time of Boris Godounov so graphically that I saw the characters standing alive before my eyes."

BRITISH AUTHORS ALSO KICK AT FILM VERSIONS

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP)—British writers do not like the film versions of their stories any better than many Americans do.

Thomas Burke, the accredited author of London, which the British National Film company is now showing is chafing under the liberties taken with his original scenario.

"My scenario was called The Pilgrim's March and bore no resemblance to what is being offered," he declared. "This film is called a romance of Mayfair and Limehouse. I never called the scenario that, because it wasn't any romance at all. I never saw a foot of this film when it was being made and was amazed when I read there was a Limehouse dance in it. I never heard of such a dance. There is no literary version of the story, so I suppose the public will always think I am responsible for the filmed version."

Napoleonic Relics

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP)—Napoleon is said to have fallen asleep many times on his folded arms at a mahogany desk which was used for some time as a telephone switchboard at the French ministry of war. The desk has now been rescued from its telephone days and will be placed with other Napoleonic relics at La Malmaison.

His household is said to be a happy one, for that he has two consorts, both of whom he has two consorts, both being the most beautiful women to the land in the length and breadth of the country.

Hsuan Tung married Princess Kung on December 1, 1922, who became the first consort. On December 4 in the same year he took a "secondary" wife who was described as his real and made her his "Eastern con-

BANDITS CAVE NOW A STUDY FOR GEOLOGISTS

ROCHEPORT, Mo., Oct. 21 (AP)—Rendezvous for student outings, and subject of study for geological field trips from the University of Missouri, the Rocheport cave, near here, once was the den of river bandits and the haven for escaping horse thieves.

The cavern, a deep recess in the rolling hills of central Missouri, is not far from the Missouri river which skirts Rocheport. The entrance, about 50 feet high, and half that wide is screened by heavy underbrush, that in summer almost completely conceals the opening.

In the crinoline days when Rocheport was one of the most important river points between St. Louis and Kansas City, folk lore records the operations of a band of river pirates who regularly stripped the wharves of barrels of sorghum, boxes of provisions and other commodities. The loot was stored in the cave. A fight between the river robbers and a posse of enraged boatmen at the mouth of the cave is said to have ended the career of that band, and the lives of several of its members.

Horse thieves in later years would hide in the cave when the vigilantes pressed them too closely. It has many chambers and winding tunnels.

DANISH KING HAD BEST MEAL WITH POOR FAMILY

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 21 (AP)—King Christian is very fond of boiled potatoes, but he can't get them at the palaces he likes them because the chef insists upon too many trimmings.

But at the dwelling of a country vicar the king, when his automobile broke down, enjoyed what he termed "the most delicious potatoes I have ever tasted."

Leaving the car near Ribe, the king with his principal chamberlain, set out on foot to reach the nearest village. Arriving at the local manse the king told the vicar of his mishap and explained that he was exceedingly hungry.

The vicar and his family were just ready to start their evening meal, consisting of potatoes and onion sauce. The king insisted upon joining them. The vicar was apologetic about the Spartan food, but the king declared it to be better than many of the royal dinners.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This neutralizes the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WINTER WORK FOR THE COLD FRAMES.

Cold frames should work the year around. In the winter, they should carry over plants and bulbs that are not quite hardy enough for the open ground to furnish early flowers while the air is still frosty in spring and to furnish parsley for the house and an occasional bunch of pansies. We can bring California's famous butterfly tulips to our doors with a cold frame.

These gorgeous bulbs, the mariposas of Spanish settlers, are known as calochortus to the botanist. They are now being offered by eastern dealers. They will often survive the winter in the open with a good mulch of leaves but come through beautifully in a cold frame. They need protection more from wet than from cold. They have lavender, yellow, and white blooms with gorgeous eyes and spots. A dozen of them in a cold frame will be a delightful surprise next May when the handsome butterflies unfold, some of them nearly three inches across on tall wiry stems.

Pansies may be transplanted into the cold frame to bloom in spring and for early pansies in the garden sow a row of seed now in the cold frame and have fine sturdy plants to transplant in the spring. The same method may be followed admirably with snapdragons which delight in a cool atmosphere when they are first developing and will be fine sturdy plants under the protection of a sash when transplanting time comes next spring. The roots may be wintered easily if moved from the garden to the frame as the snapdragon is a perennial under proper conditions.

The tender polyanthus narcissi are an excellent experiment for the cold frame and if planted five inches deep will come up in early spring and bloom under the glass before the narcissi in the garden have shown color. The early strains of gladiolus sometimes advertised as hardy, such as Colvillei, the Bride, Peach Blossom and others, also do admirably with cold frame treatment. While sometimes called hardy they will not survive in the open ground except in unusually mild winters.

MARKET OUTLOOK FOR FOR POTATOES UNCHANGED

In a report issued by the New England Crop Reporting service it was stated last month that the expected crop of late potatoes was about 15 per cent below a normal crop. The September 1 forecast of production was 380 million bushels in the late crop states with a normal production would be 446 million bushels. It was also stated that during the past 23 years when the production of potatoes was 15 per cent below normal, the short supply had caused prices 37.5 per cent above normal on the average.

The October 1 forecast of production does not change the situation to any appreciable extent. It will be noted that the production figures for Maine have been increased about 6 per cent. This increase has been more than offset by a decrease in the forecast of production for Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The total expected production in nine crop states is now slightly less than was shown on September 1. A strong winter market is still indicated. This does not mean the highly speculative market of last year which was based by a crop which was 20 per cent below normal. It does indicate however that the market will advance further during the winter months.

As a general rule the lowest potato prices come in October when the bulk of the late crop comes on the market. The early crop prices have generally ... since the first digging ... There ... should not be any considerable ... in potato prices this ... and ... than November will see prices there ...

NEW ENGLAND APPLE CROP WILL BE HEAVY

The October 1 report relative a probable crop of 234 million bushels of apples in the United States, according to statements just released by the New England Crop Reporting service. Last year's production was 171 million bushels, and the average production during the last five years has been 170 million bushels. The commercial crop is estimated at 26.5 million barrels as compared with a crop of 33 million barrels last year and an average production of 30 million barrels during the last five years. The apple crops in New England and New York will be heavy.

This large apple crop has caused low prices this fall. Low grade apples are not bringing enough to pay for sending them to the market. Probably a considerable quantity of apples will be stored this winter, and consequently profits on storage apples will be light. Only the best apples should be stored.

A study of apple production and prices since 1889 reveals the fact that there has been a regular 14 year cycle in both production and prices. Seven years of over production and low prices are followed by seven years of under production and high prices. Evidently the length of the cycle corresponds roughly to the time necessary to bring new plantings into full production. We are now in the first part of the over production phase of the cycle and will expect the apple crop during the next five years to average a little higher than normal. Then we should find a gradual decrease in production due to the fact that during the over production phase of the cycle about 14 years ago the low prices discouraged plantings. Therefore, as the old trees begin to lose their productivity there will not be enough young trees coming on to replace them.

The recent apple survey has shown that there have been heavy apple plantings during the last few years. The study of the apple cycle shows that we would expect these heavy plantings. We also will expect fewer plantings during the next five years. Probably the heavy recent plantings indicate a continuation of the cyclical movement of ample production. There will be another over production period 14 years from now, but in between these periods of large crops there will always be corresponding periods of smaller crops and higher prices.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE SAYS

You can plant tulips until the ground freezes.

Spinach is one of the spring garden crops that can be seeded to advantage this fall, sowing at the approach of freezing weather and giving a cover of straw or leaves to be raked off early in the spring. This gives the earliest crop in the garden and gets the jump on spring planting by two weeks.

Dig under pea and bean vines this fall. They will be excellent fertilizer.

Sow lettuce for the cold frame for lettuces to cut at Christmas time. The seed may be sown in the open and transplanted into the frame. Either plant seed or transplant a few parsley plants into the frame to give leaves all winter.

It is a good plan to spade the garden leaving the lumps to weather over winter.

Save all the autumn leaves and vegetable stalks for the compost heap. The new synthetic manure compound will make them available as manure to spade in next spring.

A few hills of multiplier or potato onions set out this fall will give the earliest of all young onions next spring and make the young onion a perennial feature.

Fall-planted asparagus beds will give an excellent start and take that much work off the spring program. Put out two-year-old roots and give the bed a good mulch of manure or straw to prevent heaving until the plants have had a chance to take hold. Rhubarb roots also may be set out in the fall to good advantage.

Lily bulbs come late. Place a heap of straw or leaves over their bed to keep out frost until you can plant them.

Chives are excellent flavoring material for salads. A few clumps set out this fall will establish a chive supply for next year.

MAJORITY OF PRISONERS WERE PLAYLESS CHILDREN

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 21 (AP)—Playless children make up the principal part of the prison population, said Dr Charles Platt of New York, president of the National Protection association, in an address before the Playground and Recreation association.

"To meet this new source of crime, we must lay down in childhood those character attributes that will make a normal social life possible," Dr. Platt declared. "The schools do not do this since they give form rather than purpose. Punishment has failed as a preventive. Laws have a deterrent effect upon children, but will increase penalties.

QUEEN MARIE NOW IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21—(AP)—Queen Marie of Rumania arrived in Philadelphia late today for a round of entertainment and other activities that will keep her busy until the early hours of tomorrow morning.

A "queen's command" to see Philadelphia's women war workers in their wartime uniforms caused a rush to ladies' tailor shops today to make the uniforms of 1917-18 conform to 1926 styles.

Notifications for the several hundred women, who represented war-work organizations at the reception to Queen Marie in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel late today to wear their uniforms was transmitted to the various organizations through the office of Mrs. J. Willis Martin, vice-president of the emergency aid and chairman of the women's Sesqui-Centennial committee.

Skirts in the stirring days were longer that fashion dictates now, so the principal alteration required was cutting off several inches of skirt, in some cases the uniforms had to be "let out" for the slimmer girls of '17 and '18 now have a more matronly figure.

The Red Cross, navy and overseas caps worn by the emergency aid aides were brushed, pressed into shape and tried on over bobbed heads that, in those days were long tresses. Sam Browne belts were polished.

Women who simply could not make their uniforms fit were admitted to the reception on the presentation of cards of admission.

HOW THE ROYAL PARTY SPENT TIME IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—An overstuffed black spaniel and a brand new gray sport roadster were left behind today as Queen Marie of Rumania and her son and daughter left New York for a visit to Philadelphia's Sesqui-Centennial.

The spaniel, who answers to the name of Crag, when that word is pronounced with an accent few Americans can manage, is the queen's favorite canine. He was left to waddle mournfully about the royal suite in the Ambassador hotel with only a temporary chamberlain of the kennel to administer his doggish wants. The roadster, presented to Prince Nicolas who has informed the scriveners at Buckingham palace that he doesn't spell his name with an "H") by an automobile company awaits the return of its new and royal owner tomorrow.

Her majesty before her departure in early afternoon on the private train which will near her entourage westward Monday, was a visitor to the public library, where she browsed among the comics and scripts for an hour. Later, with her son and daughter, she was the guest of the chamber of commerce at a luncheon. While the queen was in the library, the prince and princess went for a jaunt in the new roadster, Nicolas driving. A chauffeur who accompanied them put the stamp of approval on the prince as a driver.

The queen was the first woman ever to be honored by the chamber of commerce by a luncheon. More than 1,600 members gave her a thundering welcome as she entered. In reply, the queen said she was overwhelmed by the manifestation in her honor. Although colonel of a regiment of Rumanian soldiers, the queen said she had never before commanded the attention of so many men by a speech. She was roundly applauded.

LINCOLN FRAMED ADDRESSES IN THOUGHTFUL WALKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—Boxes upon boxes of his papers, now safely stored away, bear evidence that Abraham Lincoln sought solitude for his thoughts, as he walked.

To visualize Lincoln scribbling thoughts on envelopes on his daily walks in Washington was the privilege of one of the few men who viewed his letters and papers before the death of Robert T. Lincoln removed them from further perusal for 20 years. They show Lincoln's method, the development of his ideas, the fact that his most famous addresses were re-phrased and re-written sometimes four and five times, until they became finished gems of rhetoric.

A scene is reconstructed. It shows Lincoln stopping on his walk to reach in his coat pocket for note paper. He finds none, but finds a number of letters. He takes the envelope from one, tears it open at each end and turns it inside out. There he writes his idea. His walk continues. Perhaps a second envelope would be used, a second idea noted.

Back at his desk, he would take a piece of foolscap paper, trim the envelope down to the size of his notation on it, and paste that clipping at the top of the foolscap. Beneath that clipping the idea is developed. The space is nearly filled. However, it is erased, sheet after sheet, whereupon the original idea is developed and then a third sheet and perhaps a fourth and fifth bearing revision. Some sheets have two revisions interlined.

Hundreds of foolscap notes with such pieces of envelope for headlines are in Lincoln's papers. Indexing his thoughts, for example, the last two drafts of the final paragraph of his second inaugural address are cited. They show forcefully the working of his mind, the careful development of an idea into a thing of beauty.

"I am loathe to close." the last draft read. "We are not enemies but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords which proceeding from so many battlefields and patriot graves pass through all the hearts and all the hearths in this broad continent of ours will yet again harmonize in their ancient music when breathed upon by the guardian angel of the nation."

DEADENS ROOM TO MUSIC ONLY FOR PLAYER'S EARS

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 21. (AP)—Echoes of his now playing is pleasant to the player, but frequently not to the listener. To please both, the University of Illinois has devised an arrangement of furniture in a room so that the echoes go to the player and none to the listener.

Professor F. H. Watson, an authority on acoustics, deadened a room by having a great deal of sound absorbing material placed in it. Musicians first found it hard to play there, but easier as successive portions of the deadening materials were removed. As the reverberation increased, however, the pleasure of the listeners grew less.

In the trial which led to discovery of the ideal arrangement, sound-absorbing material was scattered generally over the room. To this the comment of the musicians was adverse. Some of the materials was then removed to the opposite end of the room. The process continued until all the sound-absorbents were in the end of the room farthest from the players.

Approximation of these conditions in home and concert hall will materially increase the enjoyment of music, he said.

Locke Play For London

For the first time in 14 years a play from the facile pen of W. J. Locke will be dramatized in London's fashionable West End. America had a Lockian offering about three years ago in The Mountebank, a stage version of his last story of the same title. The last Locke play produced in England was An Adventure of Aristide Pujol, which appeared at the Haymarket theatre in 1912.

SEES RECREATION FOR WORKERS IN THE ARTS

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 21 (AP)—Light opera, lectures and music, rather than baseball or tennis, are the suitable recreations for workers in modern industry, declared James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, in an address today before the Playground and Recreation association of America.

"The popularly accepted idea of recreation is athletic sports—running, jumping, swimming, golf, lawn tennis, and baseball," he said. "All these sports are without doubt very good for those who need that kind of recreation, but few workers engaged in modern industry need them.

"Their work gives laboring men all the physical exertion necessary. What they need is recreation of a different kind, such as music, lectures, good books, light opera, educational dramatic productions, adult education in a class room equipped with restful chairs and with an atmosphere of democracy.

"The coal miner or steel worker can well afford to sit on the grandstand and watch the bank clerks play baseball. The bank clerk can well afford to play golf on a hot summer day while the coal miner sits under a shady tree reading a good book or listening to a band concert. Both will be getting the physical and mental recreation needed, and both will be healthier, happier and better equipped to face the problems of life."

To avoid industrial stagnation and unemployment, workers are demanding increased wages and decreased hours of labor. This he said means additional hours of leisure which should by all means be turned to good account.

Religion in America is superficial because it must make it appeal to people who are in a hurry, said Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver in another address.

"The Kingdom of God comes without haste," said Dr. Silver. "The heart of the religious mood is meditation, the hushed and silent contemplation of life's profundities. But what American ever meditates? We need more time to get acquainted with ourselves. We should develop a new science—the Science of Leisure.

"We have not enough amateurs in society—men who, out of sheer love of life, set about to utilize their leisure time purposefully and creatively. Our industrialized civilization demands specialization, which tends to narrow man's mental and spiritual life. Most of us have only one world in which to live—the world of our vocations. For the purpose of earning a living—that is admirable. For the purpose of earning life—it is fatal."

HUGE MOODY MEMORIAL A CHURCH FOR MASSES

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Elected by a congregation whose scroll counts not a single wealthy patron, a million dollar Romano-Byzantine edifice stands near downtown Chicago as one of America's truly distinctive pieces of church architecture.

It is a memorial to the internationally known evangelist, D. L. Moody which will celebrate its first anniversary on November 8.

Colossal yet unpretentious it represents the desire of its congregation and pastor the Reverend P. W. Philpott, to embody in a building the strong and kindly personality of Moody, the simplicity of his life, the economy of his organization and a friendly and wholesome atmosphere in which would live the motto of his church, Ever Welcome to This House of God are Strangers and the Poor.

Six stories high and with exterior and interior of red brick and terra cotta, the Moody church is semi-circular with a huge half dome covering the church proper. To the right is a two-story office and Sunday school annex.

Arches in brick relief arranged above and below large windows of the same style see the only exterior ornamentation and on the semi-circular side ten arched doorways lead from a concrete plaza to a curved foyer which surrounds the auditorium. To the rear, the church drops away to the two story heights with a row of arched doorways extending the width of the church, above which are a row of arched windows which light a long foyer.

Above the curved main-floor foyer is a second foyer surrounding the balcony, and on both foyers arched doorways lead to a fan of aisles which concentrate upon the pastor's platform and choir. The choir is banked in a high arch which is flanked by the pipes of the organ.

Great lunettes each containing an arched window, pierce the side walls of the massive dome to flood the church with daylight, while at night seven moon fixtures each seven feet in diameter and 16 feet high are used. There are seats for 4,000 in the auditorium. Below is an assembly room which seats 1,200 and back to the rear of the auditorium is the pastor's study.

One and a half million miles of sea travel is the record of Miss Anna Dale, of Swansea, England, who is now on her fifty-sixth trip to New Zealand. Miss Dale has been employed for forty years by the governmental emigration service. She accompanies parties of women emigrants to their new homes. Her first voyages to Australia and New Zealand were made much less dull then than it is on the liner.

A prehistoric pueblo beside the highway between Flagstaff, Ariz., and Tuba City, is being restored by the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution. The ruin is the largest of many dotting the forests which cover the San Francisco mountains. The work is far from completed, but Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the bureau who has charge of the excavations, estimates that the pueblo comprises about thirty-five rooms. That the pueblo is centuries old is indicated by the age of a majestic yellow pine, at least 150 years old, growing in one of the rooms.

Chemically treated pine needles have worked out in Germany as a substitute for wool for certain purposes. By varying the process a woolly product is obtained that comes either in the shape of fine sheet wadding or in soft fleeces that are used to stuff mattresses. The pine wool has fine, strong fibres not unlike hemp, and finds its best use when woven into heavy materials such as carpets and horse blankets. The new process has a valuable asset in one of its by-products that results from the chemical treatment necessary to remove the rosin from the needles. The sticky residue is shaped into resinous briquettes which have a high fuel value and have found a ready use in the manufacture of illuminating gas.

OTIS SKINNER VALUES STAGE "RAGS" DEARLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—Otis Skinner's stage rags are very dear to him. One can always buy new stuff but not rags, at least the kind he wore in Kismet and will wear this winter in The Honor of the Family.

Nineteen years ago Mr. Skinner played in The Honor of the Family when he created the role of Colonel Phillippe Bridau. He has elected to revive the old colonel, who is very much a rogue, and the veteran actor took from the moth balls the colonel's old down-at-the-heel uniform.

"There I am," said Mr. Skinner, pointing to a life-sized figure as the colonel, in a handsome painting. "That is the way I look when I make my appearance in the stage and begin raising hell."

But it must be a rather enjoyable hell, if it can be raised with such a twinkle in the colonel's eye. Skinner's twinkle seems deeper and the eyes browner when they are contrasted with his white hair that is not always permitted to show on the stage.

Mr. Skinner deplores the commercial aspect of the stage.

"I don't want to be one of these old fellows who gloats on the past, but it is all so staggering. Why, do you know, that there are 50 legitimate theaters in New York where major productions are being presented? Everything happens so fast."

And then to youth.

"Youth is handicapped on the stage today. They are not given a chance. In the past there was a school of expressionism; a player had a chance to express himself. Today it is a study in suggestion and repression. Players are cast to type. They play themselves and many of them do it exceedingly well. But out of this type of acting we will never find any Shakespearian actors."

What Mr. Skinner objects to on the modern stage is the tendency to use it for vivisection of social problems.

"I think the stage should represent a Never-Never land, people want to believe the unreal."

RIVIERA IN THROES OF GREATEST LAND BOOM

NICE, Oct. 21 (AP)—Frenzied speculation never surpassed even in the hectic days of the Florida land boom, has struck the French Riviera. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being lost and made in a wild scramble for land from Toulon to Mentone.

The English are in the majority among speculators but Frenchmen, Germans, Americans and Spaniards are all taking advantage of the unprecedented rise in land values.

Every kilometre on the Corniche road between Cannes and Monte Carlo is littered with huge posters advertising lots for sale. Juan-les Pins, a hamlet a year ago, has developed into a brilliant casino town practically over night. In the fall of 1925, land around the few French cottages and the one inn could be bought for 20 francs per metre. It now brings 300 francs.

At Venice, Grasse and Saint Raphael, the same speculation is in progress.

THE WAY TO HONORABLE SUCCESS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

He got $2.80 a day wages.

Like most other men who work for wages, he wasn't satisfied with his. He wanted more income.

Nor was he content to remain a railroad section hand all his life. He was ambitious.

"So he struck for higher wages, and took a 'correspondence course' to fit himself for a $10,000 position," you are inclined to say.

Wrong again.

He stuck to his distasteful job and his meagre wages. He did the best work he knew how on the job and saved something out of his wages, small as they were. In fact, he managed, somehow, to save enough to buy a vacant lot in the town. Next he saved enough more to buy sufficient lumber to put up a small store on that lot. Then he went ahead and built the store, doing all the work with his own hands before and after his regular work hours on the track.

Now the store is done and rented for $40 a month, which increases Mr. Clark's daily income by $1.33. Also, because of the industry he showed as section hand and the manifest interest he took in doing his work efficiently and well the railroad has promoted him to section foreman, with an advance of another dollar a day.

That's the story of Richard Clark, up to date, as vouched for by the local paper.

Nobody of appreciative reason, however, believes it is the end of the story. There will be another chapter devoted to Richard Clark, conductor. And then another telling how he became train dispatcher. And others detailing his further advancement to assistant division superintendent, general superintendent, vice-president in charge of traffic, president. There's almost no limit to the possible attainments of such a man, with such ideals and such industrious persistence.

I confess, however, that it isn't future possibilities which intrigue me so much as past and present achievements by this same Richard Clark. It's not so much what the man may yet do as what he has already done which makes we want to clap my hands.

This country appears to be even full and bubbling over with skilled and unskilled workmen who seem pretty nearly unanimously agreed that they aren't getting wages enough to live on and are being worked too hard. Wherefore the papers are full of accounts of their "striking" for more pay better jobs. One conservative estimate of the amount of wages they actually lost in this manner, last year, amounts to more than $250,000,000. Of course, some of this loss was recouped by advances forced by successful "strikes." But not all were successful. And the recouping is a slow task even when won. For instance, if a man getting $3 a day "strikes" for $3.30 and wins the advance after being "out on strike" a hundred days, he will have lost $300 in wages. When he resumes work at 30 cents a day more, he's got to labor 1000 days, or about three years and three months, to get back the loss.

That's where the case of Richard Clark of Oklahoma seems to suggest a lesson worth considering somewhat seriously.

He wasn't getting even so much as $3 a day, only $2.80. It may, I think, be assumed that the $2.80 he got for his day's work wasn't capable of buying any more than $2.80 which any other section man received. Yet none of the others on that piece of track saved enough to buy a lot and the materials for a store building. Richard Clark did.

The whole bunch started on even terms, eight hours a day work on the track and $2.80 wages for the day's work. They were all laborers,—"hired men,"—"proletarians." But now Richard Clark is not only laborer, he is also capitalist. He is the owner of an improved lot which is paying him steady and regular income. He is still earning wages as section man. His invested capital is also earning interest in the form of rent.

Why should this have happened to Richard Clark, and to none of the others who started with him at the pick and the tamp-bar?

Ah, friends, the answer to that question is not in any form of "luck" or of favoritism, but in Richard Clark himself.

But.—

Just because he didn't like the frying-pan, he didn't think it either desirable or judicious to jump into the fire.

He proceeded to make the best of the bad job he found himself tethered to. He worked his eight hours so industriously and capably that even the hard-boiled division superintendent found it "good business" to promote him to foremanship at an increased wage. He saved something from that beggarly $2.80 a day, while the other hands were grumblingly complaining that they couldn't even live decently, using the last cent of theirs. He took the scant hours of daylight remaining after his railroad work was completed to build his rentable store, while they were playing pinochle or rolling the balls in a ten-pin alley or shooting pool or frequenting speak-easies.

He is now getting $3.80 a day as section boss, because he did the thing he didn't like but which he found at his hand to do, and did it as well as he knew how. He is also getting $1.33 a day as rental-interest on his investment because he simply wouldn't spend his last red cent for things he liked well enough, but could get along without. Altogether, he's getting $5.13 a day, now, while the others, who started even with him, are still pulling down their $2.80 each.—And most of them are undoubtedly disgruntled and jealous of what they call his "luck."

Yet, as you must admit, it wasn't "luck" at all, but a combination of industry and ambition and prudent thrift and willingness to make temporary sacrifices for future and enduring advantage.

As I read the story it seems to tell me that Richard Clark wanted a better job and bigger pay just a little more hungrily than any of the others. So he went ahead, in the way nearest to his hands, to attain his desires, while they took it out in complaining. He manifested his purpose in his acts; they vaporised their wishes in mere words. They talked loud and long; he worked hard and long. They said things; he did them. They roamed about with their mouths open, waiting for somebody to drop plums into them; he went and shook the tree. His method tended to fill his stomach and his basket with edible and digestible fruit; theirs to produce windcolic.

It is fairly apparent that every man has his free choice between these two courses of conduct. It depends a great deal less on surrounding circumstances which he shall take than on the man himself.

One great trouble with the hard-times howlers is that they won't recognize, at the outset, the simple, fundamental, primary truth expressed succinctly in the old saying, "You can't eat your cake and have it, too." Old farmers tell of men who have a champagne thirst on a hard-cider income. It begins to look as if there were a good many more of that sort than of the other. We've some of us heard the doggerel verse: "If wishes were fishes we'd all go swim." But they aren't. No shrimp ever yet became a whale merely by wishing that he was 90 feet long.

In this very practical and somewhat unsympathetic world the only way to attain honorable success is to earn it. The only way to get ahead, if you don't own a horse or an automobile, is by putting one foot in front of the other, a step at a time. It won't help a tiny bit towards getting yourself an auto to envy the joyriders who go scooting past while you have to trudge along. The only way for a decent man to get one of his own is to earn and save money to buy one. And he can't do that either by throwing up the one job within reach, or by using the last red cent of his earnings to buy things he likes but doesn't actually need.

"Dogged does it," according to one of my favorite old saws. The most of us have to creep before we can walk and walk before we can run. We are not exceptional geniuses, but just common folks. "It takes many a pickle to make a muckle" for us. But there's no other honest way for us to get the "muckle" than by slowly and painfully adding "mickle" to "mickle."

In 99 cases out of 100 it's what is under our own hats which determines whether we shall come to live in a house on Easy street or abide permanently in a tenement on Poverty Hollow.

Other men's failures won't save us, nor will other men's help boost us very far along the road. If we want to be cocksure of a hunk of cake for tomorrow's lunch, we've got to forego our second helping, today, and lay that extra piece by. We can't gobble down both slabs right now and expect to find one of them left, next time.

As a cold matter of fact, it isn't anywhere near so much what one's income is that counts, as what one's outgo is.

I read in almost every daily paper of men who "can't live" on $5 or $6 a day.

And then I read of Richard Clark, who not only lived but became a fledgeling capitalist on $2.80 a day.

If one's income is measured in teaspoonfuls he will soon run dry if he shovels it out with a tablespoon.

THE FARMER.

Where Thomas Dreier Lives and Works

THIS is Snug Gables, at Winchester, Mass., where Thomas Dreier lives the philosophy expressed in his writings. The philosophy of beauty, of good-will, of peace, happiness and content. The philosophy of The Golden Rule in business. The philosophy that this is a mighty good world, and that most men are better than they willingly admit. From here go out the countless inspirations which are helping to bring business to the new-day basis.

Snug Gables was built for his work-shop as well as his home. Here both Mr. and Mrs. Dreier carry out the principles they preach.

One of Mrs. Dreier's philosophies is genial hospitality. Hundreds of well-known people come to bask in this atmosphere. The late Lord Leverhume was one of the frequent guests. All go away with new ideas on well-directed living. Also on scientific housekeeping, where every item has its studied purpose.

One of the factors in this ideal regime is the serving of La Touraine (Extra) Coffee. At every breakfast, every dinner, it is served in the perfect way. And Mrs. Dreier says that nothing people find here receives more commendations. It fits in with all that Snug Gables is designed to typify. It is as much beyond the ordinary as everything else in this home. Let it add a delight to your home.

Interesting facts about La Touraine (Extra) Coffee

It is the largest-selling coffee in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees in America. In this home of exacting coffee critics, it is considered the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

It is the coffee served in many dining places famous for their coffees. In all Statler Hotels, for instance. In the magnificent Shoreland of Chicago. In countless country homes which study fine hospitality.

The blend combines the four finest coffees that grow. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Each derives its excellent flavor from one of the rarest soils of the earth.

Three of the coffees combined in this blend cost 50% more than ordinary coffee, and 25% more than Sao Paulo, the prize coffee of Brazil. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

The formula for this blend is a secret, carefully preserved. Coffee experts spent twenty years in perfecting it. No other blend has been made to resemble it. Those who find here their ideal flavor can find it nowhere else.

Mr. E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests, tastes and selects all coffees used in this blend. His duty is to maintain, without regard to cost, this premier coffee flavor. He pays any price necessary to combine in La Touraine (Extra) the maximum delights.

La Touraine (Extra) is sold direct to retail grocers. This to save middlemen's profits. It is sold in double sealed cartons, not in cans. These and other economies—about 11 cents per pound—pay for the extra quality. Thus users get this matchless coffee without a fancy price.

NEW LONDON MAN WHO TOOK IRON PIPE TO DAUGHTER'S SUITOR ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—Joseph Michel, of Jefferson avenue, who murderously attacked James Romano, 24, of 15 Belden court, last evening by beating Romano with an iron pipe when he found Romano walking along Montauk avenue with his daughter, and who remained in hiding after the attack, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh charged with assault. He furnished a surety on his bond for presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. It is understood that a suspended sentence will be meted out to Michel for it became known that Romano and the Michel girl intend to marry and Romano does not desire to bring about a condition of hostilities between himself and his intended father-in-law. NEXT WEEK WEDNESDAY IS DESIGNATED NAVY DAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—Next week Wednesday will be Navy day, not only in New London, but at every port where the federal government maintains navy yards, submarine bases or ports used by the boats of the government. The day has been approved by President Coolidge as "Navy Day," and boats representing the government will be in every port of prominence that day. Although New London has seen naval craft, including a fleet of submarines stationed here, there will be but one boat of the government here on that occasion. That boat will be U. S. S. Chewink and she will be open to inspection at the submarine base from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon that all who desire may visit the boat and be received by officers. The remainder of the large fleet stationed here including the submarines as I the U. S. S. Bushnell and Camden will be sent to other ports and will not return to New London until the latter part of next week. The navy department has arranged for launches to leave the municipal pier, foot of State street every half hour Wednesday in order to transport visitors to and from the submarine base.

All the hub bub caused yesterday by the complaint of Max Hillsberg, 28 Denison avenue has petered out. He made a complaint against Patrolman John Sullivan, as a result of Sullivan commanding Hillsberg because of the latter's assertion that it was he, and not Officer Sullivan, who captured Fortunato Fella, Monday afternoon when Fella was fleeing through Howard street to escape arrest, after having mortally wounded his wife by stabbing her in the neck on Bank St. Tues too, although Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky interrogated several witnesses. The act of Officer Sullivan whose name appears on the police blotter as having arrested Fella, was merely a personal matter between the officer and Hillsberg.

Frank Piscatello, a youth residing at 11 Moore court, was struck by an automobile driven by Max Munsen, 266 Bank street, this afternoon, but was not seriously injured. The boy was on Bank street, near Shaw street and started to cross the street. As he did so several automobiles were passing. He escaped being struck until the cars driven by Munsen came along. The fender struck the boy and sent him to the pavement. Munsen brought the automobile to a stop as soon as possible and assisting the child into it, sped to Lawrence hospital, where an examination did not reveal any serious hurts. The boy was then driven to his home.

The condition of Edgar T. Thomas, promoter of the Thomas Transfer company, who was operated upon at New Haven several weeks ago, is reported as rapidly improving. It is believed Mr. Thomas will be able to return to his apartment at the Hotel Majestic within a week or ten days.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The Shamrock Handicap which will show at the Breed theater from today to Saturday is a thrilling Peter B. Kyne story of a heroic Irish jockey who rides an Irish Jumper to victory on an American track. Leslie Fenton and Janet Gaynor, who played the dramatic role of Anna Burger in The Johnstown Flood, have the leads while the comedy centers about J. Farrell MacDonald, of The Iron Horse fame. John Ford directed The Shamrock Handicap.

The Shamrock Handicap is the story of a heroic Irish jockey and an Irish race horse transplanted to an American track. The jockey is injured when a rival pulls on the saddle of his horse, just as it is about to take a hurdle. The horse falls and the boy is believed to be hopelessly crippled. However in the great steeplechase event of the year, the jockey selected to ride Lady Sneila's horse can't manage her and the crippled boy is strapped to the saddle and rides to victory over his rival. With the purse money the jockey is restored to health and Lady Sheila and her friends return to Ireland where she marries the boy.

Breed Theater

Graustark, George Barr McCutcheon's entrancing romance of a mythical European kingdom, has been modernized for the screen. That is, the gripping love drama which the novelist so vividly pictured has not been altered, but the tiny kingdom has been brought up to date. Norma Talmadge enacts the role of the beautiful Princess Yvette, with Eugene O'Brien as her leading man. First National will present the picture at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Palace Theater

Tonight for one night only the Palace presents another of its popular semi-professional vaudeville programs in addition to the big picture program. Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights have proven great entertainment and provided a class of vaudeville far superior to that usually presented in cities of the size of Norwich and the management promises that tonights bill will be the best of any so far shown this season. The picture program is headed by Harry Langdon hailed by the critics as the only serious rival of Charlie Chaplin as a screen comedian in his latest success The Strong Man. Frances Comstock, a delightful girl arrived in the first rank of comedy kings. Frances Comstock eminent critic and Harry Langdon deserves the crown of clowns for the first time in the history of the movies Chaplin has a real rival in creating comedy that is artistic as well as funny. Langdon is a genius and after seeing The Strong Man I wondered if indeed he had not outstripped the best work of the one-time rival. The Strong Man is screaming funny and the star is supported by a great cast including Priscilla Bonner, Gertrude Astor, William V. Mong and Robert McKim. Of equal importance is the other feature of this big double bill Rose of the World, the screen version of Kathleen Norris splendid story with a distinguished cast including Patsy Ruth Miller, Allan Forest, Pauline Garon, Rockcliffe Fellowes and Alec Francis, one of the most powerful romances ever screened depicting the color and drama in the everyday problems of real people. The added attractions include Gene Tunney in the seventh chapter of his exciting adventure serial The Fighting Marine and the Palace Topical Events with news of the world today, with fine musical accompaniment by Walter Lang and his Palace concert orchestra, taken as a whole just about as fine entertainment as one could find anywhere.

Broadway Theater

The bill of hits would be just what the program at the Broadway deserves to be called. Everyone of the Keith-Albee acts are above par with splendid entertainment offered to the most discriminate of audience. An exceedingly attractive and most varied dance routine was offered by the Laurel Sisters in Dear Feet of Speed who opened the bill.

Willies and Knight, monarchs of fun displayed extraordinary ability in getting the laughs with their new bright patter and songs.

The big feature introduced that inimitable star and bit of dainty loveliness Juva Marconi. Her reputation as a ballarina is almost as broad as the theater itself and with her company of five clever and attractive girls, captured the hearts of the audience. It is truly a magnificent attraction.

The well known comedian and unusual monologist, Henry Frey, the reformer with red hat tops from Washington kept all in an uproar with his discourse.

Patty is proclaimed to be the world's greatest upside down juggler and seeing him once convinced us of the fact.

Director Emory Johnson, his brilliant author-mother, Mrs. Emilie Johnson, and the popularity of Ralph Lewis combine to make The Last Edition, an F. O. B. production, which was shown for the first time locally at the Broadway theater yesterday, one of the most vital and stirring screen entertainments of today. The newest Johnson picture seems destined to outdo even its famous predecessor The Third Alarm in point of popular appeal. Our advice is don't miss it.

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

Karl Dane, who gave up a screen career for a chicken farm in the San Fernando Hills near Los Angeles, has returned to the studios again following his success in the role of Slim in The Big Parade which will be shown at the Capitol theater, Willimantic, October 31st and Nov. 1st. Dane had acted in the screen version of Ambassador Gerard's My Four Years in Germany, made in the early days of the war. He then retired and was brought back by the casting director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to support John Gilbert in King Vidor's picturization of Laurence Stalling's original screen story.

Palace Theatre

Music is the logical medium of interpreting the mood and character of the motion picture story, and the music score to "The Big Parade," coming to the Palace theatre, is said to be the finest example of a musical counterpart of a big motion picture. The music to this picture has been as carefully done as the making of the picture, and the excellence of this score is quickly noted by every audience.

John Philip Sousa, the famous bandmaster, says that the big photoplays such as "The Big Parade" have been of incalculable benefit in spreading the love for good music throughout the country.

The musical accompaniment composed for "The Big Parade" is the greatest score and most remarkable piece of motion picture synchrony to date, according to H. H. Hamilton, musical director of "The Biz Parade" touring orchestra. "There is no doubt," said Mr. Hamilton, "that the combination of picture with music, as is here produced, creates the finest and most complete form of motion picture art, intended to intensify or excite the human senses by simultaneous reception through eye and ear.

In the first part of the picture as the boys enlist for service overseas the famous tunes of 1917 are heard, including "Over There," and "Tipperary," introducing "Bill O'Hara" and his Scandinavian comrade "Slim" is provided with a Nordic strain. A rollicking motif from George M. Cohan's "A Little Millionaire" brings on their buddy Jim Apperson, played by John Gilbert.

The first theme for the French girl part, enacted by Renee Adoree is Maurice Yvain's "La Belote" the merry air so often used by Mistinguett. But Melisande also has a special theme of her own, the real love motif of the piece. In Y'Ener's "Douce Fleure", a French composition previously unheard here. Many requests are received at theatres playing this picture for the name of the love song in this picture and this theme is said to be the finest composition ever introduced in a photoplay.

Wisely the arrangers have shunned the racket of so-called descriptive battle music, preferring human interest motives among which the serious one for the hero Jim stands out prominently. Jim's theme, their first real, and "My Buddy" accompany the trio in the trenches; in going over the top an original theme is built up, together with more than a suggestion of "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Rapp's Orchestra in New London

Barney Rapp and his original Victor recording orchestra comes to New London with repetition of the finest type of dance music gained not only through his work in ballrooms throughout the country but also as a celebrated Victor Recording orchestra.

The orchestra plays and sings, jazz peppers some of the numbers while others run to less broken rhythm and whatever band or conductor does, whether they play with or without their own songs, they are as exact, supple and instant as training and readiness can make them. As this is the first appearance of this sensationally successful dance orchestra the Lawrence hall on Bank street, New London, should be thronged to the doors on Monday evening.

TEXAS TURKIES OFFER NEW EFFECT IN PHOTOGRAPHY

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Discovery of the curious effects of [illegible] Texas [illegible] as a result [illegible] applied Chief [illegible] Bureau, explained that the white, fleecy Texas clouds register on film while [illegible] California clouds scarcely do at all, because the former have less moisture and therefore less density, permitting the sun's rays to penetrate. Also, being light and evanescent, they are swept in rapidly changing formations by the Gulf breeze. The density of the rolling California clouds hiding the sun cast a shadow that permits no exposure on negatives.

Reports from Rev. W. F. Borchert of Edgewood, R. I., a former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Windham, who is ill in a hospital there are somewhat discouraging.

STOCK PRICES RECOVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Abrupt recoveries, running from 1 to nearly 10 points, took place throughout today's stock market. The buying movement, which represented a combination of short covering by recent speculators for the decline and accumulation by venturesome pools, coincided with a lowering of call money rates from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent and a fresh break in cotton prices, which carried them to low levels for the season.

The recovery, which started in the last few minutes of trading yesterday, assumed impressive proportions at the opening, when large blocks fo stocks ranging from 2,000 to 12,000 shares, changed hands at net advances of 1 to 5 points. A wave of selling temporarily checked the upward movement around mid-day, but it was resumed in the early afternoon and continued through the close, although the volume of trading fell off in the last couple of hours.

The administration's assurances that the recent international bankers' manifestos contained no threat against American industry, coupled with a report that the borrowing demand for stocks to make deliveries against short sales had reached record-breaking proportions, are believed to have influenced the sudden change in speculative sentiment. After the close of the market, the New York Federal Reserve bank announced no change in the 4 per cent rediscount rate.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors were prominent in the rebound, the former closing 2 5-8 points higher at 138 and the latter showing a net gain of 4 points at 147 1-2. Timken Roller Bearing was the outstanding individual feature, soaring over 9 points to a new high record at 85 on buying influenced by the recent announcement of valuable railroad contracts.

Sensational advances were recorded by a number of high priced industrial specialties, including Commercial Solvents B, Dupont and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, all up 5 points or more.

Wilson & Co., preferred responded to the inauguration of dividends by jumping over 5 points to a new high at 70 7-8. Air Reduction, American Smelting, Butterick, Case Threshing Machine, Foundation Co., Mathieson Alkali, May Department Stores, Pullman, Radio, Remington Typewriter, South Porto Rican Sugar, United Drug and Warner Pictures A also recorded sharp gains.

Atchison was the outstanding leader in the railroad group, crossing 164 for an extreme gain of more than 7 points. The Kansas City Southern, the first railroad to report its September earnings, showed an increase of 16.61 in net operating income over the same month last year but "Nickel Plate" net dropped $292,984, although the stock moved up nearly 4 points. New York & Western, Lackawanna, Atlantic Coast Line and Delaware & Hudson also recorded substantial gains.

Wheat prices yielded fractionally in apparent sympathy with the decline in cotton, which closed 28 to 30 points lower on expectations of a government crop estimate next Monday in excess of 17,000,000 bales. Raw sugar held firm and coffee prices rallied 6 to 16 points.

Time money and commercial paper markets were unchanged.

Irregular fluctuations characterized the trading in foreign exchanges. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84 7-16 but French francs again moved slightly below the 3 cent level and Italian lire eased 5 points lower around 4.30 cents, after having been advanced to a new high in London before the New York market opened. Spanish pesetas received good buying support throughout.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The bond market resumed its upward movement today with buying influenced by the rally in stocks and the signs of definitely easier credit conditions. A reduction in call money to 4 per cent, and the decision of the federal reserve authorities not to alter the rediscount rate were welcomed in investment circles.

Market activities, however, took second place to announcements concerning new financing. An international loan of approximately $100,000,000 for Belgium is expected to reach the American and European markets next week. Half the issue will be sold here and the remainder divided between London and the continent, according to information received in banking quarters.

Railroad liens made the best showing of listed bonds today, being strengthened by the impressive buying movement in stocks of the carriers. Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Northern Pacific and other representative issues took part in the advance which was aided by reports that increased traffic and favorable earnings this fall might lead to larger dividends.

Foreign bonds held firm although no striking features developed in this division. Belgian obligations were strong in reflection of loan prospects and German 7s sold

EXPECT FRANKLIN ST. WHITE WAY TO BE COMPLETED BY HOLIDAYS

The first work in putting in the Franklin street White Way has just been begun and an employe of the gas and electrical department was engaged Thursday in digging the holes on the easterly side of the street, from Franklin square northerly, where the new iron poles are to be set for the White Way lights.

The Franklin street White Way is to extend from Franklin square to the Boswell avenue park and will call for about 18 poles on each side of the street, which will be set opposite each other. General Manager C. W. Taggart said Thursday evening that the department expects to push the work along with speed and it is his expectation that the White Way will be completed in time for the Christmas holidays.

The poles have been here for some time and most of the other material is now on hand so that the work can be forwarded to the finish without interruption. The installation will be of the same type as the Main street White Way, using the same kind of iron poles with ornamental base and the colonial type lanterns on brackets extending from the pole. As the Main street work, the iron poles will take the place of the wooden poles which now carry the electric light and other wires along the street.

INJUNCTION TO KEEP WATER IN ROGERS LAKE

In connection with the flooded gardens suit brought in the superior court for this county by the Old Lyme Realty Co., of New Haven, against Frank L. Powell, of Old Lyme, Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas has issued a temporary injunction, enjoining Frank L. Powell, his employes and others, under a penalty of $5,000 from permitting a water flow from Rogers Lake, Old Lyme, by breaking down the dam or opening the sluice-way until further order of the court.

In the $10,000 damage suit the realty company alleges that it is the owner of land comprising 170 acres subdivided into attractive building lots, facing on lake and that Rogers lake and canal are the chief assets of the property and make it desirable to purchasers of site for homes and summer residences.

The plaintiff further alleges that on Oct. 11, 1926, and on divers other days the defendant has wrongfully opened the sluice-way in the dam, causing the water to flow out from the lake so that Rogers lake has become unsightly in that leaves, grass, stumps of trees, and other rubbish and material has appeared above the surface of the lake which, before was covered by water.

By reason of the alleged acts of the defendant, the plaintiff claims it has been deprived of the attractive features and inducements held out by it to purchasers of its lots and will be unable to sell former lots bordering on the lake.

NINE N. Y. GUNMEN ARE FOUND GUILTY OF INTENT TO KILL

Jury in Criminal Superior Court at Bridgeport Returned Verdict After Deliberating One Hour and Thirty Minutes—Sentences Were Imposed Varying From Three to Thirty Years—Assaulted Two Garment Workers at Stamford Sept. 24—State's Five Principal Witnesses Failed to Appear—Counsel For Accused Men Offered No Defense—It is Understood a Motion For Appeal Will Be Made.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 22—(AP)—Nine New York gunmen, on trial here on assault with intent to kill on two garment workers of Stamford September 24 were found guilty here today in criminal superior court by a jury after one hour and thirty minutes deliberation. Sentences varied from three to thirty years.

Judge Newell Jennings sentenced the nine to states prison, the sentences varying based on the individual's criminal record.

The sentences were: Louis Harris, 15 to 30 years, Henry Blum, five to ten years, Max Baer, four to seven years; Jack Lutnak, Harry Tittelbaum, Charles Dickie, James Catus, Samuel Rosenberg and James Cortle, each three to five years.

The men were found guilty of having assaulted Enrico and Ciric Pozzulo, Stamford garment workers, while they were on their way to work in a taxicab with two armed guards. Sawed-off pool cues wrapped in newspapers were the weapons used.

A feature of the trial was that the state's five principal witnesses failed to appear to testify against the accused and counsel for the nine offered no defense and did not put his clients on the stand.

It is understood a motion for appeal will be made.

Louis Harris, who received the severest sentence, came under the statutes of habitual criminal. His record showed that he was arrested in New York in January, 1910, charged with undermining the morals of a young girl but received a small sentence on the charge of assault. In February, 1918, was arrested on the charge of attempted robbery, for which he served a state's prison sentence. In 1921, he was convicted of grand larceny and served a term in Sing Sing.

Harry Bloom's criminal record, as shown by the records in the possession of the state's attorney, was that he first was arrested in New York city under the name of Moses Gross for frequenting a place where a drug was smoked. In 1913, under the name of Harry Bloom, he was under federal indictment charged with violation of the Mann act, and went to Atlanta federal prison for four years. He did not welcome under the habitual criminal statute. Max Baer was convicted in the third degree of a grave charge on November 3 1921, and served a state prison term, according to the New York records.

State's Attorney Comley stated that he had no records against the other six men, who received the minimum sentences. In imposing sentences, Judge Jennings told counsel for the defense that the sentence against Harris was mandatory under the state law, and that those who were found guilty of assault with intent to kill could be sent to state prison for not more than thirty years.

Before sentence was passed on the accused Judge Jennings asked their counsel if they wanted to make any statement regarding the men whose criminal records had been read by the state's attorney. Attorney Isaiah De Bove, of New York, pleading for Bloom asked for leniency as far as possible for the court to go, explaining that the industrial fight between organized labor and the so-called scabs were battles in which, of noble was at stake. There was no malice, he said, of the men towards the Pozzulo brothers as men, but the fight was over a principle, no less than the principle waged by the early American patriots for independence.

QUEEN MARIE SPENDS BUSY DAY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The dizzy whirl of America's reception for royalty today carried Queen Marie of Rumania through another phase of activities such as have crowded in upon her so thick and fast that she has been able to snatch only a few hours of sleep the last two nights.

Today's program gave her an opportunity to glimpse the gigantic scale of American finances and education. New York bankers, representing the administration of sums aggregating more than seven billion dollars, received her at a luncheon at the Bankers' club. Major Radu Irmiescu, Rumanian banker, and one of the speakers, pointed out that the money represented by one of the hosts whose name was not mentioned, was alone four times greater than the entire national debt of Rumania.

After the luncheon, the queen inspected Columbia university, one of America's largest educational institutions. She was reminded by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the university, in his address of welcome, that it was one of her direct ancestors, King George II, who six generations ago gave authority for the charter creating what is now Columbia university.

Major Irmiescu, in his address at the Bankers' club, praised Queen Marie as an outstanding heroine in the World war.

"Through plague, pestilence and death the queen went everywhere undaunted," he said. "She lived in the midst of her people in the darkest hours in her country's history."

He said Rumania was one of the nations which suffered most in the World war but which, "practically speaking, received nothing as reparations." Despite this, however, Rumania "has set her house in order," he said, and has balanced its budget."

Students of Columbia turned out in mass to welcome the queen. Replying to Dr. Butler's address of welcome, she said: "Until now most of what are termed our intellectual people people have gone to France and Germany. So the World war has changed that. The doors of America are open in a way we had not understood."

Tonight the queen was guest of honor at a dinner given by the Joan and Sons institute. Here again she met men representing industries worth billions of dollars.

During her remarks at the Bankers' club, Queen Marie took cognizance of, although she did not directly refer to, persistent rumors that one of her reasons for coming here was to pave the way for a Rumanian loan.

"Many will come forward to ask," she said. "The reason why I have come, I have come to ask for your love, your friendship and your understanding. Other than that I have not come to ask for anything from America."

MRS. MINNA CLARK HELD AS ACESSORY BEFORE FACT

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 22—(AP)—Mrs. Minna Clark today was held for action of the grand jury as an accessory before the fact in the slaying of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

County Judge Frank L. Cleary in holding Mrs. Clark declared that the state had made out a prima facie case against Mrs. Clark and that he was empowered to fix bail.

Mrs. Clark spied on the two lovers before they were slain, according to the testimony of Mrs. Mary Demarest, an aunt of Mrs. Clark and her son Edward Demarest. They said they saw Mrs. Clark watching the rector and the choir singer when the two were keeping a tryst in Buechbaum Park.

Freeman Woodbridge, counsel for Mrs. Clark, said he would apply to Supreme Court Justice Parker for his client's release on bail. Special Prosecutor Simpson declared that he would not oppose the motion.

CLOSING OF PLANT LEAVES VILLAGE WITHOUT INDUSTRY

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—The Salmon Falls Manufacturing company at Salmon Falls, N. H., will be closed, sold, and the assets liquidated when present orders are filled, it was made known today. The company, capitalized at $1,000,000 was engaged in the manufacture of tire fabrics and when running at capacity employed 600 workers. The company was organized 104 years ago for the manufacture of woolen products.

The village of Salmon Falls, numbering about 1,000 inhabitants, owned the mills as virtually its only industry. In asking for authority to close the mill the directors said that for six years the business on tire fabrics has been almost uniformly unprofitable.

PANIC RESULTED WHEN 75-GALLON STILL EXPODED

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Some 3,000 students and workers, many of the latter women, were thrown into a panic today when a 75-gallon still exploded in the rear of the premises occupied by a dyeing company on the sixth floor of a loft building adjoining the Washington square branch of New York university.

The explosion blew out every window pane on the sixth, seventh and eighth floors of the loft building. Copper coils came hurtling through one of the sixth floor windows to fall with a crash, in Waverly place.

OBITUARY

William D. Livermore

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 22—(AP)—William D. Livermore, long known as an authority on textile chemistry in the woolen and worsted field, died at his home here today. He had been prominently identified with the American Woolen company since its founding, as chief chemist. He was a charter member and vice president of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists. He had served on research committees of the association. For several months Mr. Livermore had been in declining health and that R. L. Burwell substituted. A bank teller noted the alleged erasure and summoned a detective.

Questioned by officers, Davis fell down and admitted to the Federal Reserve bank to a point ten miles from Atlanta where a cache in an evergreen bush yielded a number of checks, alleged to have been stolen from the Federal Reserve mail and ranging in amounts from $500 to $41,123.22.

Davis' method of operation, post-office inspectors declared, was to lounge in the lobby of the Atlanta postoffice waiting for the Federal Reserve Bank Porter tomorrow for the mail. In transferring the mail from the box to a mail pouch, the inspectors said, several letters would fall to the floor and be allowed to remain there until the box was emptied before they were collected and placed in the pouch. Davis, the inspectors charge, would manage to secure several of the letters before the porter completed his task.

In addition to a rubber stamp outfit, with which officers charge check alterations were made, Davis' personal effects yielded a small screw driver with which he is alleged to have opened postoffice mail boxes.

MARY GARDEN REPORTS A GLORIOUS VACATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Mary Garden, opera singer, arrived on the Aquitania today with information of a pseudo-scientific research she had made aboard which lends color to the theory that Jonah must have been "sitting pretty" during his well-known seavoyage as supercargo to a whale.

It was a man-eating shark, quite satisfactorily refuted at the time, with which Miss Garden carried on her experiments, but the findings would no doubt have been the same had there been a whale present for her to work on.

"I had a glorious vacation," she said. "Most of the time at my villa at Beaulieu on the Mediterranean. I swam often with my two dogs. There were sharks too. One day I was about to plunge in when I sighted a maneater within four feet of me. I called off the dogs and the gardener killed the shark. I put my arm down its throat and it felt like a smooth velvet cushion."

Miss Garden called attention to the fact that she only weighed 118 pounds. "Less than ever in my life!"

"How do I do this?" she asked herself when none of the reporters asked her quick enough. "Well, I do something that few other women can do: I resist gorgeous dinners."

She was committed to the county jail in Danbury, where Bouten is held awaiting trial for abandonment of his wife. Bouten will not be tried on the theft charge it is understood, until the abandonment case is settled.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22—(AP)—Two men and a girl who accompanied Miss Beulah Purvis, 18, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., to a skating rink last Sunday night were sought by Hamilton county deputy sheriffs tonight in their efforts to solve the murder of Miss Purvis, whose body, partly clad and battered from blows, was found in the big Miami river near Cleves, Ohio.

The body was identified today by her father, John Purvis, Lawrenceburg farmer, after it had lain in the county morgue here three days.

Had Been Stealing Checks From Mail

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Theft of approximately $100,000 in checks from mail consigned to the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, during the past several months, was disclosed here today with the arrest of Henry F. Davis, 23, by a private detective agency. Davis was held under charges of stealing from a postoffice and larceny of a government reservation. His preliminary hearing will be held tomorrow before United States Commissioner Ledbetter.

Davis' arrest followed presentation of an alleged altered check for $1,000 to a local bank for payment. Postoffice inspectors charge the check was originally drawn in favor of the Federal Reserve bank. They said the Federal Reserve name had been erased

Trivial Damage From Shocks in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22—(AP)—San Francisco residents were awakened today by earthquake shocks that startled the guests of the downtown hotels. Not a building in the city, even of the oldest and flimsiest construction, was damaged except for a few broken windows and cracked plaster.

Some hotel guests dressed and went to the open spaces later returning to their rooms. The shocks, of which four were felt here, extended from Santa Rosa, sixty miles north to Paso Robles, 130 miles south.

The first tremor was registered by the University of California seismograph at 4:36 a. m., the second an hour later and two others at 6:42 and 8:04. The first was the sharpest and the

17 AMERICANS IN ISLE OF PINES STORM DEATH LIST

Hurricane and High Water Caused 32 Deaths—Estimates Place Damage at Something Like $100,000,000—Many Towns Appear to Have Been Completely Wiped Out—Story of the Destruction Was Brought to Havana By Three Americans.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Isle of Pines suffered severe damage in the hurricane which swept across the Caribbean on Wednesday, 32 persons being killed there, among them 17 Americans, and about 100 injured.

This was the startling news brought to Havana this afternoon after more than 48 hours without word from the Isle of Pines, which lies about 35 miles south of Cuba.

From all the sections of Cuba affected by the storm, reports came in today which added to the steadily mounting list of dead and injured. It is now estimated that more than 600 persons were killed, about 1000 injured and more than 6,500 families were made homeless.

As for the losses as calculated in money, no definite amount can be set, but it has been estimated that it will touch something like $100,000,000.

Many towns, from which meagre news came today, appear to have been completely wrecked. Among these are Batabano, San Antonio, Del Rio Bandera, Cuba De Melena, Jamaica, Guara, Caimitos, Gabriel, Batabano and on the Isle of Pines, Santa Fe, Santa Barbara and San Francisco.

Throughout the area affected high water seems to have done almost as much damage as the hurricane. With the path of the storm officially reported to have swept from the Isle of Pines, through Batabano, and on to the north coast a few miles east of Havana, every village in that path from which word has come tells of inundations of a part or the whole settlement.

The story of the destruction wrought on the Isle of Pines was told by three Americans and an Old Colony newspaperman when they reached the capital this afternoon. They left Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, Thursday afternoon on the steamer Cristobal Colon, with 52 gravely injured. The steamer landed at Batabano, which is about 40 miles south of Havana, early this morning and they then came here to seek aid. They said that few buildings were left standing on the Isle of Pines and that now, after the storm had abated, work was started immediately to repair the damage to the Cristobal Colon, as it was the only means by which help could be summoned, the wireless apparatus having been destroyed.

Roads leading out of Havana are still choked with fallen trees and debris and considerable difficulty is being met by relief workers trying to reach the injured.

Lack of wire communications also is adding to the difficulties, although communication with a few places has been established by use of the wireless equipment of the cruiser Cuba brought to a dock not far from the presidential palace to enable President Machado to communicate with the interior sections in the offices of the interior and to make necessary arrangements.

It is believed that more than a week will elapse before telephone, railroad and telegraph communication can be on a restricted scale, can be established.

All the forces of the government are working strenuously to relieve suffering. Lines of trucks left this morning for the interior with carpenters and relief supplies. To protect the people a presidential decree has been issued establishing the prices of foodstuffs and necessary articles.

Havana itself is rapidly assuming its normal aspect. Piles of debris and fallen trees in all sections of the city made it difficult for the residents to get their cars moving again. Wednesday, Many were unable to get to their offices and the greater portion of the city was without electric lights and a supply of water.

The famous cane royal palm in the park was partly wrecked. Two persons were killed.

The work of clearing away the debris on streets is progressing rapidly. It is feared that many persons were drowned when their frail dwellings were swept away. Up to this afternoon, however, only 32 deaths had been taken from the wreckage.

The Isle of Pines, which is reported to have suffered severely through Wednesday's hurricane, lies 50 miles south of the coast of the island of Cuba and has an area of about 900 square miles.

The island is picturesque, with mountains, caves, plains and many streams, and because of its mild and salubrious climate, it has been for many years a favorite resort. Many wealthy Americans have made their homes there.

Its status left an open question by the Treaty of Paris signed after the Spanish-American war. The Isle of Pines was only in March 1925 recognized as a part of Cuba by the United States.

When the United States senate ratified the Isle of Pines treaty, which relinquished in favor of the Republic of Cuba all claim of title by the United States, an official holiday was declared in Cuba to celebrate the ratification. The population of the Isle of Pines is about 3,000. The capital is Nueva Gerona.

AMERICAN DEATH VICTIMS OF STORM AT ISLE OF PINES

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 23—(AP)—The casualty list from the Isle of Pines reaching Havana late this afternoon showed the following American deaths:

At Nueva Gerona, Mary A. James, William Davis, Dora Davis, Albert Davis, Delsey Davis, Joseph Davis.

At San Francisco, Irene Samuels, Mrs. Stevenson.

According to the first definite word reaching here from the Isle of Pines since the storm, which was the worst in its history, the isle suffered severely. A majority of houses on the entire island were destroyed or damaged, including a church which has withstood storms for the past eight years.

A majority of the buildings in Nueva Gerona were destroyed while only two houses, including the hotel, remained standing in Santa Fe. In Santa Barbara nearly all the houses were destroyed.

RED CROSS CALLS FOR RELIEF WORK IN CUBA

Within a few hours after the call was issued a number of communities had been received, and from them $3,000 from Secretary Kellogg. The organization will make an appropriation, probably $25,000 from its disaster fund to provide for immediate relief work.

Reports received here today told of the need of food and American naval vessels are being held in readiness to be dispatched to the island as needed.

At Red White headquarters it was said President Coolidge had been informed that the Cuban Red Cross was making a survey and would report later to the American Red Cross as to what assistance, if any, would be needed.

SENATOR WATSON DENIES UNDERSTANDING WITH KLAN

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—With [illegible] from Senator Watson, republican Indiana, that he had any understanding with the Ku Klux Klan for its political aid and from W. Lee Stephenson, grand dragon, that the Indiana Klan was supporting that senator in his campaign for re-election, the senate campaign funds committee today practically concluded its inquiry into the political situation in this state.

After taking Senator Watson's statement in his room at the Methodist hospital where he is recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident, Senator Reed of Missouri, the committee chairman, heard Smith and [illegible] a dozen other witnesses at the federal building and then adjourned the hearing to Kansas City next Monday.

Indiana politics again will occupy the attention of the committee there. The witnesses summoned include Mrs. Vivian Tracy Wheatcraft, who organized a women's committee here for Senator Watson during the recent republican primary campaign; Frederick L. Libby of New York, who spoke in this state, and Joseph Meyers, formerly of Indianapolis but now publisher of a magazine at Princeton, Mo.

Coming here from Chicago at the request of Senator Watson, Senator Reed found his colleagues in such physical condition that he could not carry out his plan to question him in the hospital sun parlor in the presence of newspapermen. Instead he went to the senators' room with a stenographer and took there his statement which subsequently was made public.

DIRIGIBLE TC-5 IS MOORED AT THE BOSTON AIR PORT

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The army non-rigid dirigible TC-5, which arrived here today from Lakehurst, N. J., on a training flight, tonight occupied new moorings at the Boston airport, in the absence of hangar and mooring mast, the great ship, hauled to earth by a group of soldiers, was lashed to two army tractors, each weighing five tons. Officers of the TC-5 said she could be forced to cast loose should a storm blow up during the night.

Lieut. William A. Gray, U. S. army, pilot commander, said the real purpose of the dirigible's flight was to acquaint the crew with Boston coast line.

On the flight from Lakehurst today the dirigible took a roundabout course, following the coast line, but made an average of 30 miles an hour, said to be remarkably fast time for craft of her class.

COMPLETES FRENCH REPORT OF WAR DEBT RATIFICATION

PARIS, Oct. 22—(AP)—Adrien Darlac, chairman of the special debt commission of the chamber of deputies, has concluded his report on the debt question which will be presented to the finance committee of the chamber next Wednesday.

The report, a voluminous document covering 101 typewritten pages, makes no outright recommendation, either favorable or unfavorable to ratification by parliament of the Berenger-Mellon accord, but the arguments are presented in such a manner as to leave no doubt that M. Durlac is opposed to ratification of the agreement as it stands.

"I am not hostile to the principle of the ratification of debt agreements signed by France," M. Darlac told a correspondent for the Associated Press. "But we must be safeguarded against the future. If assurance were given by the United States for the creation of an international commission composed of financiers bankers and experts from all countries interested, and if this commission were entrusted with the task of adjusting differences arising between the governments and to stipulate upon each country's capacity to pay at all times, would unhesitatingly recommend unrestricted ratification."

AUDITOR TELLS HOW MORSE BOOKS COVERED DEFICITS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—A witness for the government in the Morse trial today testified that the Morse interests in working off their bonds dead represented by steamships that had been sunk or sold some time previously, made up the deficit by increasing by millions the book value of the companies' assets and remaining steamships.

This witness, Thomas F. Keary, an accountant, said that, while auditor of the Morse companies, he was instructed to write dead assets of $3,274,356, representing steamships that had been sunk or sold. To make up the deficit thus created in the surplus of $894,600 shown on the principal company's statement, he testified, four remaining boats were written up from $300 to $500 a share, the value of the Virginia Shipbuilding company was increased from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 and the Groton Iron Works from $1,000,000 to $7,500,000. The entire transaction, when completed, caused a surplus of $4,272,176 to show on the company's statement, he testified.

2,000 ANIMALS AND BIRDS FROM AFRICAN JUNGLES

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—A little the worse for the change from African jungles to the heaving Atlantic, 2,000 assorted animals and birds, captured by the Smithsonian-Chrysler expedition, will arrive at Boston harbor Oct. 24, aboard the City of Calcutta. The expedition was headed by Dr. William M. Mann, superintendent of the National Zoological park, Washington.

Seasickness and cold weather has menaced the cargo to the extent that the giraffes were transfered to the furnace room for warmth, while gastronomic difficulties caused Washington officials to prescribe diets by radio to safeguard the animals.

Most of the traveling zoo was captured in the Tanganyika district of British East Africa. It includes, among others according to the radio, more than 60 species of mammals, 300 species of small birds seventeen leopards and lions five hyenas, 70 monkeys, 15 antelopes, and 25 species of reptiles, including the spitting cobra new in this country.

TO HOLD HEARINGS ON TRAIN AND TROLLEY SERVICE

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22—Two petitions, that of the Connecticut company to discontinue the operation of the trolley on its South Coventry-Willimantic branch line and that of Mayor John C. Tracy and 13 other local residents for the restoration of passenger train No. 111, morning train from Willimantic to Hartford, will be given hearings before the Connecticut Public Utilities commission in the chamber of commerce auditorium Thursday, October 28th.

The first hearing is scheduled for 11 a. m. and is that on the Connecticut Company's petition. The street railway line in question starts at the Main street crossing of the New Haven railroad in this city with the other terminus at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, over a distance of 6½ miles. In its petition the company points out that the line runs through parish settled territory and by reason of increased use of jitney automobiles the gross revenue from the operation of the trolley is steadily decreasing so that at present it is not sufficient to meet the cost of maintenance, operation and taxes. The further statement is made that the plans of the state highway department will affect this route for a distance of 4,700 feet and require a heavy expenditure for rehabilitation and paving which is unwarranted, also that the contemplated construction of a sewer by the city of Willimantic in that portion of the streets occupied by the tracks will require heavy expenditure on the part of both the city and the Connecticut company, likewise unwarranted. Copies of the petition were received Friday morning by parties concerned from Henry F. Billings, secretary of the commission.

The second hearing will be held at 2 p. m. on the restoration of passenger train No. 111 to leave Willimantic for Hartford at 7.07 a. m. on week days and a train to leave Hartford for Willimantic and way stations at 5:40 p. m. and for commutation and family tickets on railroad trains to be good on all busses between stations. The petition states that many citizens of Willimantic, of Windham county and of Tolland county are seriously inconvenienced by the action of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in discontinuing train No. 111, formerly leaving Willimantic at 7.07 a. m., second in changing the time of train No. 140 from 5.50 to 6.30 p. m. The charge is made that the lives and health of the citizens thus inconvenienced are imperiled by being forced to use the Willimantic-Hartford busses as a substitute for said trains.

The requests for the restoration of the morning train out of this city and the evening train out of Hartford with season commutation and family tickets is then made. This petition was signed by Mayor John C. Tracy; Frank P. Fenton, town clerk and Ernest P. Chesbro, first selectman of the town of Windham; Charles P. Pomeroy and A. Lynn Weatherwax, representatives in the general assembly of the town of Windham; Postmaster F. M. Smith; Justice George E. Herman, Windham county sheriff Charles A. Gates, Daniel F. Daley, manager of the Nathan Hale hotel; Patrick J. Twomey, manager of the Willimantic Lumber & Coal company; Attorney William A. King; Judge of Probate Otto B. Robinson; Charles L. Beach, president of Connecticut Agricultural college and Judge William A. Arnold. It is understood that Attorney William A. King, corporation counsel for Willimantic, will represent the petitioners for the restorations requested. It is estimated that over 50 commuters desire to patronize a schedule conforming with standard time. This left Willimantic with no passenger train from Willimantic to Hartford until 11:25 a. m. Train No. 111 continues in operation, but now leaves from Windham eighteen miles distant at a time equivalent to its schedule when it left here at 7.07 a. m.

MAMA COW TREED THIS BOSTON SALESMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22—Kenneth E. Hill of Boston, who is to be here for some time engaged on a business proposition, will tell you that there are other ways of making land to keep possessors out of jail work look him into a farm in the East Killingly district and a few days since Ferocious animals up there drove him away again. At any rate Mr. Hill made a reputation as a hunter. Over there in East Killingly he made a record as a sportsman having given no special attention to the variety of kindred subjects. Mr. Hill did not stop to argue with two animals started to chase him out of a field nor to challenge his own first impression that he was being pursued by bulls or buffalo. Nurmi would not be so good beside Mr. Hill as the quick commander for a tree, reaching it always ahead of his pursuers. Mrs. Hill came to his assistance later explained to him that he had been chased by a cow and her bull calf. There was some relief and no little satisfaction for Mr. Hill in that, as evidence the fact that he welcomed the information by his weight from a thrilling experience.

ASSESSORS TO ADOPT UNIFORM AUTO TAX RATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22—The matter of assessing used car automobile values for the purposes of taxation is one that each year gives the average board of assessors no little concern. It will not be so in Killingly this year. The man who wants $1,500 in cash or trade for his car if he is getting rid of it is very likely to try and get it entered in his list of taxable property at around $700. This forms a meeting for a little debate with assessors trying to do the equitable thing for all car owners, and this item of personal property has become a big item in taxation matters the past few years. This year the assessors of this town will be guided in fixing automobile values for the purposes of taxation by a publication claimed by the state and another similar publication in use by automobile dealers for fixing the value of used cars. In this each make of car and each make of any given year is rated at a fixed value. Under this system no favoritism will be shown and the assessments will be equitable.

Electric current will be shut off Sunday October 24 from 12:30 to 4:30 p. m. on the Danielson power line and in Brandell, Central Village and Westfield in order to make necessary repairs. A supper is to precede the business meeting.

Stopping here for lunch Friday, the driver of a monster motor truck engaged on a run between Philadelphia and Boston said that hobos seeking rides and offering a ride when hot in need of a meal have become about as great a nuisance to truck drivers as they were for years to railroad crews. These wayfarers pilfer from the loads on trucks carry at times become rough and threaten drivers unless given money they ask and in other ways make themselves very undesirable.

Padgett, and one of the widest known theatrical managers and publicity agents in the country, died yesterday at a Chicago hotel after an illness of but a few minutes. He was the manager of an Erlanger production which had been playing there for several weeks.

Mrs. Padgett learned last night of his death and left on the State of Maine express for New York where the body is being sent for burial. He leaves one daughter, Miss Mary Slaon, 17 years of age. For many years she and her father have spent several weeks in Putnam and he was known by many people here. For a long while prior to this year Mr. Slaon has been on the staff of Florenz Ziegfied, either as publicity agent or manager of The Follies or in some other Ziegfield play. During the early part of the year he was manager of Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots" which played for a week in New Haven, Springfield and other New England cities. This was the first time that a Ziegfield play has been produced in the smaller cities.

Mr. Slaon, who lived at the Lambs club, was reputed to have personally known 95 per cent. of the managers of theatres in the United States, and all of the passenger agents of the railroads of the country. He is a brother-in-law of Dr. Lee De Forrest, whose work in the wireless and radio industry is world-wide and whose "speaking motion pictures" is said to have reached a stage of perfection.

How I get whiter, sweeter clothes

from my washing machine

UNTIL I tried Rinso, I never dreamt I could get such white and bright clothes from my washer.

And so easily, too! For now, no matter how soiled the clothes are, I never have to do a bit of hard rubbing, as I used to.

Even the most soiled cuffs, collar bands, hems, rompers etc., come out so much whiter than ever before. And ordinary stains simply vanish.

Rinso saves money, too. For now I never have to buy bar soaps, chips or powders. Rinso is all I need. It makes the water so soft and so wonderfully sudsy. Ask your grocer for

U. S. RAZORS JOIN LIST OF BRITISH DISLIKES

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The American safety razor has now been added to the two other pet dislikes of a large number of Britishers—American plays and American films.

The House of Commons has heard a lot about safety razors since the British army decided to issue them to soldiers—many years after most other large countries had abandoned the old-fashioned razor.

The suspicion that British tommies might be forced to shave with American safety razors raised a great row, but the war office insists both the razors and the blades will be British-made.

Sir Alfred Butt is tired of the complaints about imported plays and made this statement: "I know there is a small minority who consider it a desecration that a musical play imported from America should be successfully produced at Drury Lane theater, but I am rather sickened with all this chant."

He was speaking of Rose Marie, which has been running without interruption for 18 months at The Drury Lane, has earned profits aggregating more than L185,000 and has turned the theater from a losing to a highly profitable playhouse.

"After all, art has no nationality," Sir Alfred said in his report to Drury Lane stockholders. "I am satisfied that the more than two million persons who have seen the play were more benefitted from a national point of view than they would have been by many of the so-called 'intellectual' plays which depend largely upon salaciousness and sensuality for their success."

This was a punch at Basil Dean, with whom Sir Alfred had a row about the production of Rose Marie. Dean threw up his connection with the theater and predicted Rose Marie would be a failure.

Protests against American films have been about as futile, apparently, as those directed against American plays. Harold Lloyd and many other American film stars drew record crowds in spite of attacks which many film critics have made upon American films.

British picture theaters by a majority vote decided against a plan which would have forced them to show a certain quota of British-made films.

BRITISH TASTE TURNS TO MORE WINE, BEER

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Drinking habits of British people have undergone a change during the last 18 months, according to close observers. There is less consumption of beer and spirits but a growing demand for wine and light foreign beer.

The fall in consumption of spirits is responsible for a report that distillers are contemplating a reduction of one third in their output this year.

NAVY DAY

Thousands of people have passed the submarine base on the Thames and manifested a keen interest in the station, its work and its underwater boats. Many of those have expressed the desire to get a closer look at the base and even to have a chance to make an inspection of a submarine.

There are times when this can be done and Navy day is one of them. Navy day comes October 27, next Wednesday, the birthday anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt, one of the greatest of naval advocates, and on that day Commander Butts and staff at the submarine base have arranged a program of entertainment for as many as wish to get in closer touch with what is done at the submarine base.

Navy days for the purpose of getting the thoughts of the people turned in a special way to what their navy means to them, and concentrate thought upon the work of the navy in the past as well as the present.

The submarine base is the center of naval activity in this vicinity. Naturally it is a branch of the navy in which the people of this part of the state are particularly interested, and being interested it is natural that they should want to know more. The opportunity that will be provided next Wednesday is one that should be taken advantage of. Those who have visited the base on previous Navy days have been high in their praise of the reception they received but have been brought to a far better understanding of the underwater boats because of it.

Navy day isn't for the few but for the many. It is a day when the navy has open house. It may not disclose all the secrets but it is anxious to explain many things of which the general public has little idea. The navy belongs to the nation and it is finding that advantage be taken of the time through the base that has been provided as a bit of naval education for the uninitiated. We are proud of our navy, we have the utmost confidence in it and it is human nature to want to know as much about it as possible. Navy day will open the way to many of the intricacies if you will only visit the submarine base.

RAIDING THE FARMER'S CROPS

According to an estimate made by the Albany N. Y. register the value of farm produce stolen by motorists in that state has dropped from $1,000,000 to $250,000 in the past year. Just what means of reaching such a conclusion the person and is not disclosed but the cause for the decrease is attributed to the campaign of education which has been carried on and the number of prosecutions which have been made by those suffering this gross injustice to the farmers.

Strange as it may seem there are those who carry the idea that whatever exists in the country, out of the sight of the negro, is not public property and those who set there first have the right to admire it or destroy it at their pleasure. Many a farmer has had his potato patch raided of many bushels, others have lost large quantities of fruit, while the various vegetables in season are regarded as fees when it is possible to drive into the car up beside the road and fill it with what looks the most attractive. This is of course in addition to the game, the nuts, the trees and the wild plants which are regarded as common property, regardless of the fact that the owner of the land on which they are found had to buy the property and must pay the taxes.

Without a doubt the availability of the state police has had much to do with checking the raids on the countryside. Then again the farmers have been obliged to be more vigilant themselves, while legislation and publicity have done much to bring thoughtless people to a realization of what they were doing. It is all foolishness for anyone to make the claim that they thought they had the right to enter upon the premises of another and take what they please, but too many are ready to take the chance of not getting caught.

Farmers don't mind the picking of yellow daisies if walls are not knocked down and grass not trampled. They don't strenuously oppose the occasional picking up of an apple on the ground on the walking through their woodland, but they do object to the raiding of the crops, the stripping of fruit trees, the leaving down of their bars and the firing of their woodlands, and it isn't necessary to be a farmer to realize that they have a right to.

PROLONGING THE SESQUI

Those who have lost money in connection with the sesquicentennial at Philadelphia are in some instances desirous of having the exposition continued next year. Such a thing is possible although it has the right that it had been decided that it was to end next month.

If that decision involves the city alone and the directors of the association are still considering it is possible that there will be a chance for many more to see it. There's no question but what much money has been lost because of the failure of the exposition to attract as many people as was anticipated. The city is apparently not willing to put any more money into it and equally opposed to being responsible for any additional expenses. Probably it would offer no objections if others were ready to assume that responsibility in the belief that losses could be recouped.

The sentiment of Philadelphia is that it has not only done its part but it has done all that it believes it should. Further endeavors are beyond the jurisdiction of the city, and yet Philadelphia probably wouldn't object to being the center to attract those who might be induced to visit the exposition another summer, when it would be certain that the exposition was ready and the exhibits open for inspection.

There have been several unfortunate circumstances in connection with this big fair. It has been put through against much opposition, has encountered with this big fair. It has been put through against much opposition, has encountered handicaps of a damaging character and has developed trouble from unexpected directions which there seemed to be a disposition to magnify instead of modify.

A holdover fair of that character would be a bit unusual but decision must be reached before long. The method of financing it is not going to be a simple one. Getting an association out of a hole is never an easy task but in addition to the association in this case there are the exhibitors and concessionaires.

TRANSPORTATION CHANGES

A New England hotel men's association has gone on record as opposing the removal of what are called through trains. It has decided to make protest to the railroads against such action, and there will be many who will heartily endorse the idea.

In these days when transportation methods are undergoing such decided changes many trains are being removed, and that change is not only causing difficulties for the railroads and those who look for business from their patronage but it is putting a bad crimp into our mail service. When trains are removed that carried the mail there's nothing to move their place, and the mail service is curtailed.

Railroads are changing their schedules to suit the demands of the public. They have no desire to run trains for which there are no passengers, or so few that the number in the train crew exceeds the passenger list. If they cannot meet expenses they cannot be expected to operate.

This motor age is upsetting what was a well established passenger and mail service. Those who go in their own cars or can go by busses are taking more of it is the others, steadily growing fewer in number, who are still dependent upon the railroads for whom there must be sympathy.

The through trains, those making long runs, are doing the most business. They seem secure for sometime to come, and yet there are points, as the speed of the motor cars shows, where through service is wobbling, and where other service is evidently not taking its place. Transportation adjustment will be accomplished in time, and when that time comes it means much uncertainty for many.

MUST STAY OUT

If I remembered correctly Emma Goldman declared when she was deported seven years ago that she never wanted to see the United States again or words to that effect. And yet she is now asking for an opportunity to come back to the country whose government she advocated overthrowing.

When she went away her departure was regarded as a benefit. She went to Russia, a country for which she had great praise. It was not long before she found it necessary to get out of there. Her vision of that wonderful country had been soon changed. She has since found that she was not wanted in Sweden, Latvia or Bavaria. She found a haven in England and there she also found a husband, for in her plea for admission she represents herself as the wife of a British subject and has come to Canada so that she can quickly take advantage of such kindness as this government is ready to bestow for in acting upon her request them.

It has been said of Emma Goldman that she never attempted anyone's life or threw a bomb, but it would probably not be difficult to find where she had sanctioned her approval of such acts and advocated resort to such methods, thus involving no small amount of responsibility.

There is no reason to believe that her request for admission to the country, even for a short stay, will be granted. It would be humiliating to most people to ask for it under the circumstances but it is another case of showing how eager the bad pennies are to return. Because Emma Goldman has married does not alter the position of this government regarding her. Deportation is something more than a slap on the wrist and if the ban of deportation is going to be lifted there are many others who would be entitled to its benefits before her.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Havana is another city which will not use its hurricanes for advertising purposes.

The man on the corner says: Even the democrats seem to like republican prosperity.

Even if Indian summer is yet to appear, it would be unwise to plan on its making a long visit.

With the mayor of Chicago ranging the suburbs it is probably a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

The cathode ray disintegrates everything it strikes the weis can be expected to lose no time in turning it onto prohibition.

Apparently there are some who do not think that all the highway changes are going to mean the rejuvenation of Connecticut.

It wouldn't do to make a general offer of transportation to all who would accept it on the same terms as given Queen Marie.

This is another Saturday when the advice about safety first in the highways should be carried in mind by those motoring to football games.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Do we not have some rules and regulations that seemingly are designed to puzzle, and consequently inconvenience, the public? One can easily cite many facts in support of this statement. For instance, if one is a novice, let him try to figure out what he must pay for passenger motor vehicle registration for one year. After he has gone through the vast array of figures he will be fitted for one of two positions; either to occupy a cell in a large brick institution a few miles to the south on the military highway, of to be professor of higher mathematics in Harvard university. Again, suppose one wants to go from New London or Norwich to Stafford Springs. If it happens to be the week the trains run, he is all right, if not, he must rely on the bus. But when he is comfortably seated in the bus he discovers that he cannot go to Stafford he must go, or at least pay for going to Springfield or Albany, and then he can ride back to Stafford. And yet somebody has criticized Kipling for saying that this age is crazy.

Good old mother earth has moved in the region of frosts, and this makes us look somewhat into the nature and purpose of frosts. We are glad to recognize a favorable side to the nippy old gentleman. He serves a great purpose as a policeman in holding up the stop signal before certain pestilential diseases, like the yellow fever, and in keeping obnoxious insects from outpopulating their quota. But it has an awful effect on some of the things we would have live. Does it not have a parallel in the moral world? Is it not like some sins that put an awful blight on some lives? Is not intemperance that age long sin like a blighting frost that kills both body and soul? No frost has ever swept across the great field of life and left such a field of wreckage as this frost.

The larger place of youth in cooperating with their elders in advancing the world order is quite in evidence. So pronounced is this that at first it would seem like an unconscious protest against the old Puritanic conception of youth's place in society. This spirit emphasized with a vengeance that little children from zero to 21 "should be seen and not heard." But the era of Cotton Mather could not forever hold down the lid on the nation's youth. From the nature of things they were destined, sooner or later, to "blow up serenely." And along certain lines the Lord knows that they bobbed all right. And still the modern air with bobbed hair compares very favorably with her elder sister of long ago whose skirts were patterned after the circumference of the earth. Along religious lines, one is making a distinct contribution to the good of the world which is infinitely better than the fake "modern" of 1776.

Science is still walking up hill with manly stride. Perhaps in no way, like the public is best expressed by its restlessness. It is always on to its job, even when it is not occupying headline space in the newspapers. The tides do not publish their ebb and flow, but we know that they are everlastingly at it. Science rises early in the morning and sits up late at night working on some problem that ultimately is bound to see the light of day. We ought to set apart a day for fasting and prayer that it may proceed in substituting oil for coal in our furnaces. The trouble thus far is that it shouts too loudly its presence, but science will soon tone down the loud speaker. The "frigidaire" is also knocking at the modern city gates, and timidly we are opening the gates to receive it. Will the departure of coal and ice bring in the millennium?

Avoid slippery places because you never know just what is going to happen. Only the other day a fine Buick car was motoring through the town of Weiss, Mass., and going round a sharp curve that was covered with wet leaves was completely overturned. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured, but the car was very badly damaged. They were not traveling at an excessive rate of speed, but the slippery place was responsible. We need to learn a lesson from this. Look out for the slippery places. Before long we may expect snow and ice, and we shall read of somebody having a badly time before next spring because of the slippery places. Before next spring some honest man or woman is going to be taken in by some smooth seller of bogus stocks and bonds. Millions are lost every year by means of these slippery places. Before you invest consult your banker and let him sprinkle sand on your sidewalk.

Compared with the existence of philosophy, theology and many other branches of human learning, science is but a child in years. That is modern science in those lines that have completely revolutionized our industrial system and enhanced the economic order. Do we realize that 15 years ago today Chicago and New York were for the first time connected by telegraph? It is such a necessity along all business lines that we instinctively feel that the telegraph has always existed, at least we find it difficult to believe that it is hardly 50 years old. It is so closely allied with the business interests of the country as to be clearly indispensable. In fact it has entered the very organic structure of many enterprises. Without the telegraph all forms of railroading would be most seriously crippled. When we think of the wonders performed in the last half century, we are inclined to ask, what next?

We remember when Senator Blease of South Carolina so far forgot himself as to say, apparently with deliberation, on the floor of the senate that "You have only to scratch a man to find the savage." The remark was received with painful silence. For awhile the senators fairly gasped for breath. How could any sane man make such a remark anywhere in the world, and especially before such a bunch of supermen as those who make up the senate of the United States of America? Such a remark would have been an insult in Patagonia, but to say it in the presence of the 100 percenters at the capitol in Washington was an unpardonable sin. Senator Blease was hauled over the coals by the public press for his low estimate of the "paragon of animals." But the gentleman from South Carolina never apologized. Now comes Dr. Harry Fosdick of New York with this statement: that "The cave man is not far removed from any of us." When Dean Inge hears of it he will pronounce the doom of America.

What does it really mean to be forsalanded? Certainly more than having potatoes enough in the cellar for the long winter use, or the larder well stocked with provisions from now on till the springtime, or having the barn filled with hay and grain for horses, cows and sheep. It means all this and very much more along the same line, but does it not imply vastly more than this for "man shall not live by bread alone." It means the education of sons and daughters, so that they will be better fitted for the battles of life. It means the mind well trained, and the soul well fortified to triumph over all the enemies that lurk in one's pathway. It means looking so intently into that important tomorrow that whatever happens will not take us by surprise. "Be ye also ready."

A two week's vacation goes about as quickly as the day to pay the monthly rent comes round.

HURRICANES AND "HURRICANE-GROWING MONTHS."

"West Indian hurricanes are not new, nor are they confined to Florida," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"In the season that is peculiarly their own (there are 'hurricane-growing months' just as there are 'corn-growing months') they have probably been blowing up from the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean sea, and the tropical Atlantic since those bodies of water and the American continents have existed—a matter of some hundreds of thousands of years. But only a few of these many potential destroyers actually work their destruction on the territory of the United States, and these are confined almost wholly to a period of three months of the late summer and early autumn.

"Thus they leave Florida and the other Gulf states free from danger during the late autumn, the entire winter, and the early spring months when that area attracts its greatest crowd of visitors.

"The warm seas eastward and southeastward of the Gulf of Mexico are the birthplace of the hurricanes. They are the creatures of atmospheric pressure and temperature; and these two factors are varied by the sun beating down on the expanses of Atlantic water and the land mass of our continent.

Do Not Occur in Winter

"One of the most striking facts in regard to West Indian hurricanes is the marked concentration of the really destructive ones within a few weeks of each year. A study of the hurricanes that had occurred since 1887 was made by the United States weather bureau a few years ago and it was found that in this long period not one storm of known hurricane intensity had visited the West Indies and Gulf regions during the months from December to May inclusive. Two other months can practically be eliminated: November with only two hurricanes in nearly 40 years, and June, with six. Not all of the few November and June storms reach American territory.

"Season" Starts in August

"July itself is rather a poor hurricane month. Less than a dozen July hurricanes have been recorded in the last 40 years and only part of them reached shore. The real hurricane season starts in August reaches its peak in September, and ends during October, the pressuring fact is that when the hurricane season is at its height the greatest percentage of the storms fails to reach the Gulf or Atlantic coasts. Many curve back into the ocean even as far east as the Bermudas.

"Between July and October of every year from 6 to 10 hurricanes are born somewhere between Florida and Africa, usually to sweep westward, then northward, and finally back northeastward, their paths forming pretty accurate parabolic curves. The primary factor in the careers of these storms is believed to be an area of high atmospheric pressure, or 'high,' that exists practically permanently over the Atlantic north of the Tropics. In other words, a great blanket of heavy, sluggish air lies continually over this area. Along its southern edge in the Tropics heated air, rising, causes little swirling disturbances which are the seeds of possible hurricanes. But there is a certain infant mortality among these stormlets, especially in winter and spring. Then the Atlantic 'high' extends in a broad band on into the North American continent, forming in effect a wall of heavy air which the storms can not pass. Confined to the Tropics they are dissipated without causing the United States any concern.

"But when the heat of summer has warmed up the land the high withdraws to its ocean home, jutting out like an air peninsula toward America. The atmosphere over the land becomes an arena for shifting 'highs' and 'lows.' It is as though an atmospheric football game were in progress. The newly born storms of the tropical Atlantic regions seek, because of the general drift of the atmosphere, to move northward. The 'highs,' whether stationary or in motion, furnish the interference which they must dodge. The weakest place in the defence is between the permanent mid-Atlantic 'high' and the American coast. A great many tropical hurricanes, therefore, move east to avoid the mid-ocean barrier and then dash northward well east of the coast, causing no damage on land. Once around the end of the 'high' they swing northeastward, and some continue on even into Europe.

"Some of the storms do not have such plain sailing. If the Atlantic 'high' extends farther westward than usual the disturbances must swing over the land to round the end. It is upon such rather infrequent occasions that the Atlantic and Gulf coasts suffer as they did recently.

Sometimes Herded Into Gulf

"By a still farther westward extension of the high pressure area the storms are prevented from moving north and sweep into the Gulf of Mexico. It was such conditions that brought about the terribly destructive hurricane in September, 1900, and that which cost many lives at Corpus Christi in September, 1919. The Galveston storm turned northward, passing through Texas and Oklahoma, and finally passed to the Atlantic down the the St. Lawrence valley. The Corpus Christi hurricane, however, belonged to the rare type with an angry, modest straight path. A chain of 'highs' formed an impassable barrier to the north and the storm moved on into Mexico where it was finally dissipated among the mountains.

"Hurricanes are not always that drive straight ahead. There are swirls of the cyclonic type. These swirling storm centers move relatively slowly across sea and land, sometimes at no greater speed than eight or ten miles an hour. But they suck air inward and upward from all sides at terrific speeds, up to 100 or more miles an hour."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Henry Hadow, who has been selected to direct a new scheme by which university lectures by radio will provide a systematic education by the fireside for working men and women in Great Britain, is a distinguished British educator who now fills the post of vice chancellor of Sheffield university. During the war he was director of education on the lines of communication in France. Sir Henry was educated at Malvern and at Worcester college, Oxford, where he had a brilliant academic career, taking a first class in classics. He edited the Oxford History of Music and has besides published general musical works.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research University of California, Los Angeles

Until the pedestrian is subjected to just as definite rules in his use of the streets as those applied to the drivers of motor vehicles, American cities will not make much progress in gaining greater safety or a relief from congestion. Complicated codes of rules have been developed for the control of drivers, but there are only a few cities in the country that have given any attention to the pedestrian.

It is surprising to know that the rights of pedestrians are still controlled by an old common law principle which developed in England centuries before the automobile was invented. This old rule said that all persons had an equal right to use all parts of public highways and that all had mutual rights and obligations to look out for the safety of others. This rule was modified by statute in many ways with the introduction of the automobile. The complete freedom of the pedestrian has rarely been disturbed however. This freedom was not unreasonable in the days when all traffic was horse-drawn. The pedestrian could jaywalk to his heart's content with little danger. Traffic was slow enough so that an agile walker could get out of the way.

The automobile has changed things. The roadway has become a place where things happen very quickly. Instead of three or four miles per hour traffic moves at speeds of from 15 miles per hour upward on average city streets.

The freedom of pedestrians to intermingle with traffic in the roadway, by crossing between intersections or against the signals at intersections, is a fertile cause both of accidents and traffic congestion. The time has come when the walker must be restrained in the use of the streets. For his own safety and for the public convenience, he must be subjected to just as specific rules when a walker as when a driver.

In the last 18 months the city of Los Angeles has proved conclusively the practicability and utility of pedestrian control. In that city pedestrians are forbidden to cross business streets in midblock, and are required to follow the signals at the intersections. This rule functions with the full cooperation of the public and has materially decreased traffic accidents and congestion.

Sunday Morning Talk

FALLING LEAVES

Some people always grow melancholy over the falling leaves. If they are fond of using long words, they talk about the transitoriness of human blessings, and punctuate their remarks with sighs. Young people are not given to expressing their emotions in words of five syllables, but many of them have a feeling of depression in the connection with the falling leaves that same feeling which made one poet pronounce these bright fall days, "the saddest of the year."

The leaves are falling, but what of it? They had an important mission in the summer, when every patch of shade was a blessing. But now it is sunshine that is needed, and we should no complain because nature sweeps aside millions of little obstructions to the free passage of the light, bringing cheering, comforting rays. We would almost be in danger of forgetting the depth and beauty of the sky, if now and then we did not lift our faces toward its blue dome without looking through a screen of leaves.

The leaves are falling, yes, but the great oaks and elms and maples stand strong and vigorous still, and when spring comes again they will be draped in green. They seem to tell us that God does not take away our blessings and leave us herself, that change is only superficial and that the best things abide; that the Father takes away only to give back something better and more beautiful. There is no reason for sadness, no excuse for morbid thought, even though the leaves are falling. So it is with life. "We all do fade as the leaf," but there is a beautiful springtime in the great beyond, where no leaf shall wither or flower fade.

Today's Birthdays

Sir Alfred Mond, celebrated British statesman and economist, born 58 years ago today.

Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley, Roman Catholic bishop of Oklahoma, born at Charlottetown, P. E. I., 56 years ago today.

Rt. Rev. Frederick F. Reese, Episcopal bishop of Savannah, born in Baltimore, 74 years ago today.

Peter Norbeck, United States, senator, South Dakota.

"During the two years that Senator Bingham has been a member of the United States senate he has shown unusual capabilities as a legislator. Having served with him as a member of the commerce committee, I have been in a position to observe him closely. He is very painstaking in addition to showing an ability to grasp the many problems presented affecting the nation at large. His handling of the commercial aircraft legislation, as well as new legislation affecting all interstate bridges, would do credit to a man who had seen many more years of service in the senate. I am sure the people of Connecticut recognize the senators worthiness as a public servant."

Stories That Recall Others

Couldn't Be True.

A teacher of the first grade was busily engaged examining children for personal cleanliness when she noticed little Harry had a skin eruption on his arms.

"I think you must have chicken pox, and I must have the school physician see you at once," said the teacher.

"No ma'am, it can't be that, honest it can't," the child replied, "because we don't have any chickens at all."

The Impossible.

Mary who is four years old, according to her mother, is a little lady who has a "sweet tooth" and toils early in life has shown an unusual interest in tasty things that come from the kitchen. The other day, Mary came tripping into the kitchen, tightly grasping a paper sack. She paused for a moment, catching her breath, since it was evident that she had run for some distance.

Her mother, however, became alarmed.

"Mary," she continued, "you mustn't run so much when the weather is warm."

"I know, mother," little Mary argued, "but it's near supper time and you ought to fix these for supper." Extending the paper bag somewhat proudly, Mary went on: "With these here strawberries that Mrs. Jones gave me you can make a swell cherry pie."

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Must Have Vigilant Eye

Milton tells us that we should have a vigilant eye how books demean themselves. There is in some ways more danger from evil books than from evil companions. Bad companions cannot be with us always and bad books may be. Schopenhauer calls "bad books, these exuberant weeds of literature that choke the true corn," and even the gentle Charles Lamb speaks with contempt of "things in books' clothing." The only use of books is to teach us by comparison the value of good ones. Rousseau thought that "the abuse of reading is destructive to knowledge. Imagining ourselves to know everything we read, we conceive it unnecessary to learn it by other means."

No matter how often a man's heart is shattered it is always good for another one.

HOW OTHER SENATORS REGARD SENATOR BINGHAM

Senator Hiram Bingham, as viewed by his associates in the United States senate:

"Senator Bingham has during the short time he has been in the United States senate established for himself the reputation of being able, zealous and industrious. He has the respect and confidence, I am sure, of the entire senate and I am happy to call him my friend. Connecticut should be proud of having two such able men as she now has in the senate."

Jesse H. Metcalf, United States senator, Rhode Island.

(Senator Metcalf is a member of the committee on education and labor with Senator Bingham.)

"The main industry of Connecticut is manufacturing. That of South Dakota is agriculture. Senator Bingham and I are both republicans. He is more conservative than I and we often differ on national policies and sectional interests, but those who know the senator from Connecticut respect and admire him for his high mentality, great industry and the loyalty and ability with which he represents his constituents."

Danny Starts On at Once.

Jealousy has some excuse
When it is rightly put to use.
—Old Mother Goose.

Danny Meadow Mouse was jealous. He wouldn't have admitted it, but it was so. Jealous people never do admit they're jealous. Jealousy is a thing that is plainly visible to every one but the one who has it. If Skimmer the Swallow hadn't mentioned the fact that there were two strange Meadow Mice living near Nanny, I suspect that Danny wouldn't have been troubled at all. As it was, he was very much troubled. First he became very angry. He was angry with those Meadow Mice for daring to come to live on the Green Meadows. He was angry with Nanny Meadow Mouse for so much as going at them. Then, he became worried. What if Nanny should get off with one of these strange Summer boys and tell everything on the Green Meadows brought Danny dead. Of course, if that was the case there was no reason why Nanny should fall in love with one of these strangers. At the mere thought of such a thing Danny gritted his teeth.

"Why do you wish you had wings, inquired Neighbor Chuck

"I'm going home. I'm going home this very minute," he cried. "I'll show those strangers that they have no business on the Green Meadows. I'll give Nanny a piece of my mind. Oh dear! Oh dear me! I wish I had wings."

"Why do you wish you had wings," inquired Neighbor Chuck, who had come up just in time to hear what was said.

"So I could get home quickly," replied Danny. "Skimmer says it is a long way there, and however I am going to get there I don't know. But I've got to get there and I'm going to start right off this very minute. Good by, Neighbor Chuck. Perhaps I'll see you again some time, and perhaps I won't." Before astonished Neighbor Chuck could find his tongue Danny had run away.

Danny's way led him across the market garden where he had been finding such good living. It was a very big market garden, for it supplied vegetables and fruit to a town. Crossing that was really a journey in itself for such a little fellow as Danny Meadow Mouse. He traveled just as fast as he could. Then he stopped to rest. It was while he was resting that he was discovered by Mr. Blacksnake. Now Mr. Blacksnake wasn't very hungry. If he had been, this probably would be the last story about Danny Meadow Mouse. The fact is, Mr. Blacksnake had already dined. Still, a fat Meadow Mouse is tempting at any time, so in a sort of half-hearted way Mr. Blacksnake started after Danny. Danny long since was tired. He forgot everything but the fact that he didn't want to furnish a dinner to Mr. Blacksnake. So away he raced without looking where he was going. So it was that he suddenly came out in an open place where men and boys were at work gathering and preparing vegetables for market. At the edge of that opening Mr. Blacksnake stopped. He knew what would happen if one of those boys should see him. So Mr. Blacksnake stopped. He decided that he wasn't as hungry as he thought he was.

But Danny didn't know that Mr. Blacksnake had stopped. On the contrary, some one boys filled with potatoes that were to be taken into market. One of these had not been tied up. Danny crept into that bag, in among the potatoes. It was the only safe place he could see. It was just after he crept in there that a boy came along and tied up the top of the bag. This didn't worry Danny as much as it might have had he not known that he could easily make his way out of that bag any time he pleased.

After a while that bag was picked up and put on a wagon with a lot of other bags. It [illegible] on its way to market. It was a long way to market, and, of course, long before he was through being bounced around in that bag Danny was very fortunate to [illegible] of potatoes was put on top of him. But then as long as he could see at this time, Danny was not [illegible]

At the intermission, piano selections were rendered by Miss Ruth Grodotzky.

A collection was taken for the benefit of the Sunday school and coffee and cake was served under the direction of a committee consisting of Mrs. Hunzinger, Miss Marie Hunzinger, Mrs. Hattie Hunzinger, Miss Olga Zachne, Miss Irene Werth and Miss Marion Decker.

DEMOCRATS PILED UP STATE DEBT, REPUBLICAN PAID IT OFF; BRAINARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Oct. 23.—In a statement issued yesterday, Lieutenant-Governor J. Edwin Brainard pointed out recent republican financial achievements in Connecticut, and quoted from Governor Baldwin's inaugural message of 1913 to show the difference in method employed by democratic administrations. Only 6 per cent of the state's present income, comes from direct taxation, he said.

"The democratic candidate for governor and a prominent democratic newspaper," said Lieutenant-Governor Brainard, "insist that republican administration of Connecticut has been expensive. They have stated that the democratic administration of Governor Baldwin was, in comparison, much more efficient.

"I have been looking over Governor Baldwin's inaugural message to the general assembly in 1913, after he had been governor for two years, and just starting on his second term. Let me quote directly from this message.

"'Our current expenditures during the year last past exceeded our current receipts . . . In each of the nine preceding years, the current expenditures were kept within the current receipts. . . . This indicates an unfortunate change in our financial policy. . . . The deficit was not due to any reduction of income. On the contrary our current income for that year was larger than it had ever been before. . . . We have borrowed nearly ten and a half millions. . . . The increase in our bonded indebtedness during the last five years has been rapid and unaccompanied by any provisions either for a sinking fund or for paying them off by degrees. . . . The treasurer . . . urges the laying of a state tax on the several towns of not less than three-fourths of a mill each year. I join in these recommendations!'

"When he came into office, the state's indebtedness was slightly over $3,000,000 and when he went out of office it was about $11,000,000. Please notice that he advocated a tax on towns to pay off some of this debt. The tax was laid, but the proceeds were not used in paying off indebtedness. They were used in paying current bills of the state. A state tax on towns, which was advocated and put through, is paid to the extent of about 83 per cent by the land owners and home owners of the state. Recent republican administrations have actually reduced this tax, instead of advocating an increase.

"Since Governor Baldwin's time, republican administrations in Connecticut have built a reserve fund sufficient now to pay off all indebtedness. In addition, we have gone through extraordinary war times, periods of deflation, and have kept up with the normal yearly growth of the state's departments and institutions.

"And, let me finish with this interesting statement—illuminating probably to our democrate friends—that of the entire income of the state for the fiscal year 1926, only 6 per cent came from the state tax on towns and the millitary tax, the only two forms of taxation in this state that are paid by the citizens as a whole."

RUSH OF APPLICANTS FOR TUBERCULOSIS POST

Governor Trumbull on Friday explained his delay in filling the vacancy in the state tuberculosis commission created by the resignation of Wallas S. Allis, of this city several months ago as due to the difficulty of selecting a commissioner from the large list of applicants seeking the position. The state pays each of the commissioners $2,500 a year and there has been a scramble for this plum. The governor said the problem of appointment would be a simple one if the office did not carry a salary with it for in this case he would be able to accept any worthy application for the position was accepted not by any financial consideration but by a desire to contribute to the fight against tuberculosis. He gave no intimation as to when the appointment will be made.

The governor said he has received a resolution adopted by the Hartford County Labor union Wednesday night forwarded to him, urging him to fill the vacancy by the appointment of a representative of organized labor. The resolution endorsed the action of the Connecticut Federation of Labor in September, which made a similar request of the governor.

The state tuberculosis commission consists of Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman; and Arthur R. Kimball of Waterbury. George I. Alsop of Middletown is secretary. The labor resolution urged immediate action by the governor.

WILL BRING AUTO THIEVES BACK TO NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22—Sergeant John Cavanaugh will leave here tomorrow morning and go to Norwich where he will obtain the signature of State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown to extradition papers, which were issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky for Charles Hummel, 224 Jefferson avenue, a waiter and Kenneth Davis, a lodger at the Salvation Army lodging house, who were arrested yesterday afternoon in New York when they were attempting to sell the Buick sedan, owned by William P. McGarry, 111 Washington St., Norwich. The machine was stolen in this city Wednesday night. The men will be brought back to New London for trial. After securing the signature of State's Attorney Brown to the writ, Sergeant Cavanaugh will go to Hartford and secure the signature of Governor Trumbull to the papers and then continue to Albany and obtain the signature of Governor Alfred Smith as New York state requires that extradition papers be issued for all prisoners from outside the state, whether or not they waive extradition. Hummel and Davis will not go to trial before the latter part of the week. Mr. McGarry was in New London this afternoon for the purpose of determining when he can go to New York and recover his automobile. He will go to that city some time next week.

CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS MUST FILE EXPENSES

If past performances may be taken as an indication, it would be safe to wager that quite a few New Englanders who are candidates for election to congress this fall will violate the federal corrupt practices act.

This violation will involve no moral turpitude and, probably in every case, will be done quite unconsciously. And this is the section of the act that will be disregarded:

"Sec. 305. (a) Every candidate for senator shall file with the secretary and every candidate for representative, delegate, or resident commissioner shall file with the clerk not less than ten nor more than 15 days before, and also within 30 days after, the date on which an election is to be held, a statement containing, complete as of the day next preceding the date of filing—

"(1) A correct and itemized account of each contribution received by him," etc.

The difficulty seems to be, not in compiling the statement, but in submitting it within the dates set by the law.

And a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than two years is specified as punishment for wilful violation of the act.

WILL POUR CEMENT ON WEST THAMES ST. WORK

It is expected that the work of pouring the cement between the trolley rails on West Thames street will be started Monday morning. The work will probably require four days. The new trolley rails have been laid from the bottom of the foundry hill to the city line in Thamesville and the rails have been bonded. Trap rock for the cement has arrived and been distributed over a section of the street. In the meantime one way traffic is being maintained from the bottom of the foundry hill to Brown street.

NAVY DAY TO STRESS MERCHANT MARINE VALUE

The Navy league of the United States will hold its observance of Navy day on October 27. The navy as usual will co-operate with the Navy league throughout the country to make this day impressive and significant. All naval establishments will be open for inspection, and thousands of people will take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about their navy.

The program this year will emphasize the importance to the future development of our country of an adequate merchant marine that will ensure economic independence as well as a vital element of national defense. It will also stress the fact that the navy as the first line of defense is a form of national insurance which protects our merchant marine and our rapidly expanding commerce.

Our maritime nations have long recognized the commercial importance of a navy as a means of creating and sustaining friendly relations with foreign powers. The much advertised tour of the world by the Prince of Wales made on a British war vessel, undoubtedly paid for itself many times in the increased revenue which accrued to the merchants of England. Members of the British parliament have declared in the house of commons that a visit of a British man-of-war to a foreign port has invariably been followed immediately by a large increase of business. It is felt that this influence of the navy is an aspect of the situation commonly overlooked particularly when the naval budget is before congress.

The part played by our navy in initiating trade is revealed by the pages of history. The efforts of Commodore Wilkes, who in 1839 negotiated an agreement with the native chiefs of Samoa, came to their full fruition when our ship was the Island of Tutuila was substantiated. Commodore Kearney in 1849 initiated the policy of the "open door" in China, when he insisted that the United States be granted the same concessions that Great Britain had induced that nation to grant to her. But perhaps the great outstanding feat of diplomatic genius, as related to trade, was consummated in 1853 when Commodore Perry persuaded Japan to open her ports to the world. And then, finally, Korea, the last hermit nation in the world, was opened to world commerce in 1882 through the efforts of another American naval officer, Commodore Shufeldt.

For generations, the American people have been deluded by the belief that the United States is a self-sustaining nation. This belief was engendered and fostered by a contemplation of our vast undeveloped natural resources. But as our civilization has become more complex, our wants and our needs have increased until today 46 per cent of our foreign trade amounting to nearly 4,000,000,000.00 a year, consists of imports. Among these imports are silk, sugar, coffee, rubber, wool, hides, fertilizers, tea, chemicals, and many elements essential to the steel industry such as manganese and chromium. These and the other materials for peace-time production as well as for purposes of war.

On the other hand, our people through the development of their inventive genius, their capacity for business organization and their methods of wholesale production have expanded their industries until they are in a position to export goods to the value of nearly $5,000,000,000.00 annually. It is felt that they who glory in our "splendid isolation" fail to take cognizance of the fact that 6 per cent of our workers are engaged in producing materials for foreign consumption only. If our foreign trade were discontinued because of war, because of successful foreign competition, or because of some unforeseen calamity, more than 3,000,000 people would immediately be thrown out of work. In other words more than three millions of our workers and their families are not supported by our self-sustaining country.

The prosperity of a country is measured by the volume of its foreign trade. The foreign trade of the United States has quadrupled in the last twenty-five years. If we are to retain this prosperity if our people are to continue to enjoy their present high standard of living, they must secure and retain foreign markets for the profitable disposal of the surplus output of their farms and factories. The markets are available in China, in Africa, in South America, and in the Near East. It is obvious that to depend upon foreign ships for transportation is to place the enormous foreign trade in the hands of our competitors. An adequate merchant marine is essential to the future prosperity of our country.

In the event of war, an effective merchant marine, would be indespensible. Its activities would be four-fold: To transport the army, to supplement the train, to provide naval reserves, and to carry to a nation at war materials essential to the successful prosecution of the war, but not obtainable in that country. In these days of progressive limitation of armaments, the merchant marine is assuming an ever-growing importance as an element in national defense. Huge ocean liners, when armed, constitute a formidable force. Fast passenger vessels may become the cruisers of the next war. In this connection, it is significant that Great Britain outnumbers the United States six to one in fast liners.

Extraordinary vicissitudes have taken place in the realm of international relations since the conclusion of the World war. Only a few short months ago the nations of Europe hailed the United States as the savior of the world and the benefactor to the human race. We are sending to Europe millions of dollars in food stuffs and supplies for the children and the needy of those war stricken countries. Yesterday we were Santa Clause; today we are Shylocks. Yesterday we were the moral leaders of a new day; today we are usurers, demanding payment in the blood of France in the drama of the hour, Uncle Sam has been cast in the role of the villain. Europe hates us. That is a plain statement of an obvious fact.

In the real or international finance equally great changes have taken place. The United States is now in virtual control of the western world. Financial and economic power has been centralized in the hands of American capital. Our financiers are exporting about one billion dollars in capital to foreign nations each year. The world has never known such a disparity of wealth as now exists between Europe and the United States. Europe fears us. And hatred and fear were ever the breeders of war. An adequate merchant marine is essential to the future security of our country.

PROFESSIONALS FAIL TO CONTROL STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Irregular fluctuations in stock prices, the action of professional speculators, failed for control of the market's direction in the selling movement swept away the gains in the afternoon forcing recessions of 1 to 10 points and in many cases to a last minute rally which reduced extreme losses to 3 to 4 points.

Several leading motor shares, including Hudson and Mack Trucks toppled to the lowest prices of the year as general liquidation was influenced by reports of curtailed output, reduced earnings and possible dividend cuts. General Motors at one time sold more than 5 points below last night's close but rallied several points from its low while Dupont recovered two greater part of an early 10 points break.

Abandon was heavily sold on the announcement that no change in the quarterly dividend policy had been discussed but it closed with a small fractional gain. Union Pacific, U. S. Steel, Case, Iron Pipe and Montgomery Ward closed 1 to 4 1-2 points lower.

ACADEMY MEETS BRIDGEPORT HIGH AT THE CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

Coach Earle E. Brigham put the finishing touches on the team's play on Friday in a light practice at the campus and reports them fit as the proverbial fiddle for this afternoon's game which shapes up as one of the toughest, if not the toughest game on the entire season's schedule.

The Bridgeport is also reported as being in first-class shape for the game and will be enabled to start practically the same lineup as has piled up such a creditable record for them in the past and pushed them up with the leading contenders for the state interscholastic grid title.

Local fans are expected to turn out strong today and support the Academy in their attempts at bringing to the Rose of New England the best in the state as opposition. The local management is striving hard to show Norwich fandom some exceptionable fast football games and in doing so have booked the Academy with leading schools of the state, thereby placing the team well up in high school sport circles.

The probable Academy starting lineup follows: le, Marks; lt, Kahn, lg, Shea; c, Schwartz; rg, Grimsby or Fox; rt, Fidelli; re, Moore, Greene or Hussey; qb, Williams; lhb, Isaacson or Vitliano; rhb, McGlone or Fenton; fb, Capt. Brewer.

To date the Academy has won one, lost one and tied one of three games played and todays game will, of course, break this tie and the many supporters of the local gridsters are hoping that the victory column will go into the lead. With this aim, practically the entire student body will be out to cheer the boys on and lend encouragement in this way. As usual, the westerly side of the field is used by Academy supporters with the easterly side for the opposition's backers.

The kickoff is set for 2:30 sharp and extra police protection will be on hand to handle the traffic and large crowd that is expected to turn out.

DOPESTERS SPECULATE ON MANAGERIAL BERTHS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Baseball row, encouraged by its success in beating President Baker to his announcement of Stuffy McInnis as manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, is buzzing again. The dopsters had the widely traveled McInnis booked as Arthur Fletcher's successor nearly a week before the president of the Phillies took the public into his confidence.

Advancing from a little retail forecasting to predicting on a wholesale scale, the informal baseball experts today were assigning managerial jobs right and left. They insist that Fletcher, released by the Phillies, will move over to Pittsburgh to take up where Bill McKechnie left off. Lee Fohl, retiring as manager of the Boston Red Sox, was suggested as coach for the Pirates, taking care of two deposed managers at one fell swoop. A minority group, however, thinks that Fred Clarke will be personally named manager for Pittsburgh although he already handles much of the club's business responsibilities.

George Moriarity, American league umpire, is persistently mentioned as a prospective manager, possibly as Fohl's successor at Boston. President Phil Ball must find a manager for the St. Louis Browns but a powerful rumor that Bill Killefer, former Cub manager and new Cardinal coach, would get the place seems to be losing force. The unofficial tipsters have already swapped George Sisler, former Brown manager, to the Philadelphia Athletics for two pitchers, identity not revealed.

Rumors that Dave Bancroft will leave the Boston Braves and Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb depart the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers respectively, have died down, indicating that the open season for managers has closed with two exceptions in each league. It is certain that the St. Louis Browns and Boston Red Sox in the American as well as the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Nationals will have new managers as only the Phillies have one so far.

Bill McKechnie's friends say that he can have a major league coach if he wants it.

FISHWICK OUT OF YALE LINEUP AGAINST BROWN TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Yale will face Brown tomorrow minus the services of Dwight Fishwick, star right end who injured his knee in scrimmage yesterday. Fishwick will be out of the game for at least a week and it is uncertain whether he will be able to play against the Army a week from tomorrow.

Lee Mallory, of Memphis, Tenn., brother of Bill Mallory, Yale captain in 1923, started in Fishwick's position in today's signal drill and probably will receive the assignment tomorrow. Grile, Collins and Bradley also were given a trial during the afternoon.

The make-up of the Eli backfield was still in doubt tonight, it being uncertain whether Nobe will play at left halfback. In his absence, either Ostaway, McGunigle or Goodwine will be found behind the line. Bansel Poole and Kline will occupy their regular positions in the backfield.

YALE VARSITY AND FROSH WIN CROSS COUNTRY MEETS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Yale varsity and freshman cross country teams defeated Stevens college here this afternoon. The varsity event was easily won by Yale 16 to 39 points, but the Eli yearlings were pressed to win the freshman meet 26 to 29.

A. M. Briggs, of Oakham, Mass., featured in defeating his teammates and captain MacCauley Smith in the varsity event, with the excellent time of 23 minutes, 43 seconds. In the freshman race Captain Cookman, of Yale, and Crido, of Springfield, raced to a close finish in which the Yale leader was the winner by inches. He created a new record of 13 minutes, 2 seconds for the two and one half mile course.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 22.—The Connecticut Aggie freshmen will play their first home game of the season here tomorrow afternoon in meeting the Trinity junior varsity prior to the Aggie-Trinity varsity game.

Against Trinity tomorrow, the freshmen will lineup with Flydal and Slossberg, ends; Captain Hawkins and Nowak, tackles; Walker and Rufkis, guards; Stankel, center; Lamoreaux or McAffery, quarterback; Ryan and Shea, halfbacks; Turco, fullback.

MOOSE TO PROMOTE BOXING THIS WINTER

That Norwich will have boxing bouts this winter was assured Friday evening when the Norwich lodge of Moose voted to sponsor a card during the first week in December. Boxing in Norwich has been very quiet during the past few years with no individual promoter caring to take the chance of reviving it again.

All ready the committee that will have charge of the boxing activities has been in communication with a number of top-notch boxers in the state and will probably have George Day of New Haven as one of the principals in the main bout. Another boxer who will be given an opportunity show wether he can come-back or not will be Shiek Leonard local claimant of the state welterweight championship. If the first show goes off as expected the Moose will run bouts every month during the winter and then will consider the open air season.

Nutmegs Clash With Noank Crushers

Sunday on the J. B. Martin field the reorganized Norwich Nutmegs will clash with the husky Noank Crushers. This game was originally scheduled for last Sunday having been postponed on account of rain. The Noank boys are a snappy aggregation and match up with some of the best teams in the state. In the Crusher backfield will be seen two ex-R. I. State college aces. The Noank Crushers have an uncrossed goal line to date and are confident of defeating the local boys.

The Nutmegs realizing the strength of this team have secured the best grid material in this section including Christy, Kramer and Mileski formerly of the Greenville Tigers which made a deep impression on the local fans last year. "Buzz" Cardin, former Chapman Tech center will start at that position for the local eleven.

"Shiek" Leonard, Connecticut State welterweight champion boxer and ex-Wallingford High school fullback is practicing with the Nutmegs and will occupy one of the backfield positions in the near future.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

HARVARD-DARTMOUTH GAME HOLDS CENTER OF FOOTBALL STAGE TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—While most of the contenders for eastern football honors are taking "breathers" tomorrow in anticipation of harder conflicts in the offing, gridiron interest will center largely in the attempt of Dartmouth's Indians to tomahawk Harvard for the fourth year in a row.

A few weeks ago, while Harvard was stumbling against early opposition and Dartmouth rolling up impressive scores, the tomahawking process appeared likely to be simple. But the situation has undergone such a swift change that the Crimson is conceded at least a strong fighting chance of victory in a game which will see both teams struggling to regain prestige.

Dartmouth is the favorite, despite a disastrous setback at the hands of Yale a week ago that blasted the Green's three-year winning streak. The Indians appear more formidably equipped on attack, with Dooley, MacPhail, Lane and Black leading the charge, but weakness in the Hanover line may prove as costly against Harvard as it did against the Elis.

Harvard, despite two defeats in three games, has taken on a new lease on gridiron life, in the opinion of many critics, some of whom would not be surprised to see the Crimson upset the Green. Head Coach Arnold Horween has developed versatility in the Cambridge machine besides instilling confidence. From end to end, the Crimson forward wall appears considerably stronger than that of Dartmouth, despite the loss of Daly, a star guard. If Sayles, Miller, French and Putnam, the ball carriers, are able to profit by the work of an able line, Harvard will give her foes a lively afternoon.

Another traditional New England conflict finds Brown invading Yale to furnish a further test for the Elis, chief point of aspirations. Yale appears much too powerful for Brown, even without the versatile Larry Noble in the backfield, but the Bruins have a speedy outfit that may give the Elis trouble.

With Cornell idle for the day, preparatory to meeting Columbia next week the other members of New York's up-state triumvirate, Colgate and Syracuse, travel to foreign fields for games which complete a comparatively slim slate of important games.

Colgate, rallying from defeat at Pittsburgh, is relying on an overhead game against the powerful navy crew of Annapolis. Syracuse, disputed by injuries and resignations, has rearranged its forces for an attack on Penn State's stronghold. Navy and Penn State are favorites, but both contests appear likely to be closely fought.

Other major eastern elevens anticipate a comparatively quiet afternoon. Pennsylvania's high-powered machine will bid for eastern title honors, takes on Williams. Princeton, though not yet counted for the crucial tests of the season, expects little trouble with Lehigh while the unbeaten Army team is not likely to be seriously extended by Boston university.

Washington and Jefferson, another undefeated outfit, brings to New York a formidable attack, featuring Fullback Knox, for a tussle with Fordham. New York university hopes to keep up its sensational winning streak at the expense of Rutgers and at the same time avenge a long string of defeat. Columbia entertains Duke university of North Carolina in one of the day's few intersectional tilts.

Amherst is a favorite over Wesleyan for the first of the "Little Three" games at Middletown, Conn., but the 1926 champions of this triumvirate are not expected to approach the overwhelming margin of their victory last year, 73-6.

PUTNAM TEAM WINS FROM C. A. C. FRESHMEN

Putnam high school took the Connecticut Aggie Freshmen B team into camp Thursday by a 13-6 score. Putnam started the scoring wasn Winslow ended by perfect interference ran around the end for a touchdown. Then the Storrs team started an offensive which Putnam was unable to stop and scored a touchdown by line plunging. The score was 6-6 at the end of the first half. Winslow again scored in the third quarter and Wheaton scored the point after the touchdown. The Aggie were held for downs on Putnams ten yard line and lost the ball on a fumble. Late in the game Putnam had the ball within the Aggies ten yard line three times but each time they were stopped before the ball crossed the line. The game ended with the ball on the Aggies 15 yard line. For Putnam Winslows end runs and Elliot's line plunging featured while Tetreault and Wheaton made good gains by catching passes.

WESTERLY HAS EASY TIME IN WINNING OVER CHAPMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 22—Westerly high football eleven had little difficulty in sending Chapman Tech down to a 14 to 0 defeat here this afternoon. The sweeping end-runs and fierce line bucking by Salimeno and the agile toe of R. Meikle accounted for the 14 points made by the Westerly team. Chapman offered a fairly stiff opposition in the first and last quarters but in the two middle quarters Westerly scored a touchdown in each. Although Chapman held Westerly many times in their own territory they were unable to penetrate far into the Westerly domain. The summary:

WINDHAM FACES HARTFORD TODAY AT CAPITOL CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22.—It will be a determined group of pigskin tossers and an equally determined delegation of fans that will journey to Hartford Saturday afternoon for the engagement of Windham high school's eleven against the formidable Hartford public high school team. The game is one of the most important of the state inter-scholastic season. The manner in which both elevens have been drilled and pounded and schemaged in preparation for this encounter is a high compliment from one to the other that the ability of each is not to be taken too lightly. But the game of Alphonse and Gaston comes to an end this afternoon on the Hartford field. It will be "me, myself and I" when the well-primed football cohorts face each other on the gridiron.

Coach Thomas A. Carrington announced his Windham lineup Friday to be as follows: Backfield, F. Aherquarterback; Rood and Haggerty, halfbacks and Max Heller, fullback. The starting forward will be chosen from: Saba, Connor, F. Prater, Gargus, Macomber, Captain Buck, Wojek, Dawson, Bonbush and Storrs.

The game starts promptly at 2:30 o'clock on Batterson field in the rear of Weaver high school. Two hundred Windham fans are expected to appear in the sidelines.

HARRY GREB, FORMER MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION, DIES AFTER OPERATION

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Harry Greb, former middleweight champion of the world, died in a private sanitarium here this afternoon following a minor operation for the removal of a fractured bone from his nose, an injury suffered in an automobile accident two weeks ago at Pittsburgh.

Death was due to cardiac trouble, aggravated by the combined shock of the operation and the accident, Dr. Charles S. McGivern, noted specialist, who attended him, declared this evening.

Greb, who had been a patient of Dr. McGivern for many months, underwent an operation for the removal of a cataract on his right eye about three weeks ago. Immediately following, he returned to his home in Pittsburgh. In the automobile accident, in which his car plunged over an embankment, the wound from the operation was opened and he also sustained injuries about the nose, several bones being fractured causing him to breathe improperly. He returned to Atlantic City, primarily to have his eye treated. Examination proved that his nasal passages had been entirely blocked and as he wished to re-enter the ring, he decided upon the operation for the removal of the fractured bones in his nose.

"The operation was started under local anaesthesia," said Dr. McGivern, "and later during its course this was supplemented by nitrous oxide and oxygen gas. He left the operating table apparently in good condition at 8:30 o'clock last night. At 10 o'clock this morning his heart began to fail and rapidly grew weak despite the administration of stimulants until he died at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

"On each of the five occasions I met him he displayed singular gameness. He was one of the greatest fighters who ever lived, certainly in my time."

Greb, in 13 years in the ring, lost only seven bouts and but one by a Knockout. He was felled for his only count in the second round of a bout with Joe Chip in 1913. His bouts totalled 253, against middleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights, and during his career he held two titles light heavyweight and middleweight.

He scored 51 knockouts, won 33 decisions, boxed two draws and had 142 no decision contests.

Greb won the American light heavyweight title from Gene Tunney in 1923 but the boxer who is now world's heavyweight champion, regained it from him in 1925. Greb was not long without a title, however, for he used his ability to adapt his weight to different classes by challenging and defeating Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion, the same year. He was defeated by Tiger Flowers, Georgia negro, present middleweight titleholder, last February.

BOXERS AND RING OFFICIALS PAY TRIBUTE TO GREB

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Metropolitan boxing officials, writers and boxers, active and retired, paid tribute to the "heart" of Harry Greb, on receipt here of news of the Pittsburgh boxer's death at Atlantic City.

"His death leaves a niche in pugilism which in my opinion cannot be filled," was Gene Tunney's tribute.

"I boxed Greb five times," said the heavyweight champion, "and I believe I knew him and his fighting qualities as well as any man.

INTOXICATED DRIVERS GIVEN FINES IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 23.—A session of third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, was held at 9 o'clock on Friday morning in the court rooms on Union street. Court session began in the morning and closed with the case on statutory charge, beginning at 4 o'clock when everyone not connected with the case was excluded from the courtroom, it being a bastardy case brought by the state, Amos L. Kenyon, director of public aid of the town of Hopkinton, vs. James Greene. In the list of cases tried Joan McCarthy of Stonington, pleaded busty to operating an automobile on Oct. 20 without having first secured an operator's license, which fact was brought out, when eight-year-old Max Rabinef was struck on High street. McCarthy was fined $50 and costs. Frederick H. Edwards was found guilty of operating an automobile in Charlestown, R. I., which had not been properly registered and received a fine of $15 and costs.

The case which required the longest time for trial was that of the state, Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. James Miller of Potter Hill, for the obstruction of an officer in the performance of his duty, there being many witnesses. The complaint grew out of the arrest of James Campbell of Mystic, charged with operating an automobile on Sunday night, Oct. 10, in Potter Hill, while he was under the influence of liquor. At the time he was accompanied by a Polish man from Old Mystic, who and his two young sons with him on the back seat of an open automobile, the parent appeared to be under the influence of liquor. Miller had an argument with Chief Frank H. Brown over the boys being left in the automobile and out in the cold while Campbell was taken to the Westerly police station, five miles away. This case for an hour and a half, Chief Brown claimed that Miller got in his way while he was searching the car on the return for bottles of liquor, which were found in the Chevrolet touring car. In finding Miller guilty and sentencing him to pay a fine of $10 and costs, Judge Williams said that he was guilty of a technical violation, having committed a serious violation of the law, that he did make an error in the case, which had created considerable notoriety.

Edwin A. Clark, 23, of Hope Valley, R. I., charged by Chief of Police Frank H. Brown with operating an automobile on June 8 on Broad street in Ashaway at an improper and unreasonable rate of 40 miles per hour speed was found not guilty, the state not having sustained its case for speed and built-up section of the highway.

Judge Williams disposed of business as follows:

J. N. HANKINSON FOUND NOT GUILTY BY JUDGE OF NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—Harry M. Hankinson, accused of having stolen $5 in cash from a trunk of Julian V. Flagg, a teacher in Bulkeley school, on a raid in the home of Rev. Chester H. Howe, was declared not guilty after less than more than four hours deliberating in the police court. It was a day of extended testimony and [illegible] between opposing counsel. The [illegible] that surrounded the case from [illegible] involves it. The difference between possible and actual fact [illegible] that Judge Prince decided [illegible] the accused man was not [illegible] Hankinson, did some foolish [illegible] he was in this city as an [illegible] of the Southern New England [illegible] company. He was a [illegible] Y. M. C. A. and there [illegible] of $9 for room rent. [illegible] the day of the robbery [illegible] $20 bill which was the [illegible] of three bills [illegible] The other bills claimed to [illegible] were three of $10 denomination. Hankinson, when he paid [illegible] passed the young woman clerk [illegible] happened to have the payment [illegible] $20 bills.

When the theft was discovered, Rev. Mr. Howe was notified and he called in the police. He and Mr. Flagg also told of their suspicions to the telephone company. Flagg and Howe made for the railway station with an officer in time to intercept Hankinson if he was to leave at 2:02, but he could not be found. A warrant was issued for his arrest and he was found at his home in Newark, N. J., and brought back here.

He secured bail and his liberty. He was interviewed by telephone company officials and they advised him, to avert the disgrace that would come to him, to give an interview with Rev. Mr. Howe in the hope that the matter might be kept from further publicity and the case had attracted. Hankinson did, but he did not admit, nor did his statements imply that he was guilty as accused. Thomas Hooper, of Hartford, the head of the telephone company's department in which Hankinson was employed, gave the accused man some excellent advice as the case appeared to him as a layman. This was what Hankinson based upon when he went to see Rev. Mr. Howe. Ashley Dicklaw, another telephone superintendent, also talked with Hankinson and advised him and manifested an interest in him to the extent that he kept him as a guest at his home during the interval between the arrest and the trial.

The decision of the case finally hinged upon whether Hankinson offered to make good the loss of the $5 to Flagg of his own accord or whether he was influenced by the advice of Mr. Howe. The court declared that Hankinson acted on the advice of his friends and that in so doing he cast suspicion upon himself. The court room was well filled throughout the trial and the arguments of the attorneys were short but impressive.

John Harrington has a thirst for liquor that seems insatiable at times. It struck on Wednesday night when he was arrested for intoxication. He was allowed to go to a barge on which he declared he was employed. If he went aboard he did not stay there for he was found drunk again last night when he fell through a window of a store in Atlantic street and was found lying on the floor. Today John was sent up where he can break wood instead of glass and where he will stay at least 60 days. Santa Claus may take him out of jail when he emerges.

Romano's condition was such today that he could not appear in court so the case could not be heard. Romano is apparently of a forgiving disposition for he has signed a statement asking that the authorities shall not proceed against Micell. James desires to marry the Micell girl and it is understood that the ceremony will take place in the near future.

Mrs. R. A. Clapp, residing at the Hotel Mohican, made complaint to the police this afternoon that she had lost her handbag, which contained money and valuable jewelry, while shopping yesterday afternoon. The bag contained $52, a platinum wrist watch, with four diamonds set in the back and on it the monogram, "K. P. C.", a gold ring in the form of a snake and with a diamond eye. No trace of the lost articles were found. Mrs Clapp stated that she went to the store of Kresge, State street, late in the afternoon and placed her bag on a counter while she inspected goods. She absented herself a short time, but long enough for some one to steal the bag and its contents. RECOVERED STOLEN AUTO AT SAYBROOK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—The big six Studebaker sedan of Ernest M. Cobb of 34 School street, registration N-260, was stolen this afternoon about 3:15 from in front of the Studebaker sales station, but was recovered inside of an hour.

About 4 o'clock the stolen automobile was observed at Saybrook by Sergeant Thomas Henry, state police at Centerbrook. He held up the auto and in it were William Owen McNeil, 1779 14th street, Detroit, Mich., and Ray Samuel Howe, 7013 West Jefferson street, Detroit, together with two New London youths. McNeil and Howe were arrested, charged with the theft of the auto and officers from the barracks brought the prisoners and the auto to New London. McNeil and Howe are former members of the United States coast guard, local section base, and were recently discharged. They were on their way to Detroit and stole the automobile in an endeavor to obtain that means of transportation. They will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. The two boys stated that they were on their way to Niantic, where one of them hoped to get employment on a farm and that they were picked up in Waterford by the ex-coast guarders and offered a ride. They explained their failure to alight at Niantic because of the speed that the auto was being driven when it passed through the village. Their story is doubted although they are not connected with the theft of the auto, for if McNeil and Howe traveled over the main highway to Saybrook they did not pass through Niantic. The boys were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

RENEW STUDY OF MARS FOR SIGN OF HUMANS

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Oct. 22 (AP)—In the early hours of tomorrow morning astronomers and laymen will begin their biennial study of the neighboring planet of Mars for signs of living Martians.

Tonight, the path of the moon will bring it close to the brilliant red star, and five days later, Mars will be closest to the earth in its two years orbit. In August, 1924, Mars was about seven million miles closer than it will be this month, but the planet will be much higher above the horizon this time and hence more easily studied.

The earth and Mars will be but 42,000,000 miles apart on Oct. 27, and while Mars will then appear only one-hundredth as large as the moon, it will be easily visible without a telescope.

At midnight on Nov. 1, Mars will be very close to the zenith for observers in the middle west, and for three days later observers will have 14 hours to study the planet which for that night will be "in opposition," as the astronomers say, to the sun, or on the opposite side of the earth from the sun.

"It is not possible to predict that new discoveries of importance will be made this fall," said Prof. Edwin B. Frost, of the Yerkes observatory here, "but when the weather is favorable, the planet will be carefully studied. The most important results obtained in 1924 showed that the dark spots of the planet, supposed to be water or swamps, radiated more heat than the bright reddish portions which are supposed to be desert areas. This has not yet been explained.

"It also was shown that while the temperature there might rise above the freezing point of water during the daytime, it must fall perhaps as much as 150 Fahrenheit degrees for plants and animals such as are known on the earth to exist on Mars."

Through a new photographic apparatus it is hoped to obtain good pictures of about a quarter of an inch in diameter, of the planet at its closest approach to the earth.

WDAF PLANS SERIES OF STAGE AND RADIO PLAYS

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 22 (AP)—An attempt to produce a series of plays for the stage and for the radio simultaneously will be made this winter by the WDAF players, a group which produced radio plays from The Kansas City Star's studio last winter.

An organization composed of Kansas City actors and directors has been formed under the name of The Theater Craft Guild. Leonora Anthony and Jack Moffitt, both known for their work here in amateur theatricals, are directors. Mr. Moffitt said tests had proven the plan was feasible.

Acoustics in the theater varying greatly from that of the radio, the directors had to work out the action of the plays so that the players would never be too far away from the microphones. A fairly small stage in a local auditorium has been selected and the microphones concealed in torchieres near the footlights. Five original plays are under consideration and one or two of these will be produced if the experiment is successful.

The WDAF players achieved a wide reputation by their radio presentation of Don Marquis's The Dark Hours, a story of the crucifixion, which was given on Good Friday this year.

ART DEALERS NOW RENT NOTED WORKS TO MOVIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—The demand for authentic detail in modern motion picture production has opened a new source of revenue for art dealers who are now renting fine paintings for use as wall decorations in elaborate movie sets.

The companies are charged one per cent of the valuation of the picture per week. An original Sir Peter Lely, portrait of a lady, was valued at $5,000 and rented at $50 a week. One company this year used an Rembrandt rented from the Clark collection, a Granier still-life, a Blakelock landscape, Raeburn and Mettling portraits and what was represented to be a true Franz Hals. The latter rented for 65 dollars.

SKIN TROUBLE COVERS BODY

Badger, Minn., March 1:—"A while ago I was troubled with a skin disease, a mild case of itch, which was very distressing. It began on my leg and was most aggravating; the more I scratched it, the more it itched. Finally a number of tiny pimples formed and soon spread all over my body. It became so bad that I did not know what to do about it and was going to consult a physician when a friend of mine suggested that I try Resinol Ointment. I bought a jar the next day and was delighted with the relief I obtained after the first application. A few more treatments and the itch was entirely gone. I have also used Resinol Soap and Ointment for blackheads and pimples and it helped wonderfully. I cannot praise Resinol enough for all the good it has done me." (Signed) Colin Stoffel, Star Route.

The Graves of a Household

They grew in beauty, side by side,
They filled one home with glee
Their graves are severed far and wide
By mount, and stream and sea.

The same fond mother bent at night
O'er each fair sleeping brow,
She had each folded flower in sight.
Where are those dreamers now?

One, 'midst the forests of the west,
By a dark stream is laid,
The Indian knows his place of rest
Far in the Cedar shade.

The sea, the blue lone sea has one
He lies where pearls lie deep,
He was the loved of all, yet none
O'er his low bed may weep.

One sleeps where southern vines are dressed
He wrapped his colors round his breast
On a blood-red field of Spain

And one—o'er her the myrtle showers
Its leaves, by soft winds fanned;
She faded 'midst Italian flowers,
The last of that bright band.

And, parted thus, they rest who played
Beneath the same green tree;
Whose voices mingled as they prayed
Around one parent knee.

They that with smiles lit up the hall,
And cheered with song the hearth,
Alas for love, if thou wert all,
And naught beyond, O earth!

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Several weeks have passed since I wrote you and I'll try a gain to add my bit to the Corner page. Hope I have not worked so long as to be forgotten. I planned to attend the meeting in East Killingly but received word of the funeral of a cousin the same day as the Corner meeting so motored to Westerly instead. I hear all who attended the Corner meeting had a good time and hope to be able to go myself some time. I enjoy the Corner page every Saturday. It was especially good two weeks ago. I like to read letters from Rural Aunty she is so cheerful and always talking us to look on the bright side to turn our clouds inside out and find the silver lining and I think anyone who tries to brighten up life's pathway for a they meet is a true friend indeed.

Most of us feel blue and downhearted some times when at the close of the day we have not accomplished the tasks we had undertaken and then is a good time to read a Social Corner page and after a good nights sleep we wake to find the sunshine flooding the earth and all nature rejoicing. We feel like a new creature and can thank God for another day to work for those who love and care for us. Then we are reminded how much we have to be thankful for. The leaves are fading and falling from the trees and we know the summer is gone, but a drive through the country is delightful. Many trees still have on their autumn dresses of gorgeous colors and are beautiful to behold.

Several of our friends have just returned from the delightful motor trip over the Mohawk trail and are telling of the beautiful foliage along the route. Others are starting for Florida I hope no terrible storms will overtake them, but good health and happiness surround them. Many of us must be content to be shut ins through the winter.

I must tell you of a day I spent at Quonocontaug beach in September.

I was one of a party of 14, two of them being cousins from New York who were visiting here. They were delighted with the sight of the ocean The waves rolled very high that day and as they struck the rocks, threw the spray very high. We women were all seated on the sand and the men served a most bountiful and appetizing dinner. It consisted of steamed clams and greenecrn, also corn toasted over the fire, which was very sweet and good, frankforts and rolls, sandwiches, cakes, pies, tea, coffee and pickles and last a box of marshmallows. Then we had our pictures taken. On the way home we drove to Lord's Point and called on a couple who were spending their honeymoon there. All had a fine time and hoped to meet there again.

I have two or three more auto trips planned before the snow flies but they may not materialize, everything in life is so uncertain.

I suppose the sisters have all finished canning and have their cupboards in the cellar stored full. We get tired of the work but how good it all tastes next winter when we are snowbound and the wind howls around the homestead.

I have canned peaches, pears, tomatoes, sweet corn, beans and mincemeat. Now I am looking for quinces I like them best of all.

I have braided two rugs and have two bedquilts to tie. Have made several yards of tatting for the edge of handkerchiefs, but I spend much of my time playing with my dear little grandson, two years old.

Hope we will hear from Ma of Green Gables and Cackie this week. Was sorry I did not meet Balsam Fir.

With best wishes to all,

GRANDMA GRAY.

GREETINGS FROM HELENA

Dear Social Corner Editor: Thank you for my check also want to thank Kitty Lou for the pin ball. Was pleased.

Wish I could have had the pleasure of seeing some of the sisters that write such good letters.

Pleased to get your card Lonesome.

To clean kettles easily pour a little hot water in and put a cover on, the steam will soften the dirt so that it may be easily removed.

To scour tins, use whiting moistened with kerosene. Leaky roofs, a cement made of sand and whitelead paint will stop leaks. Best wishes to all,

HELENA

PICK ANOTHER'S PENNAME

Dear Social Corner Editor: I would like very much to join the Social Corner and Club No. 4. I have been tempted to join for a long time but have not had the courage. Kindly sent me a Social Corner pin.

With best wishes for the Corner I will take for my penname.

APPLE BLOSSOM.

(You have taken the pen name of another. Please select something else and your name will be enrolled.—S. T. Editor.)

CALL FOR THE "ONE LETTER" SISTERS

Dear Corner Folks: Want you all to know what a pleasure it was for Zany and I to have about 50 come to our picnic on a rainy day. Just imagine what a lonely day it would have been for us if no one had come and sitting around all day thinking of 'what might have been." That makes twice I have picked a rainy day. Hope I have more sense next time for we do want to spread the tables again beneath the noble old white oak tree. I would not feel satisfied if I did not make mention of the "help one another" spirit which was shown so strongly here. Our clubs are much more than Social Corner clubs.

Attended the East Killingly picnic and had a fine time and a fine day I love. It was a pleasure to meet Lady Lou, Idealene and a Mr. who drove up from Westerly to meet wih us.

Welcome to our club Irma. Think I know your number.

Nema: Here is a recipe for a two crusted lemon pie which we like better than the one made with corn starch.

Lemon Pie Filling: Grated rind and juice of one lemon, 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cracker rolled fine, scant 1-2 cup seedless raisins, and a little salt. Mix all together and bake between 2 crusts.

Sisters before you call your canning all done try this jelly if you have not already done so.

Jelly: 4 quarts of nice tart apples, 1 quart of cranberries and 2 or 3 large quinces.

Hode is a little trick I do in housecleaning which some may call a dirty one. And I am not so sure but what our good mother would have too, for she taught me to sweep, dust then wash the floor. Now I wash the floor sweep then dust and find it does away with lots of dusting.

Now I have one more say. What is the matter with the sisters who have never written but one letter? At this season of the year there are plenty of subjects to write about and you surely must have some leisure time. We enjoy the letters and hope to have more to enjoy. Best wishes to all from

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Seeing a request for letters on friendship, thought I would write. It is sometime ago I have written but have enjoyed reading the nice letters every week and went to one of the picnics this fall. What nice fall weather lately, and the flowers and foliage look so nice this year. I have been riding several of the nice afternoons.

I am a friend of cats and think it does not seem as homelike without one. They are lots of company and help keep mice away.

A true friend is hard to get, but when you get one he generally sticks. He is a person who would do anything for you at any time or under any circumstances even at his inconvenience. Many people have but one true friend in a lifetime, while some others may have two or three. To have a friend does not necessarily have to be full up with kids. True friendships must be founded on a good basis, else in the beginning anyway. Your true friend doesn't have to be educated, but the nearer perfect he is the more his friendship will be, and whether you rise or fall, your true friend will stick by you. Also like any friendship must be largely taken a matter of for worse. It is like to have not a friend who in many ways clashes with yours and agrees on nothing else, because, you discover traits not at first perceived. It may seem to find perfection in a friend is well possibly will long and disappointed at last.

There are near friends and dear friends
And friends for just a day.
There are many friends and true friends
And friends across the way.
There are warm friends and cool friends
And lasting friends and bold friends
But best of all are old friends
Whose friendship comes to stay!

CELEBRATING THANKSGIVING

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Readers: I was thinking of Thanksgiving, the ties and interests of kinship bringing members of families together from all quarters. The reunion is gay and happy, but it has different phases about train schedules. Then home will be no wounded feelings or delays. And the request that every one who comes be sure to bring with him one of his own baby's pictures.

Thanksgiving naturally falls into three parts: Before the dinner, the dinner, after the dinner. The company divides into two groups, the grown ups and the children. Unfortunately, a house can't be with both; so things will run more smoothly if you ask some relative with a talent for amusing children to take charge of their entertainment. Before dinner keep them out-of-doors as much as possible; the boys playing ball or anything they choose and the girls playing, Prisoners Base and Red Rover. At dinner they will have much more fun and there will be less confusion if the big table if, under the supervision of the head relative, they have a side table to themselves. After dinner there are more games in which everyone can join their elders; others like, "Hen on," "Buzzer" and "Bean Bag" they may play in another room, where they will not disturb the others.

After the hubbub of greeting is over there will be an hour or so before dinner. In order that you may oversee the final arrangements, and at the same time provide entertainments for your guests, have two baskets filled with picture post cards showing views of nearby places. The titles should have been removed and each card cut zigzag. One half goes into one basket and this each man draws; the other into another basket for the women Those drawing halves that match are partners, and must set forth to discover the original view from which the complete picture was made.

The few guests to whom a walk may not appeal will find interest in arranging the baby pictures into sort of a gallery against the back ground of a sheet and pursuing the reminiscences they suggest. Each picture should have a different number attached to it.

The dinner of course will follow the time honored menu, but you may have all the novelty you wish in the decoration. As this is a family party you can have as your centerpiece an oak tree. It should be about two feet tall with the leafage high enough to permit people to see across the table beneath it. If oak trees are not available, any other small tree will do. Gay leaves scattered around the bottom conceal the two pieces of board through which a hole bored through the center for securing the tree in an upright position.

From beneath these leaves to each place at the table run brown ribbons of varying shades and widths, representing roots. Each end is a gold nugget as the roots of all good family trees should. To each nugget is fastened a place-card bearing the name of a person who is to sit there. You can make the nuggets from walnuts, painted with liquid gilt. For favors a pretty little woodland basket made by pasting acorns close together around a cardboard foundation. The handles many be made of braided grass twisted round a slender wire fastened to the box at either side. Tie a cluster of scarlet berries at the top and fill the baskets with silver coated candies. If you are unable to get acorns or other small nuts, you can make almost equally pretty baskets by lacing together at the top and bottom corners four pieces of card board. Each piece should be cut two inches straight across the bottom to fit a two inch square cardboard base and should broaden at the top in the shape of an oak leaf. With a ten cent box of paints you can tint the leaves brown and yellow. This same design, minus the base, will make your candle shades. Eight lighted candles with a bowl of golden fruit at either end or the table will complete the decoration most effectively.

After dinner, the first game in which the children join is hunting for the fruits of the tree! These are after-dinner mint wafers, hidden in every conceivable place. The finding of them is its own reward.

Next comes a survey of the picture gallery. Each person is provided with pencil and paper, and opposite the number of the picture, and opposite the picture will write down his guess as to who was that particular one. While the lists are being corrected and the prize being awarded to the best guesser every one must tell an anecdote of his own babyhood a glimpse in their former life will please the children.

A DOUBLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dear Cornerites: A greeting to all the friends of the Corner. Well! How are you all this rainy Sabbath morning?

I was requested to write up a function I attended yesterday afternoon for the Corner page, so here goes. Yesterday afternoon a telephone message came to me from a niece in Norwich to know if I would like to take a ride to Groton. At first I thought I could not go, for I had not been feeling very good for a few days, but I finally decided to go, and sent word I would be ready in an hour. Had a nice ride across the river to another niece's pleasant house in Groton. Very soon after I arrived the people began to arrive from Norwich. Then I discovered it was a birthday party. They came bringing their birthday gifts and I had come empty handed which made me feel rather foolish, for I should have remembered it was my sister-in-law's 60th birthday and the mother of my niece in Groton.

So some of her old time neighbors and friends were invited to come and help her celebrate the occasion. They were all old friends and acquaintances of mine so we had a very social time. There were four generations present, the youngest having been born on her grandmother's birthday anniversary 14 years ago, so there were two birthdays to celebrate, which made it all the more interesting. Late in the afternoon a lunch was served which consisted of chicken sandwiches, several kinds of cake fruit and ice cream. Then there was a lovely birthday cake, with dates of time and which was cut and passed around with the ice cream.

It was the cake aside from the associations connected with it. Later on, I was called out in the yard to see a coop of 95 light Brahma cockerels. They were nearly full grown and scattered over the nice yard made a fine show. Some of them took the first prize at the recent county fair. If any one wishes to improve their stock in that breed there is a good opportunity.

Kitty Lou: Your letter received in which you failed to give me your full address. If I should send you an answer to it with only your name and Norwich, Conn., on it it would be returned to me in short order with a nice calling down from the post office department for sending a letter without street or number. If you will send me your full address you will hear from me in the near future. Well, as this is my second letter in a week I think I had better ring off and give others a change.

Hope you will all have a happy and pleasant Thanksgiving and be full fed to the limit.

DOM PEDRO.

SAVING HER PLACE IN CORNER

Dear Social Corner Friends: Now everyone that dreads the long cold winter nights and the dreary lonesome winter days put up your right hand. My, my, I believe it is unanimous.

One sister told me that if I wished to keep my cozy place in the Corner I must write. So I will send in a few lines, as I would not fancy being out in the cold now.

1926! I watched the door Oct. 7 hoping the next would be you. Was the arm too painful? I hope to hear it is improving.

Peggy Alder: Have thought of that cake in your lunch at the Fiddlers' convention and wished that I had accepted it, it looked so good.

Lalia: Get your pen and ink and write or you will lose your seat.

Honorable Tin Biscuit: Was very sorry you did not come to lunch Oct. 7th, we would all have enjoyed some music.

Am making fine tomato cold pickle from a recipe sent by Eclipse. It is fine with baked beans.

Am sending a recipe for Spanish pickle which we like.

Spanish Pickle: One peck green tomatoes, 6 large onions, 4 green peppers, cup sugar, 1 quart vinegar, 4 tablespoons of whole spice. Slice tomatoes, sprinkle with salt, one night, drain, add the rest of the ingredients and boil until soft. Can and seal hot. Best wishes to all from

CARO.

THANKFUL FOR ASSISTANCE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was glad to see so many of the sisters from out of town at Club No. 6's meeting and want to thank all those who so kindly assisted and for all the nice things to eat, although some were disappointed not to have beans.

I have a teaspoon with the letter M on and will be glad to find an owner.

Lucille Drew: The reading was very nice, also all the program

Hope to see you all at Westerly Nov. 16th.

With best wishes for the Corner.

THE LOVELINESS OF THE COUNTRY

Dear Social Corner Folks: Well what a day this is, raining since early morning and no signs of a let up.

When we have a day like this I think we appreciate a day like yesterday more.

And what a day we did have to go to North Stonington.

Early in the morning it looked doubtful, but by the time we were ready to go it was lovely and the ride down and back was one never to be forgotten. The foliage was gorgeous, such wonderful tints and colors. Truly it was a picture no artist can paint.

Last Sunday we went for a long ride through Brooklyn and Pomfret and oh how I did enjoy it.

As we drove through Pomfret with its beautiful maple trees, the streets and lawns had a deep carpet of multicolored leaves and such a sight as it was, I felt like singing, "Backward, turn backward oh time in your flight, and make me a child again just for today," so I could get out and run and tumble through the leaves as I did when I was a child. I was so intoxicated with the loveliness of it all that I guess it went to my brain for when we came home and they started the victrola I did some kind of Charleston that I had never done in my life before. The folks told hubby he would have to take me over again if it did me so much good as that.

Was wondering how many Social Corner sisters homes I passed on my ride.

How many saw the aurora borealis last Friday night? Such a sight in a perfectly clear sky to see those beams with their everchanging colors shooting toward the zenith. It was another one of nature's beautiful pictures that I am thankful for having seen.

It is indeed truly said that he who can see the beauties of nature has much to be thankful for.

Tatting and Frances: I missed you. Was so disappointed for it may be a long time before I see you again.

Susanna: Inquired for you but was told you were not there. Now it's your turn to hunt for me.

Wiltwyck and Amy: Can't you use your influence and get that neighbor of yours to write? How about it M? Get busy now, if those invalids are all better.

Well I think Susie has written enough for this time.

Best wishes to all the sleds and shatlins and hope we will have more letters on our page

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

EARLY DAYS AT THE HOPYARD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Are you tired of the Devil's hopyard? There are so many things to tell about it, so many traditions and so many people who have never heard of it at all.

I think the sister is mistaken about it ever having been a hopyard. The oldest resident more than 40 years ago said hops were never grown there. They had heard their fathers say it was not a place where they could grow to advantage. The name is no strange, as the next county has Satan's kingdom, Devil's glen and many rocks all around can show you prints of is feet. Ever the Moodus noises have been called growlings of the Devil.

In 1812, there was a mill near the falls to grind flour. It was said the miller was furnishing flour to the British and neighbors came at night, threw the mill stones into the stream and tore down the mill. The miller fled and never was seen again. The Mr. Chapman for whom the falls is named died there the day of the big blizzard, in 1888 and was buried in the snow for days until six yoke of oxen could make a path through the snow and carry the body to Colchester.

Some 30 years ago there was a picnic ground just below the falls and a long low building built to serve clam chowder which had the reputation of being the best ever made. And Saturday afternoons people from all around, Salem, Millington and East Haddam flocked to the Devil's hopyard where old time fiddlers played until morning. Irish Washwoman, Turkey in the Straw, Arkansas Traveler and Devil's Dream, drowning out the noise of the falls.

There is a spring of cold water near the roadside and a wide brook where the water goes over stones and roots in the lowlands toward North Plain. Going east from the hopyard to Salem you cross 11 brooks. Some are five feet below the wooden bridge over them. In the spring these rush along like mad. All are tributaries of the Eight Mile river.

I hope I have not tired those who have seen the hopyard, and I hope others will go and see the place.

Lige Magarn the longer you stay and the more you look the more wonderful it seems.

Nancy Peck: Do you believe all those weather signs? I shall keep them and try them out for or what I can. I don't know what the melt of a hog is so couldn't try that if I had a hog. I like to try everything I read in the Corner, but I Guess Who, has stuck me now. We like just codfish and potatoes.

True Blue: Are you one of Club No. 6? Hope to meet you some time.

SUSANNA.

FINE TIME WITH CLUB NO. 6

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: The weather man on the morning of Oct. 19 had Chauffeur, Kasha, Scottie, Black Eyed Susie and yours truly wondering if he was going to favor us with sunshine. He decided he would, so we started for North Stonington, to meet the members and friends of Shore Line club No. 6. The foliage on the trees all of the way was beautiful, so enjoyed the ride very much.

Received a cordial welcome from sisters and friends when we arrived. After a social hour or two we stood around the well laden tables and sang Praise God from whom all blessings flow. We were then served the most delicious dinner of meat pie, macaroni, tuna fish salad, pies galore, several kinds of cake, pickles, rolls, cheese carrots, and coffee, by E. L. M., Cosmos and their efficient helpers. We were blessed with good appetites so think we did justice to the bountiful good things provided.

After dinner we were invited upstairs for the entertainment which opened with singing. Piano solo by Black Eyed Susie. Reading, The Trolley Line, by Dorothy Bradford and The Old Fashioned Parlor, With the Horse Hair Sofa by Nancy Peck. Old fashioned songs were sung by two sisters and the pastor's wife read an original poem. There was a lonely lady who prayed for a companion to cheer her on her pathway through life. Was interested in Dea. Tucker, a widow er with four children. Heard him say they needed a mother. For some reason she was not chosen for that position, but her prayer was answered in the form by a druggist whose aunt had passed away and left him a sum of money. They could live over the store, nicely, so the story ended happily and they lived happily forever afterwards. The program ended by singing America. Everyone was saying as we bid each other good bye, "Haven't we had a fine time? Thanks to Club No. 6 for the very pleasant day passed in their coucts.

Wish to thank Kitty Lou for the pretty pocket pincushion. They are very useful. The one I have is getting shabby so appreciate the new one. Thank you for your picture. Glad you sent it as will be able to recognize you when I meet you if ever I do. Would like to as I enjoy reading your letters as there is usually something new in them to be learned.

Best wishes to all Social Corner club members of every name and denomination.

MENDING

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Probably as most of us are housekeepers, we have to devote some of our time every week to mending. Now perhaps some of use find that to be a disagreeable task, and are apt to delay, "that stitch in time which saves nine." However we can reduce unnecessary work by a few hints, that have appealed to me. First of all we realize it is easier to mend a small break or hole in the hosiery, than to neglect it and perhaps later be obliged to discard it. This same rule applies to the underwear, especially of the stockinet variety. At this time of year, the summer wear, is about to be replaced for the thicker quality. I have found it so much easier and quicker to use the darning cotton in small places, rather than put on little patches also that it will not break away and prove a better mending. I seldom put on patches, unless the break is too large for the darning. There are so many other places, besides hosiery and underwear that the mending cotton can be used to good advantage. Dish towels and bath towels, that have a small break, can be prolonged in service in this way. In regard to sewing on buttons to replace those that are torn off, how much better to take a few minutes, than to neglect it, and allow the substitute of a safety pin to wear out the material.

I admire every mother who teaches her little girls to be responsible for some of the mending on their own clothes, and also to help out for the younger children, where there are large families. If little girls do their mending neatly and are complimented for it, they will feel encouraged, and find these little duties a pleasure more than a task. It will teach them pride in personal appearance. It will form good habits for womanhood, as well as a relief to the busy mother, who must give her time to other work that the children can not do.

My estimate of true friendship is, to do by others as you would like, or expect them to do by you, under same conditions. I had the pleasure of hearing the late D. L. Moody preach one of his fine sermons, not long before his passing away. One point that he emphasized was this.

"Reputation is what the world thinks of a man, but character is what a man is, after dark." I think this is also a good version of friendship.

Love is the rosebud of an hour
Friendship the everlasting flower.

WAYS TO USE APPLES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Am sending in a few recipes for using the apple crop.

Baked Apples with Nuts: Core and wash the apples, place in a deep pan, allowing a tablespoon of sugar and a half cup of water to each apple. In the center of each apple place a teaspoon of chopped nuts and a strip of orange or lemon peel, then sprinkle the whole with cinnamon. Bake very slowly, so that the water and juice will form a jelly. Serve hot or cold.

Apple Roly Poly: Make a sweet biscuit dough, roll out and spread with apple sauce, or a layer of chopped apples. Sprinkle with sugar, butter and spice, roll like a jelly roll. Bake in a moderate oven one hour. It may also be steamed, requiring two hours cooking.

Apple Sauce Cake: One cup sugar, one half cup shortening, one salt spoon salt, one half teaspoon ground cloves, one half teaspoon grated nutmeg, one teaspoon ground cinnamon one and one-half cup of raisins; one teaspoon soda dissolved in little water, one cup unsweetened apple sauce. Put the dissolved soda in the apple sauce; let it foam, add the other ingredients, stir all together and sift in one and three-fourths cups flour. Bake in a loaf for 45 minutes.

Apple Frosting: Grate one large apple, mix in enough confection sugar to make the right thickness. Club No. 1 had their first fall gathering in Chamber of Commerce hall, Willimantic Oct. 13. There were 63 in attendance and all had a very enjoyable time. As usual the dinner was fine, the tables very prettily decorated with autumn flowers. The hostess, Amy, surely had efficiency in the kitchen, as everything came piping hot to the table, such as coffee, meat pie, potatoes and beans. After dinner quite a few of the ladies gave the experiences they have had while traveling, all rather funny and very entertaining. Was so glad to see some of the Norwich sisters with us and hope they come again. Best wishes for the Corner and a speedy recovery to the sick.

ENJOYED VISIT WITH CLUB NO. 6

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Rather late, but now I must thank all those who so kindly sent me gifts and cards for my birthday.

Practical Polly: That was a cute little fellow and very useful; thanks for same.

True Blue, White Dawn, Necia and Chocolate and others I may not name but thank you all just the same.

I must tell you that we had a very pleasant time and a nice dinner with Club No. 6. It was my first visit with them and hope to go again. The program was fine. Old songs by the "we us" girls, then a vocal solo by one of the sisters, reading by Dorothy Bradford, a nice piano solo by Black Eyed Susie, reading by Oriole, another piano solo, then a reading The Old Fashioned Parlor, which was very nice. We all enjoyed our visit with them very much.

I am glad so many like cats, and some of the sisters have told some interesting stunts they can do. I have one which we think a good deal of, the only thing he does out of the ordinary is to jump to the highest shelf in the pantry or the kitchen cabinet. Oh, no, he is not a thief, he can be left near any kind of meat and unless I cut it up for him he wont touch it.

Hope all who have been sick are well again.

SCOTTIE.

SAUCE FOR PUDDING

Dear Social Corner: Greetings to all. Dom Pedro: I wrote you a letter this last week and I don't understand why you didn't receive it.

I called up Black Eyed Susan and obtained your address. Should have written you sooner but for some reason did not read the Corner that week until late.

I will send the recipe for the sauce for the pudding I sent in last week This recipe is a novelty and hasn't been out but a short time. Save one-half or the tall can of milk that you boiled the day before for the pineapple pudding and put it on the stove and see that it gets scalding hot. Then chill quickly, have your whipping bowl and beater just before serving time and two tablespoons lemon juice to the 1-2 cup of condensed, milk and beat. It will beat up in a minute and hold up better than real whipped cream.

PUSSY'S FRIEND.

CRETIA'S EXPERIENCE WITH CATS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Have read the cat stories in the Corner. There is a saying, "Yield not to temptation," but I am going to. My parents lived where there was half an acre of land in the rear of the house, just a gradual accent west to our boundary line. In those days many on Hampton hill owned large sleds and evenings rode down Bigelow hill. One I used was made in the old blacksmith shop by the Fuller brothers, one a wood worker the other a blacksmith and a good substantial article was turned out, capable of holding a few adults and conveyed them down Bigelow hill in a hurry. I was permitted to use the sled in riding down this slight elevation but did not know anything about steering being too young. We owned a black and white cat or ordinary breed. For special marking it had a black nose or black strip from eyes down. He was named, Nig. One day while I was enjoying myself alone with the sled Nig came out to the wood shed door. Childishly I set him on the sled, took the rope and slowly commenced to ascend, expecting to see him jump off, but he remained in the same position to the top. I then carefully turned the sled around, fully intending to sit myself with him but instead just started the sled towards the house and stood at top of the hill and watched for results. Nig remained on the sled to the end of the journey, seemed to enjoy the change from using his own feet on the snow My mother was very fond of cats and witnessed the wonderful event and the value of Nig increased at once and when we moved to the Thread city in May 1867 the cat came with us. seemed to enjoy new surroundings, lived to be 13 years old and was buried decently. He weighed ten pounds. I had a tiger gray which weighed 14 pounds. Few people were courageous enough to say in our presence, "What a homely cat." He was not wholly unlike people and knew more than he looked. Had several cats since his death, but not his equal. Cats differ like people in many respects. The largest cat I ever saw was at the Conantville boarding house then owned by Mr. Bottom and kept by Cyril Whitaker which tipped the scales at 17 pounds. It was ordinary breed. In reading the wonderful cat stories it occurred to me, if I was face to face with the writer, temptation would be great to say, "I'll believe this one if you won't tell any more." So may some of the Social Corner friends feel about this yarn.

In answer to the commercial value of Currier and Ives prints, I do not know. Have one by Currier but not for sale. Think I'd write to House Beautiful as their March number contained information on picture. Furniture made of maple is in demand. Intend to look around more soon.

Kochie: I can not imagine who you can be and know me from your location. Boy said, "I don't like to be kept in expense" and I do not. I may not always be here, and you seem to know my exact location. You better come and take me on a wire(unaware)as the man said who was going visiting.

Wish I might have experienced the pleasure of meeting Balsam Fir. Think I was touring with Virgil and family at the time you were in Connecticut.

I am sending the Graves of a Household which lines often come to me as I realize the separation of families, I committed the poem to memory and recited it in my schooldays.

CRETIA.

GREATLY ENJOYED CLUB 4'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been quite a long time since I have sent in a letter to the Corner so am going to try and write a few lines now.

I hope all the sisters are feeling fine after the lovely day we had at East Killingly Oct. 7th. I enjoyed every minute of the day and what a wonderful dinner we did have! My it sure was fit for a king and the sisters certainly worked hard to make it a success.

I was so glad to see so many there, new faces and old, and all in for a good time.

I don't think there is any where a prettier place than East Killingly. It is so lovely there on the hill. The view is wonderful and one you long remember.

Hope all the sisters are well. I was real ill all last week with grip and tonsilitis. Feeling better now and up around but not much pep yet.

Pisces: Where art thou? Haven't seen you since the 7th. Hope you aren't sick, but those beans.

Hope Buffalo and the good man got home all safe. It was so kind of them to take us over and back.

Have any of you ever tried planting a sweet potato to have for a winter fern? The foliage is just like a fern, and it looks so pretty growing in the house in the winter time. Plant in sandy soil and keep wet. I have just planted one am anxious to see it come up and grow.

Well I must close now and hope we we will all meet again soon at another meeting in the near future.

Best wishes to all.

CRANBERRY RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here are some cranberry recipes;

Cranberry Dumplings: 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons shortening, half teaspoon salt, 3 fourths cup milk. Sift together flour, baking powder, work in the shortening, salt, add the milk gradually. Roll a half inch thick cut with biscuit cutter, place in a greased steamer, cover closely, steam twelve minutes. On the top of each place a tablespoon of cranberry jelly. Serve with hard sauce in which strained cranberry juice is used as a flavoring.

The recipe makes 12 dumplings.

Cranberry Pie: 4 cups cranberries, 1 cup seeded raisins, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 orange grated, rind of, or several teaspoons of juice. Cook cranberries and raisins, together until the former burst, then add the sugar. When almost cool add beaten eggs, the bread crumbs, grated orange rind or orange juice. Bake in uncovered crust in a moderately hot oven.

Cranerry Salad: 1 quart cranberries, half cup raisins, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, half cup boiling water, 1 lemon juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, quarter teaspoon ground cloves, half teaspoon cinnamon. Cover the cranberries and raisins with water, cook until tender, put through a sieve, measure one pint of pulp add it to the gelatine which has been softened in the cold water, dissolved in the boiling water the lemon juice, sugar, spices, pour into small molds. When cold serve with mayonnaise on shredded cabbage. Sliced oranges, bananas may be combined with the cranberry jelly. Recipe makes 12 servings.

Sweet Pickled Cranberries: 1 pound cranberries, half pound sugar, half cup vinegar. Select large berries pierce a few holes in each with a large needle. To the cranberries add the sugar dissolved in the vinegar. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Remove the berries from the liquid, boil it until it thickens and pour it over the berries.

Scalloped Cranberries: 2 cups soft white bread crumbs, half cup melted butter, stewed sweetened cranberries, large seeded raisins, grated lemon rind, sugar. Moisten the bread crumbs with the melted butter. Butter a baking dish, sprinkle in a layer of bread crumbs with the melted butter. Butter a baking dish, sprinkle in layer of bread crumbs, add a layer of cranberries, 12 large raisins, a little lemon rind sugar. Continue the layers until the crumbs are used. Cover, bake in a moderate oven and serve with hard sauce flavored with cranberry juice.

Cranberry Ice Cream: Add one half to three-quarters of a cup of chopped cranberries to each quart of plain ice cream mixture. Bits of candied orange or lemon peel or other glace fruits may be added to make tutti-frutti ice cream.

Saville, Le Balsam Fir: Thank you very much for your kind and cheerful letters. How it mourn for my dear husband. We miss him so much.

NESPA'S TRIP TO JOHNSONVILLE

Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I helped fill up the Corner page of the paper. So will tell about my trip to Johnsonville, N. Y. My nephew came for me at 7 a. m Tuesday morning, Columbus day, and then we went to Norwich Town for my brother then to Franklin for the rest of the family and then we were all ready to start. We stopped in Willimantic for gas and oil. When we arrived at Stafford we saw a traffic cop at every corner. Then we discovered they were holding the fair and were crowds. We went to Palmer and on. When we reached Belchertown we saw another large crowd and wondered what was going on there. We discovered they were having a fair in a park. The cattle were near the street. There were the usual fakies that attend all the fairs I think. Blankets and dolls, popcorn, and peanuts for sale, but I didn't hear any boys calling, "Score cards for the afternoon races," as I did not see any horses; nothing but autos. In South Deerfield we saw Sugar Loaf mountain in the distance. It was grand. Such lovely scenery. Then we went over the Mohawk trail to North Adams, Mass. then to Hoosick, and from there to Johnsonville We had no auto trouble all the way.

I will ring off now for fear the editor will put it in the waste basket.

QUINCE HONEY

Dear Editor and Social Friends: It sems very strange to write to so many strangers, but I do certainly enjoy it and when the Bulletin comes I am always ready to read the Social page before anything else is done. This has been a dark rainy Sunday. I had company from Willimantic and Danielson, therefore I haven't had much spare time for my writing, so please excuse this hurried scrawl.

Kitty Lou: I am going to try one of the corn-cob dolls, they must be very cute.

Am sending my recipe for Quince Honey: Four pounds sugar, 3 cups water, 6 quinces. Put the quinces through a meat grinder. Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Stir in chopped quince. Cook slowly until thick like honey. Put into jars and seal.

Kind wishes to all.

ANN TENNA

ORANGE LAYER CAKE

Dear Corner Members: I attended the Shore Line club meeting at North Stonington and we had an excellent dinner. Was pleased to meet Crimson Rambler, Dorothy Bradford, and many others.

In reading over the recipe in the paper, I found the flour was omitted. Am very sorry and hope no one spoiled the cake, as the recipe calls for one cup of flour. So will send it in again.

Orange Layer Cake: Beat eggs stiff, big pinch of salt, cup of sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, 4 teaspoons orange juice, cup flour, 1-2 cup of boiling water. Stir well. This makes three layers. Bake in a hot oven.

Frosting: Juice of one big orange and grated rind, two large tablespoons of butter, one half box frosting sugar. Stir well. This makes a nice frosting for it.

BOOT OWL, (Club 5.)

SIXTY FIVE AT NORTH STONINGTON

Dear Social Corner Members: After a bad looking morning we had a fine day for our meeting at North Stonington on Tuesday. There were 65 in attendance. We were glad to see so many from other clubs. Cosmos and her helpers served a delicious dinner of meat pie, salads, rolls, pickles, cheese, cakes, pies, doughnuts, coffee and fruit. Lucille Drew gave us a fine program in the afternoon. There were readings and solos by our own members, Fancy dancing by little Miss Beverly Gray. Black Eyed Susie of Club No. 2 favored us with piano solos that were much enjoyed and an original story by Lucille Drew caused much merriment.

Melissa: Where were you? You told me you were going.

Lady Lou: Where are you keeping yourself?

Laurel: Glad you have come into the Corner. Maybe I'll see you once in a while now.

Beth C: Several wished you were with us.

Sidsyor: Oh those carrots!

Wheeler and Weus: It's a long time since I heard you two sing. Hope I will often now.

Kitty Lou: Yours received. Thanks for token, am using it and find it very handy.

JOAN'S BIRTHDAY

Dear Social Corner Friends: Some one has said that October was the shivering month of the year. We certainly have had very nice weather so far.

I want to thank all who remembered me in my birthday. Had letters, cards, food and money. attended Club No. 1's meeting at Willimantic, met many old time friends, enjoyed a fine dinner, also enjoyed the trolley ride and the

MOTHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN

Helped in Caring for them by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Glasgow, Ky.—"I am the mother of seven children, the eldest being only 12 years, and I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped to pull me through the roughest places of my married life. At one time I was so downhearted that life was a misery. A friend in Indianapolis, Indiana, told me of the Vegetable Compound, and after taking a few bottles of it I became myself again and it was a pleasure to do my housework and gardening. Since then I always use your medicine when I feel weak from overwork and it straightens me out."—Mrs. Melissa Bandeen, Route 2, care of O. F. Steenbergen, Glasgow, Ky.

New Orleans, La.—"I could not do a thing after my first boy was born. I was so weak, I had no appetite; lost weight and was not able to do my work. I was this way for seven weeks, then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got wonderful results from it."—Mrs. C. Fauxie, 4014 Dauphine St., New Orleans, La.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The first snow fall of the season, fifty years ago this week, occurred Sunday morning, October 15, 1876. It snowed during the morning and the ground and trees were thickly covered. The same week the Choral Union received a letter from Major B. P. Learned, now deceased, accepting the musical directorship of the society. The Tilden Guards held their first parade that week, about 35 men with torches turning out. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of October, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, October 16, 1876—The Tilden Guards made their first parade Saturday night. About 35 men with torches, proceeded by a fife and drum and followed by a crowd of boys left Breed hall and marched through Church street, up Broadway and around the park. The grand rally was one of the successes of the campaign and deserves the honorable mention we have given it.

The first game of polo played in the city took place Saturday night in the riding hall of Terrace Encampment. Mr. Bennett of the Herald and Mr. Douglass by his late accident in the game, from being present members of the new Canadian Polo club entertained the guests present in a very happy manner. The mustangs were in very excellent condition and all who could ride enjoyed the occasion greatly. A number of charges were made but nobody was hurt and it was felt that polo and the mustang ought to become one of the great national institutions. Friends of polo are hereinafter indebted to Terrace Encampment for introducing the sport here for the benefit of its guests.

The first snow of the season was on the ground yesterday morning. Saturday was mild and pleasant but toward sunset there was a change and the evening was chilly and uncomfortable, during the night snow fell fast. It was snowing the morning and the ground and trees were thickly covered. The appearance of the city yesterday was very beautiful but it was decidedly that of winter.

Tuesday, October 17, 1876—At a business meeting of the Choral Union last evening a letter from Major B. P. Learned accepting the musical directorship of the society was read and very cordially received and adopted. The society is to be congratulated upon its securing Major Learned's services.

Horse owners will now do well to remember the lessons of the epizootic and provide their equine friends with comfortable blankets and see also that they are used whenever even a short stop is made after a drive.

The democrats make a street parade tonight, forming on East Main street. A flag will be raised on Chestnut St. as the procession passes and a short address is expected at that place by the Hon. T. M. Waller.

Wednesday, October 18, 1876—A large party composed of the best people of the city gathered at Christ church yesterday noon, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Charles J. Carew, one of our popular young business men and Miss Jennie Allen. After the ceremony a reception was given and Mr. and Mrs. Carew left on the afternoon train for a short tour.

Not many cod are now taken off Block Island but dog fishing is quite good. Oil is obtained from the livers of these fish and the bodies are used for manure. They run now in the deep sea fishing grounds.

The Telegram says: Waller may talk and Loomis may fabricate but Joan T. Waits will represent the third district of Connecticut in the 45th congress.

Thursday, October 19, 1876—The Norwich Caledonian society opened their winter literary and musical entertainments last night. James Gilmour, president of the society, opened the meeting with a few remarks after which the Thistle band gave some excellent music.

The inspection of uniforms at the fall inspection of armories and state property by the quartermaster general has been very close this year and the general will make a note of it in his annual report, as to their serviceability. The five years of service of the present state uniforms expires this year.

Prof. J. P. Muller's private dancing school will open tomorrow night.

Friday, October 20, 1876—At five minutes before two o'clock yesterday morning a large and brilliant meteor was seen over the city. The meteor passed slowly towards the northeast leaving behind a broad belt of light larger than that of the great comet of 1867. It was reported yesterday that a quantity of meteoric stone had been found in Ledyard during the morning.

About 400 Boys in Blue marched through the streets by companies early last evening to attend the parade at New London.

At a meeting of the officers of the Tilden Guard last evening, James F. Bowring was elected colonel, Jacob B. Rockibler, lieutenant colonel and Henry D. Swetman, major.

Saturday, October 21, 1876—Thursday evening as the Greenoville company of Boys in Blue were passing through the thoroughfare known as Dunbar they received quite a volley of stones from the hills in that place, one stone striking a young lady (who happened to be passing on the sidewalk) in the face, causing injuries which will place her under a doctor's care for sometime. As the parties were running away they were heard to cry, "reform" and "Tilden forever."

POETRY

The Golden Silence

What though I sing no other song?
What though I speak no other word'
Is silence shame? Is patience wrong?
At least one song of mine was heard

One echo from the mountain air,
One ocean murmur, glad and free,
One sign that nothing grand or fair
In all this world was lost to me.

I will not wake the sleeping lyre;
I will not strain the chords of thought
The sweetest fruit of all desire
Comes its own way, and comes unsought.

Though all the bards of earth were dead
And all their music passed away,
What Nature wishes should be said
She'll find the rightful voice to say!

Her heart is in the shimmering leaf,
The drifting cloud, the lonely sky,
And all we know of bliss or grief
She speaks, in forms that cannot d

The mountain peaks that shine afar,
The silent stars, the pathless sea,
Are living signs of all we are,
And types of all we hope to be
—William Winter.

The Falling Leaves

The leaves around me falling
Are speaking of decay!"
So sang the poet, others feel
And moan this same sad lay!
But if you truly listen
To the symphonies they sing,
They sound a note triumphant
Not heard in early spring!
They sing of work completed,
And, clad in rich array,
Are handsomer and happier
On coronation day!
Decay? No! No!! The bliss of life
Their messages proclaim!
They glorify in autumn time
Their Great Creator's Name!
—Rev. William Wood.

URGES UNSELFISHNESS AS REQUIREMENT FOR COLLEGE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 22 (AP)—Unselfish purpose to be or use in life should be one of the requirements for admission to college, in the belief of Clarence C. Little, president of the University of Michigan.

His opinion is expressed in Scribner's Magazine, under the title, The Human Touch, pleading "Personal Touch in College" which he makes clear is a phrase describing the results of the great expansion in college attendance.

"It is clearly being unfaithful to our duty," he writes, "to ignore in our selection of candidates for admission the potential value of the student as an asset to his fellow man. Students desiring to enter college with selfish or self-centered purposes or with only a feeling of individual right and privileges should certainly be viewed with as much distrust as those conditioned in plane geometry.

"It may be definitely stated that it is not kind to admit immature, frivolous or narrowly selfish boys of girls to college today. It is not even democratic. This follows if we assume that in a democracy the admission of common obligation lies at the basis of progress."

SAYS PICTURES DEPEND UPON CREATIVE GENIUS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Upon creative genius the motion picture industry pins its hope of continued success. Producers agree that originality is the fuel for the picture vehicle and creative minds must not be restrained by rules.

John McCormick, motion picture executive, declares that the screen's greatest hope for better entertainment lies with the writer who can bring to his work a freshness of treatment. Directors, he says, who can interpolate human bits of business are mainstays of production, and should never be hampered by a consciousness of studio regulations.

Breed Theater

Bejeweled and handsomely gowned beauties curtsey to richly uniformed officers and diplomats; spies lurk in the background of the palace ballroom; countries surround royalty; an American enters the brilliant scene—and discovers that the mysterious lady who has captured his heart is the princess.

Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien in "Graustark"

Sounds like Graustark, doesn't it? It is Graustark, an elaborate, modernized version of George Barr McCutcheon's world famous romance that Joseph M. Schenck has produced for Norma Talmadge with Norma Talmadge as the star. The picture will be shown at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Dreams and stars of love and adventure owes itself to picturization so successful as this novel, woven around a mythical kingdom, a fair princess and her American sweetheart, according to pre-view reports. Mrs. Talmadge in the ballroom spectacle in Graustark; and to the romantic and lovable nature as the royal maiden who knew her own mind when it came to love and refused to be dictated to by the court plotters.

Directed by Sidney Olcott, except the Russian dancing which has several sequences supervised by Igor Schenck, a native of this country, Graustark affords Eugene O'Brien an unsurpassed role as the young American, Marc McDermott gives his conspicuous abilities to the part of the conspiring prince. Roy D'Arcy, Albert Gran, Lillian Lawrence, Michael Vavitch, Frank Currier, Winter Hall and Wanda Hawley are among the other members of the fine supporting cast.

Moving Pictures At Y. M. C. A. Sunday

At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the boys gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. the beautiful photoplay, "The Four Seasons," will be shown.

As the title implies, this picture tells a year's story of nature, with the breath of animal and plant life, and continues throughout the year. In the early part of the year the trees are budding, the sun brings the frost out of the ground and the woodchuck wakes from his winter's sleep. Summer comes on and the trees are in full bloom. The birds are hunting food for their young, and the tiny bear cubs frolic through the woods. Autumn is the mournful season of the year; the birds are in flight for the south and the small furred animals are busy in preparation for the winter, and the fields and trees are brown and golden.

The season of winter deals largely with the lives of the animals in the cold and snow; the flakes of snow magnified many times their size show them to be more beautiful in their construction than jewels. The tiny jack rabbit, a dash brown in summer and autumn is now dressed in a coat of fluffy white. With the world buried under drifts of snow and ice the cycle of the year is brought to a close, and all the world is quiet waiting for the first breath of early spring.

This is a picture of unusual beauty and well worth seeing. Rev. J. Harlow Graham will give a brief message in keeping with the nature and high standard of this splendid production. Appropriate musical selections for the picture and also render vocal solos. Both men and women are cordially invited.

Strand Theater

For the first time in many moons George Walsh, the athletic young star of The Prince of Broadway, Chadwick picture which will be shown at the Strand theater Sunday only will be seen in regulation cowboy outfit with broad brimmed Stetson, high heeled boots, chaps and neckerchief.

The prince of Broadway is a story whose action ranges from the stage to the prize-fight ring and thence to a Western ranch. Walsh is supported by an unparalleled assemblance of pugilistic and cinema stars. Among those who have prominent roles are Jim Jeffries, former world's champion of the ring; Tommy Ryan, for 25 years prominent as a fighter and promoter; Captain Bob Roper, champion boxer of the A. E. F., Charles McHugh, veteran actor and one time bantamweight champion, Spike Robinson, known both as an actor and a fighter; Alice Mills, Freeman Wood, Alma Bennett, Curtis McHenry and Joan Meredith.

For those theatergoers who delight in a mixture of fast-moving thrills and colorful romance, Tyrell's latest production, The Night Watch, which is the second attraction on Sunday night will most certainly appeal.

Some men are like pins; they have their good points, yet they are likely to stick you

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

John Gilbert is said to have added new laurels to his reputation by his deft and richly human enactment of Jim Apperson in The Big Parade, which will be presented at the Palace theater on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinees at 2:15, evenings at 8.

What a buck private! And what a lover! Those who see this wonderful doughboy woo the temperamental Melisande—see him go over the top after his fallen buddy, and watch the denouement when the girl's lamed soldier boy limps back over the hill after the "big show"—spectators forget entirely that it is acting and think only of him as a vitally real flesh-and-blood character.

Few assumptions of stage or screen have this power to take us out of ourselves. John Gilbert's Jim is one of them. As unforgettable as the "little Colonel" in The Birth of a Nation, as Anna in Way Down East and as Scout Jackson in The Covered Wagon.

He was born in Logan, Utah, and educated by an alternation of stage and schooling. His parents Walter B. Gilbert and Ida Adair were actor folk. He was on tour for years as a child player, then went to school again and completed a course at the San Rafael, (Cal.) military institute.

The graduated cadet launched on a business career. But the lure of the screen proved too great for him, and in 1915 he started pictures with Thomas H. Ince. From extra to handy man, from handy man to assistant director, from factotum to minor leads, thence to leading roles and finally to stardom—such was the laborious round of promotion, working from company to company as the jobs developed.

Gilbert was tickled by the action of Laurence Stallings, the author and King Vidor, the director in giving free play to the humors of the doughboys. As recalled, they were eagerly seized on by Gilbert and his mates Karl Dane and Tom O'Brien and vitalized in action before the camera. The love scenes and the pathos likewise had the stamp of reality. Was not Renee Adoree a French farm girl rescued a possible Melisande save that she was engreed out of Belgium in 1914 instead of France? The billets the trenches, the Argonne, the shell holes, the machine gun nests, were to the point. He did the tremendous emotional passages and responded to them as an actor as to the laughs. That the former as Jim and Renee as the [illegible] with whom he [illegible] sympathy.

Palace Theater

Harry Langdon who has been delighting movie audiences with his [illegible] comedy [illegible] in his [illegible] funny comedy The Strong Man, [illegible] as the only rival of Charlie Chaplin in feature comedy and many have expressed the opinion that The Strong Man outstrips anything Chaplin has done, at any rate Langdon's new comedy is a riot of fun and without doubt the greatest comedy of his talents. The title feature of the big double bill is Rose of the Wild, Katherine Newton's splendid story with Patsy Ruth Miller, Allan Forrest, Pauline Garon and a fine cast, one of the most powerful romantic [illegible] ever screened. Gene Tunney, [illegible] seven of [illegible] Navy scrap. The Fighting Marine, the Topical Events and Walter Jones and his Palace concert orchestra complete one of the best programs seen here this year. For Sunday evening only due to the opening of The Big Parade on Monday the management has arranged a like double feature bill headed by Ramon Novarro, star of Ben Hur in A Lovers Oath with Kathleen Key. A Lovers Oath is a classic adapted from the famous poem The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam by Miller. Still famous screen star, and is the story of the battle of Seleik for a girls heart, a delightful romance with a notable cast to [illegible] a perfect picture, and for those who love melodrama there is Helen Holmes in the last of the great railroad dramas Perils of the Rails, filled with thrilling action all the way, a mighty marvel of motion pictures. Added attractions include a new comedy entitled, Age Before Comedy, a film novelty, Koko Baffles the Bulls, The Topical Events with the latest news of the world and all accompanied by the Palace concert orchestra completing as fine a Sunday evening entertainment as one could wish for.

Lyceum Theatre, New London

Associated with Mordkin and his Russian ballet who will be seen at the Lyceum, New London on Wednesday evening, Nov. 3, is a symphony orchestra which has several distinctions, most important of which is that it has as leader, Vladimir Bakaleynikoff who was musical director of the Moscow Musical Art studio which toured this country with distinctive success last season. To Mr. Bakaleynikoff was given the privilege of selecting the musicians, 15 in number, who comprise the Mordkin orchestra, with the result, according to critics in the cities in which the organization has appeared, that it is an outstanding feature of the Mordkin program in which instrumental music figures importantly. This is the only Russian ballet company touring the United States and Canada this season and its managers, Messrs. Block and Endicoff are said to have spent lavishly with the desire to give to the public the best that money could secure.

Christ Episcopal Church

The service at 10:30 a. m. at Christ Episcopal church will be of interest to all who attend. The organist will play several numbers before the processional hymn, "Go Forward Christian Soldiers", by H. Smart, then follows the Venite by Prof. J. Robinson, the Canticles by Francis W. Shaw, then that beautiful Tedeam by M. B. Foster, "We Praise Thee O God"; next will be sung the Jubilate, "O Be Joyful," by T. R. Woodward, the gradual hymn, "Christ for the Word We Sing," by E. E. Burnett; the fine sequence hymn, "Fight the Good Fight," by A. W. Bold. Then will follow the sermon hymn, "Soldiers of Christ Arise," by G. J. Elvey; the offertory, by S. B. Whitney. The great recessional hymn, "The Son of God," by H. S. Cutler will close the service. Everyone is most welcome at all the services.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—The stock market today opened moderately strong, broke sharply when selling pressure was renewed against the motor shares and then rallied briskly in the last few minutes of trading, with closing prices irregularly lower. As in most sessions of late, the fluctuations bore little relation to the day's news, but reflected the play of professional traders, with the so-called public apparently taking little interest in the proceedings. Total sales again fell below two million shares.

Failure of operators for the rise to attract an outside interest in the recovery which began late Wednesday, slightly stiffer call money rates renewed weakness of the cotton market, a series of earthquake disturbances in California, reports that the Cuban storm damage had been greatly underestimated and the department of commerce report showing a falling off in automobile production in September were all used by bear traders as excuses for renewed attacks on the market.

The weekly mercantile reviews call attention to a slackening in some lines of industry, but point out that there has been no general set-back in business. Chairman Gary told members of the American Iron and Steel institute at their semi-annual meeting here today that there were no clouds on the business horizon which indicate that the demands for steel products in the aggregate will be reduced substantially in the near future, and also expressed assurance that there would be no tariff reduction sufficient to affect industry.

Publication of the quarterly report of the Chrysler corporation, showing earnings below the corresponding period last year, also was used as an excuse for selling the motors. General Motors dropped from 148 to 142 1-4 and then snapped back to 145 3-4, off 1 3-4 net. Mack Trucks fell from 96 1-2 to 91, a new low, and then rallied to 93 1-2, off 3 1-2 net and several others sagged to around the year's low levels. Dupont collapsed from 319 to 308 1-8 and then rebounded to 314 1-2.

U. S. Steel common opened at 138 1-4, which proved to be the high figure of the day and sold down to 134 5-8 and rallied to 136 5-8, off 1 3-8 net. Colorado Steel broke 5 points to a new 1926 low at 7 on publication of a poor third quarterly report. Youngstown Sheet and Tube rallied 5 1-2 points.

The late recovery was led by U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which soared over 7 points to 78 and closed within a fraction of the top, and U. S. Rubber, which jumped 5 points to 51. Coal shares were bid up on reports of colder weather in several sections of the country.

Atchison led the early advance in the railroad shares, but ran into heavy selling on publication of a statement by President Storey that he knew of no abnormal development for the recent rise in the stock, which had been associated with rumors of an increased dividend at the January meeting. Southern Pacific yielded slightly despite the gain of $4,667,4 shown in net income last month over September 1925.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 percent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp rally in wheat prices, which carried the December option up nearly 3 points a bushel to $1.45 1-2, and sensational decline in cotton, practically all of which was recovered, featured the commodity markets. Raw sugar was slightly firmer on reports of heavy damage to the crop in Cuba and coffee prices rallied 33 to 49 points in sympathy with a sharp upturn in Brazilian prices.

A brisk demand for Norwegian krone which carried them up over 30 points to a new high record for the year above 25 cents, was the outstanding development in foreign exchange trading. Demand sterling led slightly easier around $4 84 5-16. French francs held firm around the 3 cent level, and the Chinese currencies sank to new lows in sympathy with another drop in silver.

Home Service Report

A very interesting report showing the activities of the home service was given by Mrs. R. W. Perkins. The report, which covers the activities for the month of September is as follows: Fourteen cases have been active with us this month. We have made 8 visits to the homes of our clients, had 18 office calls and written 12 letters.

An ex-service man came to us one day asking for a pair of shoes. He showed a letter of identification from the national doctors and also gave us the reason for asking for help, as he said he was unable to work at his trade of stone-cutting because of his amputation. We gave him a pair from our stock. Some days later he called at the office for a hat. We did not have one in stock, and with the consent of our interested [illegible] a hat was supplied.

A man called us to help locate his son who was last heard from August 4, 1924. He was then in Honolulu, Hawaii. She was greatly troubled and we told her we would do what we could to help her. An inquiry addressed to the Bureau of Army Affairs, Washington brought us the news that he had been honorably discharged June 9, 1926, at Fort McDowell, Cal., and at that time gave his future address as City Hall, Norwich. We have since inserted an item in the column of the Red Cross Courier under the heading "Noted in the Port of Missing Men," and hope that we may be able to get in touch with him in that way.

A young man came in to us one day asking us to help him find employment. He came from Maryland and had his discharge certificate with him, showing that he was honorably discharged from the service. He had received vocational training as a leather cutter, and we gave him the address of a factory where they were taking men to work, and he left the office to go there. Later, he returned, saying they did not need anyone then, and as it was late in the afternoon and he was short of money, we secured lodging and meals for him until the next day. He had recently been discharged from a hospital.

We are still supervising the bookkeeping of 2 conservators and 1 guardian.

We received a letter from the regional manager of the U. S. Veterans bureau in Hartford, asking us to contact the trust officers of trust companies who are conservators and guardians of bureau beneficiaries for the purpose of obtaining from them information with reference to the character of their investments, and asking whether or not same are approved by the probate court before making any such investments. Also, to obtain information as to the manner in which they reach the amount of fees to be charged in this connection. We have had no experience with Trust Cos as conservators, neither has Judge Ayling, whom we consulted before answering the letter.

We affixed our notary seal on affidavits for 2 ex-service men, one of whom brought with him his check for $125, which he had received as his New York state bonus, and which we helped him to file claim for.

We were successful in obtaining information for the widow of an ex-service man, from the bureau of pensaffairs, which will be of great help to her. She was unable to file her claim for funeral expenses because she did not know where her husband enlisted. We secured this for her and have helped her plan for the future.

On all letters received from national headquarters the following appears: 6th annual convention A. R. C., October 4th-7th, 1926, Washington, D. C. Be sure your chapter is represented.

Election of Officers

The nominating committee, Walter F. Lester, and Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, presented the following nominations for officers for the ensuing year and they were unanimously elected: Chairman, Charles Colt; vice chairman, Walter F. Lester; treasurer, Arthur L. Peale; secretary, Mrs. Eben Learned.

Rev. S. A. Ickes, rector of St. Joseph's church was elected a member of the executive board to succeed Edwin A. Tracy.

DRIVER NOT TO BLAME FOR DEATH OF BOY

In a finding handed down by Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond Michael Pisarko was exonerated from blame in causing the death of Walter Satkowski, 10, of Taftville. The boy died June 26, 1926, from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile operated by Pisarko on the Norwich-New London highway at the junction of Eversource street at Taftville.

In the finding Coroner Desmond says:

As Pisarko's car was approaching the junction of the two streets a small boy was drawn by a horse driven by Alexander Wawrzynowicz, of Norwich, was proceeding slowly along Everett street towards the junction; the driver, with his father and two young boys were riding in this wagon, standing behind the driver; just before the team came to the junction Wawrzynowicz and the two other boys left the wagon and went onto the eastern side of the highway; the driver of the team, observing three automobiles approaching on his left, proceeding westwards on the highway, and he stopped his team, before going onto the highway, to let these three cars pass; after they had gone by the junction he drove his team onto the highway and as he did so he observed Pisarko's car about 300 feet south of the junction coming towards him; he turned the team on the highway to his right intending to drive it through a gateway a little north of this junction and on the eastern side of the highway; when Pisarko reached a point about 40 or 50 feet southerly of the junction the team appeared to him to take a turn towards the west side of the highway, and he then tried to pass the team on its right hand side believing I was going onto the west side of the highway; and just before the automobile arrived at the point where the team was the deceased came suddenly in front of the automobile, which struck him and fatally injured him; there was no light on the wagon, but it was still daylight; the automobile lights were burning at the time of the accident. In the car were Anthony R. Fedorsky of Jersey City, N. J., on the front seat with Pisarko, and the wife of Fedorsky on the rear seat; Pisarko had brought these two passengers that day from New York in his automobile, to show them a farm in this county which he hoped to induce them to buy.

Mr. Pisarko stopped his car immediately after it struck the boy, got out of his car, and went back to the point where the child was knocked down, and saw him in his father's arms; the father appeared to Pisarko to be excited, and Pisarko, fearing that the father might attack him, ran away from the place, called his brother by a telephone in the neighborhood, who came and took Pisarko to his home; later that night Pisarko came to police headquarters in Norwich, voluntarily, and made a report of the accident here to the coroner.

MERCHANT'S CONVERSATION BROUGHT HIM RED TAG

A local merchant who parked his car one Friday night in a restricted district while he went into his store to get a couple of coats was handed a red tag. While in the store to get the coats a friend followed him in and they engaged in a conversation. When the merchant went back to the machine he was handed a tag. The officer on the beat claimed that the machine was parked where it ought not to have been was holding up traffic along the thoroughfare as given in sworn statements to the coroner follows:

Alexander Walmsley and Theodore Benson, two young men residing in Occum, were cruising about Baltic in a Ford car. There they encountered a Miss Carlson, who resides in Franklin, several miles outside of Baltic. Miss Carlson had been to a theatre in Baltic, and had missed the last trolley north, on which Wisneski was a passenger.

When the trio were passing near Armstrong's crossing, they noticed a man in a brown overcoat "crawling on his hands and knees into the waiting station." Thinking nothing about it, and wishing to get the girl home, they continued.

On their way back, they did not notice anything out of the ordinary at the crossing, but when they reached Baltic found a crowd about the trolley car and saw the man in the brown overcoat stretched out.

OPINIONS OF EXECUTIVES UPON FIVE-DAY LABOR WEEK

Consensus, as Summarized by National Association of Manufacturers, Was That Short Week Would Increase Cost of Living, Increase Wages and Decrease Production and Make the United States More Vulnerable to Economic Onslaught From Europe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers made public today a symposium of opinions expressed by executives of the two leading industrial organizations throughout the country upon the five-day labor week.

The consensus, as summarized by the national association was that general adoption of the reduced basic week, as proposed by Henry Ford and endorsed by the American Federation of Labor at its recent convention would:

Increase the cost of living; increase wages 10 to 15 per cent, and decrease production to the impracticable for all but a few; create a craving for additional luxuries to occupy the additional leisure time, causing a trend to the cities; did away with and Home; create against the best interests of workingmen who desire to advance; make the United States more vulnerable to economic onslaught from Europe.

The opposite view favorable received by the national association was that the scheme "would be all right to meet a sales emergency, but would not work out as a permanent thing."

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—Under a [illegible] skies, Queen Marie of Rumania hurried through the [illegible] crowding her last day in New York. Services to start the royal visit, a reception and luncheon at which the most representatives of the [illegible] of every state, a second reception at which the closely following [illegible] promised the guest, a visit to an [illegible] in a buoying mood, and a performance at New York's great [illegible] house filled her calendar on the day before departure, tomorrow morning, for her western tour.

The queen's cold was much improved this morning, said Dr. Arthur B. Duell, [illegible] who has been treated her [illegible] cough and hoarseness. The [illegible] started her day by going to the [illegible] Episcopal church. She wore [illegible] in velvet coat and a matching [illegible] and protected her throat with [illegible] stole. She was accompanied by [illegible] Nicolas. At the entrance to the [illegible] church the queen was met by [illegible] over the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, who once visited her palace [illegible].

Many of you have come here [illegible] a quite human curiosity to [illegible] before you leave I want [illegible] you see a king."

After the service, the queen and her [illegible] went to the Fearon galleries to [illegible] an exhibit of recent work by a [illegible] artist, Sigismond de Nagy. The queen declared she wished to select a present for "My king and son-[illegible]" referring to the King of Jugo-[illegible].

WILL BE NO LEVELING OF TARIFFS IN THIS COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon gave formal notice today of the administration opposition to any manifesto signed by [illegible] and some American bankers, [illegible] for a leveling of tariffs in the United States. Any [illegible] would be applied to this nation.

The proposal appears to be directed, [illegible] good friend," Mr. Mellon [illegible] a statement which followed [illegible] conference and it is the [illegible] to Europe, it received the [illegible] opinion of the bankers seeking [illegible] in the United States. Analysis [illegible] as a change in the [illegible] among many in Europe [illegible] Secretary Mellon to take in the United States. It is no criticism of us or our nation."

[illegible] the American tariff would [illegible] rather than increase United [illegible] foreign countries abroad, the secretary [illegible] a lengthy defense of the present tariff, for it "will occasion unemployment here and reduce our purchasing power." He declared this [illegible] consumption of commodities and [illegible] large surpluses of the world's principal products."

He would not enable foreign countries to sell more in American markets but would prevent them from [illegible] as raised by war, or, it would not [illegible] certain foreign nations [illegible] recover from losses occasioned by the war, but would retard such recovery.

ABOUT EIGHTY MEN LOST WITH BRITISH NAVAL SLOOP

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The death [illegible] on the British naval sloop Valerian which was sunk in the recent hurricane in the Atlantic, south of Bermuda, numbers about 80 men. This is the estimate of the British admiralty, which in a brief statement relative to the disaster, gives the names of 29 survivors, among them her commander, William Usher. The admiralty places the total crew aboard the sloop at "about 100."

The Valerian was a submarine hunter during the war and recently was engaged in customs work. She measured 1,500 tons and carried two four-inch guns and four three-pounders.

The king has sent through the admiralty a message of condolence and sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

STREET IN BUCHAREST NAMED AFTER M. BRIAND

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 24—(AP)—Aristide Briand, eight times premier of France and just now minister for foreign affairs, is to have his name perpetuated in the Rumanian capital by having a street named after him.

The municipal council has voted to change the name of one of the principal thoroughfares in the centre of the city to "Avenue Briand". It is explained however, that it is the "man of Locarno, Geneva and Thoiry, the apostle of peace," the municipality desires to honor, rather than Briand, the French statesman.

ARMENIAN QUAKE KILLED MORE THAN 400 PERSONS

LENINAKAN, Armenia, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Successive earthquakes lasting from Friday night until early today destroyed the greater part of this city of 40,000 inhabitants and 12 thriving towns in the neighborhood, killing upwards of 400 persons, mortally injuring hundreds of mothers and making 100,000 homeless. The whole of Armenia has been terrified and the destruction amounts to millions of dollars.

Leninakan, christened after Nikolai Lenin, the idol of soviet Russia, and seat of the largest American orphanage in the world, is like a vast sepulchre of ashes. From time immemorial Leninakan, formerly Alexandropol, has been a gigantic volcanic amphi-theatre, due to the activity of Mount Ararat and Mount Alagoz in the tertiary period, but the city never before experienced such a violent and disastrous upheaval as that which leveled nearly all human habitations of the great Leninakan plain Friday night.

The second shock, which was fivefold stronger than the first, tore open giant fissures in the great volcanic mountain of Alagoz, which is 11,000 feet high and gleams with perpetual snow.

A radio talk made it impossible two years ago. I want the satisfaction of casting a vote at the ballot box for the state ticket headed by Governor Fuller and the national ticket headed by Senator Butler."

ARREST OF 'KEY MAN' IN MURDER OF DON MALLETT

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Patrick McDermott, much wanted "Key Man" in the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher last July 16 was arrested at Nanty Glo, Pa., this morning by Detective Ora Slater and Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, of Canton.

Mellett, who was publisher of the Canton Daily News was shot down at the door of his garage in the rear of his home. The slaying was attributed by authorities to leaders of the Canton underworld because of Mellett's active newspaper campaign against vice conditions here.

McDermott was arrested upon information provided by relatives who feared that he be returned to Canton to "face the music" and clear his name of suspicion if he is innocent.

There is a reward of $5,000 for the capture of McDermott. While no public announcement has been made, it is believed that the Nanty Glo relatives will be the beneficiaries.

$75,000 TO AID VICTIMS OF THE HURRICANE IN CUBA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—An additional $75,000 was appropriated by the American Red Cross today for relief of hurricane victims in Cuba, bringing the total American contribution to the Cuban Red Cross to $100,000, not including the $10,000 placed at the disposal of Ambassador Crowder.

This action followed receipt of a report from the Cuban society saying its funds were insufficient to meet the needs, and expressing gratitude for the initial $25,000 contribution from the American Red Cross. Acting Chairman James L. Fieser at the same time authorized chapters in all parts of the country to accept contributions for a Cuban relief fund.

Ambassador Crowder, in a report to the state department, described the situation as serious and the navy department was notified that the cruiser Milwaukee and destroyer Goff had reached the Isle of Pines with relief supplies and provisions.

BRITISH PUBLIC FEELING PINCH OF COAL STRIKE

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Another month having elapsed without sign of a settlement of the coal strike, the house of parliament will reassemble tomorrow to sanction continuance of the government's emergency powers.

The gravity of the situation is aggravated by the setting in of extremely cold weather in the past fortnight, and for the first time since the strike began seven months ago the general public is feeling the pinch of scarcity and costliness of fuel.

Yesterday the government for the first time took open action against the strike leaders by proclaiming unlawful strike meetings which Secretary Cook was announced to address at Cannock and Chase in Staffordshire.

Mr. Cook on arriving found a large force of police prepared to stop the meeting; he did not attempt to resist authority, but drove away, getting a rousing reception from 4,000 miners.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24—(AP)—At least two men were burned to death, ten injured are in Beaumont hospitals and damage reported to exceed $500,000 was caused by fire which swept the new Sour Lake oil fields, 25 miles from here early today.

Fred Duff, of Houston, Texas, general superintendent of the Humphrey Oil corporation, and a former chief of the United States Bureau of Mines, and T. Casubles, a field employe, were burned to death.

Originating from a spark caused by friction in a well the fire spread over the field when an oil tank exploded and still raged out of control tonight. Lack of equipment proved a serious handicap to the fire fighters.

ROYAL HUNT AT FORMER KAISER'S HUNTING LODGE

BERLIN, Oct. 24—(AP)—The newspaper Montag Morgen asserts that invitations have been issued for a royal hunt in Rominter the former German emperor's favorite hunting lodge in East Prussia.

The latter declares that hardly had the lodge been restored to William by the compounder settlement, when 50 persons including the prince consort of Holland, former diplomatic officials and high military personages were surprised to receive invitations to a royal hunt, early in November, signed "in the name of his majesty, the kaiser."

The Journa admits that the former emperor will not attend, and that it has not been decided whether he will be represented by the former crown prince, but expressed the opinion that the event portends a return to the customs of former days.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The split in the liberal party which recently brought about the resignation of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith from the leadership has led to further defection. Commander the Honorable Joseph Montague Kenworthy, one of the most active of the left wing liberal leaders, announces that he has joined the labor party. He declares it is the duty of all radicals to throw in their lot with labor and try to make the labor party a sane, constitutional national party able to check the misrule and extravagance of the present government. He is convinced that other liberals will follow him, and thinks that Mr. Lloyd George ought to do the same.

PINCHOT ACCUSES THE REP. MACHINE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Battle in Missouri State Penitentiary

Prisoners [illegible] Guards—Three Guards Were Wounded by Prisoners.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 24 (AP)—Buckshot from the shotguns of the guards in the Missouri state penitentiary today stopped the rush for liberty of seven convicts who tonight lay wounded in the prison hospital.

Armed with knives, the prisoners battled their keepers in a cell house, the prison yard and in a shirt factory to which five of them had fled and were routed after a siege of nearly two hours.

One guard, J. L. Fleeman, was stabbed in the melee, and another prisoner, Ollie Cooper, a negro, who came to the defense of Fleeman, also was stabbed. None was in serious condition.

The revolt started in the cell house just after the luncheon dishes had been cleared away. The seven prisoners rushed at a signal upon W. R. Burks, a guard, brandishing knives. The guard was knocked down as the convicts burst through the door, after overpowering two other guards.

They rushed to the tuberculosis hospital, a small building isolated in the center of the compound. Here they overpowered Fleeman, stabbing him and taking his pistol away from him.

"Let's kill this nigger," a convict yelled, according to Cooper, 47 year old negro trusty. The negro picked up a chair and brought it down on Henry Mitchell, two-termer, who crashed through a window unconscious.

Cooper then went out of action with stab wounds and six convicts leaped ten feet through an unbarred window to the ground and made a dash of several hundred feet under fire of guards for the shirt factory. One convict was down when they arrived at the factory and all had been sprinkled with buckshot.

In this building the convicts stood at bay while prison officials sought a means to entice them. R. E. Harrelds, a prison officer, and Charles Lene, a guard, then entered the factory.

The convicts emerged with hands up from beneath a pile of overalls after a few rounds of buckshot had been discharged into it.

Dr. Cortez Enloe, chairman of the prison board, said charges would be filed against the men in circuit court here, and additional time added to the terms of the participants in the attempted delivery.

No disorder was manifested by other prisoners and about two hundred visitors, who were awaiting admission to enter did not know for some time what had occurred.

DOG AROUSED OWNER WHEN BARN WAS ABLAZE

EASTON, Conn., Oct. 24—(AP)—The family dog, barking, aroused Herbert W. Wright, farmer of the upper part of the town, about four o'clock this morning, and he looked out to see his large barn, which is quite near the house, in flames. The alarm was given and the firemen from Easton, Long Hill, Monroe and Stepney responded. The firemen saved the house, although it was endangered at times, but the fire in the barn was beyond control and the structure was entirely destroyed.

Mr. Wright succeeded in getting out two cows stabled in the barn and two horses already were outside. The fire destroyed, however, two automobiles, some farm machinery and a large quantity of hay. The damage was estimated by Mr. Wright at $10,000 which is partly covered by insurance.

Business Leaders Remain Optimistic

Not Alarmed by Signs of Slackening in Certain Lines of Industry

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—Signs of slackening activity in certain lines of trade and industry became more pronounced last week, but the changing outlook caused only mild concern. Business leaders remained cheerful and optimistic even though the action of the stock market indicated possible rough weather ahead and aroused misgivings in many quarters.

Because of the present large volume of trade, most experts agreed that recessions would have to be severe and prolonged to upset the prosperous condition of the country. At the same time they held that there were no visible indications of such a reaction but that curtailment in many industries was in order because of the abnormally high rate of production maintained though the summer months and the temporarily diminished purchasing power of various agricultural sections.

Two of the week's most important developments concerned foreign trade relations. Over the signatures of leading bankers in all parts of the world, there was published a remarkable document advocating the elimination of European trade and tariff barriers which have hindered the free movement of commerce in these closely connected countries and simultaneously retarded their economic progress.

The possibility of an entente between the steel manufacturers of the United States and Europe was one of the significant suggestions advanced at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute. Speaking for the industry, Elbert H. Gary indicated that if competition made it necessary an international conference of all interests probably would be held in an effort to reach an amicable understanding. The aim of such discussions, he added, would be not to fix prices but to establish the bases for maintaining peace and prosperity in business matters.

Reports from the railroads last week were of a cheerful tenor. Several companies announced record September earnings while the sustained high rate of freight traffic has been without precedent for this period of the year. With the carriers steadily speeding up the movement, it was said that the threatened shortage of cars would probably be averted.

ARAB SHIEKS GATHERING FOR ROYAL WEDDING

MARRAKECH, Morocco, Oct. 24—Thousands of Arab sheiks mounted on beautiful steeds and resplendent in white silk robes and multi-colored burnooses galloped in the bright African sun, as gathered here to attend the wedding of one son and one of Mulai Youssef, sultan of Morocco, to the daughter of El Glaoui, pasha of Marrakech and most powerful lord of the Atlas districts.

The festivities began in a setting rivaling the Arabian Nights, began at sunrise today and will last a full week. Mulai Idriss, the elder bearing the name of the greatest sultan in the history of Morocco, who in the seventeenth century added for the hand of the daughter of Louis XIV of France in marriage, arrived here this morning.

Idriss will marry a woman whose face he never saw the ladies being veiled, the last act in the Arabian Nights' wedding week will not be taken off even for the bridegroom, until the wedding night. The bride has not been consulted regarding the choice of her husband and this is not a love match.

El Glaoui, desirous of putting the wedding feasts on his great, prestige simply agreed to produce sufficient gold and jewels to induce the sultan to permit the son of a peasant to marry the daughter of a pasha.

Thus it is ridiculously easy and none would go hungry in Marrakech. Over 5,000 persons, many of whom were poor only for a day ate at noon under tents set in place just outside the palace of Bahia, the pashas residence. Whole beeves, steers and sheep were impaled on the stout limbs of trees and revolved slowly over log fires. Every diner was his own waiter eager fingers tearing off great strips of meat from the animals, to be devoured ravenously. For sweets and pastries alone 1,100,000 francs was spent by El Glaoui to rival Gargantuan repast.

The wedding presents, brought from mountains and plains by maids and sheiks and valued at more than 15,000,000 francs, were displayed in a series of delightful courts where fountains play against colored tiles.

BISHOP NILAN ADDRESSED HOLY NAME CONVENTION

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 24—(AP)—"Religion means we have ourselves under control, that we have a law to live by, and try our best to live up to it," said Bishop John J. Nilan, D. D., Catholic Bishop of Hartford diocese, in his address to members of the Bridgeport Holy Name society who filled the Palace theatre this afternoon at the Bridgeport Holy Name convention.

"God has lighted the way so that we can see the pitfalls, and miss the roads which deviate and lead to destruction," said Bishop Nilan.

"Those who leave the straight lighted road often say, 'I'll come back before I die,' but, do they?" asked the bishop. "Do they come back into the right way in time? Some don't. They leave the road and will not come back until the hand of God is reached out to them, to help them back. The byways lead far and are devious. Keep to the path lighted by the son of God.

"Every life has its duties and man must realize that Christianity is practical. I must be brought into our lives every day, every hour, every moment. We must try to learn our likely duty and follow it.

"For instance, those in upper circles of this society have duties to which they must be faithful and who must be trustworthy. Every one of us has his own duty to perform and must try to do it better each performance. Give to Caesar the things which are Caesar's, but nothing more. The government has powers and lays down laws which we should observe. It is up to us to observe them."

DEMENTED MAN SLEW FIVE OF FAMILY; DROWNED SELF

W. O. Potter, 56, of Marion, Ill., Former State Senator and U. S. District Attorney, Killed His Wife, Two Daughters and Two Grandchildren With a Stove Shaker and Then Drowned Himself in a Cistern—There Were Evidences of a Terrific Struggle in the House.

MARION, Ills., Oct. 24—(AP)—During a sudden fit of insanity late last night, W. O. Potter, 56, former state senator and United States district attorney, killed his wife, two daughters and two granddaughters, one a three weeks old baby, and then drowned himself in a cistern at the rear of the Potter home. The skulls of each of the five victims had been crushed with an iron furnace shaker.

The dead are—Mrs. Potter 52; Mrs. Lucille Waltz, 25; Eloise Potter, 16; Phyllis White 4, and Cynthia White, three old.

The bodies all in night clothing, were discovered by a son, Morris Potter, a Marion attorney, who had been on Murphysboro, a nearby town, and who returned home about 2 a. m.

The bodies of the wife and the younger daughter were found in one bedroom and that of Mrs. White in the bathroom. The grandchildren were killed as they slept. Evidences of a terrific struggle were found in several of the rooms on the second floor of the home.

A coroner's jury late today returned a verdict that the victims "Were killed by W. O Potter while temporarily insane."

Neighbors who testified at the inquest, said they saw a light in the Potter home about midnight and that they heard a commotion about that time. Relatives declared that Potter recently has been depressed over financial losses, ill health and the loss of his position as United States district attorney about four months ago. He is said to have lost money in a St. Louis insurance company and in Florida land developments. A brother-in-law, John Spider, testified that Potter recently had told him that he planned to take his own life.

Others brought out that Potter had been suffering from hallucinations that he was ordered from the office of United States district attorney because of irregularities in office and that he was "being watched" on account of the affair, although a check of his records revealed no irregularities.

DEM MAJORITY IN SENATE "WOULD RAISE HELL"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—(AP)—Representative Wood of Indiana, chairman of the national republican congressional committee, issued a statement today declaring republicans accepted the issue which he attributed to Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, that the democrats, if given control of the senate, "will raise hell."

"That is the only 100 per cent honest statement produced by a democratic spokesman in this campaign. • • • the question to this democratic announcement of policy already is everywhere throughout the nation.

"The man of modest income now has begun to think about the benefits that have come to him through the past five years of republican governmental control.

"Men of larger business and industry realize that hell-raising means for them a low tariff and consequent business stagnation.

"Farmers realize that hell-raising means, for them, increased cost for virtually all of their necessities and lower prices for his cattle, grain and dairy products through destroying that tariff wall that now protects the agricultural market. They know also that it means a deadlock on efforts to further agricultural progress through legislation.

"The laborer knows that hell-raising with long hour agreements in order to low wages and general discontent."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Government control has been established over the production and marketing of nine important commodities which the United States must purchase from abroad to a total of more than $ [illegible], the commerce department reported today, and further extension of the trend is possible. The situation was summarized in advance sheets of the forthcoming annual report of the department.

On the heels of the great success attained by the British rubber monopoly foreign governments have sought to cause the price of long staple cotton, coffee, nitrate, potash, mercury and sugar, Miss Grace E. G. Hall, chief of the department's number division, pointed out, are essential to American industrial activity, and the United States stands as the greatest single national consumer of them.

"Unless some element arises, the enormous profits of one of the controls already in operation will not only serve to stimulate unreasonable prices for other controlled products, but will serve to encourage attempts upon other commodities," Miss Hall pointed out. "It is the belief of the department that this study report will be retarded by the development with practical defense action in the case of rubber during the last three years."

DANIELSON

IS IT AN OIL WELL OR JUST AN OILY WELL?

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 24—"Strike Oil at East Killingly." So may a headline in the press of the morrow read and thrill the world. Getting down to cases, oil has appeared on the surface of the water in the well at the home of Mrs. Lydia Bartlett in that community. This may have great significance or none at all, but it is mighty interesting as a matter for pondering.

No satisfactory explanation has been found as to how the oil came to be in the well. Its presence was first discovered several weeks ago. A few days since from two pails of water Mrs. Bartlett obtained seven quarts of oil. The oil, not mixing with water and floating on the surface thereof, was easily separated from the other fluid.

Knowing that oil has never been found in New England and recalling that some scientists aver that none is likely ever to be found in that section of the United States, East Killingly people are holding their enthusiasm in check, yet puzzling their brains for a satisfactory explanation of the presence of the oil in the Bartlett well.

One theory is that the oil has seeped through the ground from leaking oil tanks of a grocery store that is about a mile from the well, but this idea has been rejected by many.

The reason for Mrs Dorothy Jones Bartlett being the democratic candidate for senator from this, the 28th, district is that the senatorial committee was empowered to name a candidate and they sent in Mrs. Bartlett's name to the secretary of state.

Her papers, however, were not filed until the time limit had expired, but the republican candidate from this district, E. L. Darbie of Danielson, states that he will raise no objections as he wishes to take no advantage of this omission and it is probable that her name will go on the ticket.

Miss Margaret Dolan and her sister, Miss Ellen Dolan of Chapman street have closed their house for the winter and gone to Providence, R. I. They have an uncle there who has been an invalid for some time and Miss Ellen Dolan who has been keeping house for him during the will continue in that capacity.

The worthy lecturer invited, Norwich, Groton, Westerly, Stonington, North Stonington, and Ledyard grangee and the attendance was 162. The address and musical program was open to the public and some not members had the privilege of hearing the best and most talented talk given since its reorganization nearly two years ago. "Why the change, Henry?

"You used to follow the early morning smoke with an early morning grouch... with plenty of sputtering and coughing."

"'Change' is right, dearest," the husband replied.

"I changed my cigarette—and lost the throat-tickle.

"I switched to OLD GOLDS."

A lot of men have made that change lately... and with it have made a big discovery. They found out for the first time that a real he-man's cigarette doesn't need to be harsh and irritating. Coarseness doesn't mean strength. A fine cigarette, like a fine full-bodied cigar, is smooth and mellow. That's OLD GOLD. The smoothest cigarette of all time! You can smoke them and enjoy them morning, noon and night, without regret or after-effect.

CONNECTICUT OUT OF DEBT

In the explanation which Governor Trumbull made at Newtown, Saturday night, regarding state expenditures and the cost of running the state government there was an interesting presentation of facts and figures for the information of the voters. It shows how Connecticut's affairs are being handled, how the pay as you go policy operates and the advantage which accrues to the state as the result.

In business, household or a state, economic conditions in the past decade have forced increases in expenditures. Connecticut compares most favorably with other states in this respect and Connecticut with its expense for running the state government for 1926 $11,313,899.59 can regard it as a wise expenditure of money, especially when it is realized that certain capital expenditures were made without the resort to bond issues, and the long period of interest payments which that would mean and the state is at the present time doing business on that enviable basis of being out of debt. This doesn't mean that the state has no bonds out, for it has a sizable amount of them which were issued in previous administrations, but it also has funds on hand which would completely wipe that indebtedness out.

The state of Connecticut has had the benefit of a most capable administration. Business conduct has guided it and Connecticut is not only now getting the benefits but will continue to do so in the future under the maintenance of the same efficient management.

Whether that management is continued remains with the voters of the state. They have the best of reasons for demanding it and they will do so by using their votes next Tuesday if they are considerate and appreciative of their own welfare. The states which can claim to be out of debt are few. Connecticut should not only take pride in those who have done so much to bring it to that situation in the face of a big debt burden, but should insist upon the reelection of those who have directed state affairs so admirably.

ALWAYS ON THE JOB

These are days when the Red Cross is being called on frequently to deal with the administration of relief for those who been injured or lost heavily through disaster.

In that 50 mile strip through Florida, in some of the sections where there have been floors on Christ and now in Armenia, while mingled in with these have been calls to relieve distress in South America and Mexico there have been opportunities for rendering real service, and in each case where the Red Cross has been called upon it has not been found wanting.

Those who have not been through disasters can only picture from the reports what the conditions are when many are left homeless with little or no provision for today or tomorrow in the way of food and slight prospects for the future. When the Red Cross furnishes its aid to such people it is like the sudden appearance of a ship on the horizon to a shipwrecked crew. It furnishes not only immediate relief in the way of food, clothing and shelter but gives hope for the future at the very time when such encouragement is needed.

Hurricanes and earthquakes are no respecters of people. They strike mercilessly and whatever is in the way must take the consequences. And even such terrors are not sufficient to drive humanity from those very points where it is known they can be expected. It is so now and it has been so for ages that such disasters are accepted in a matter of fact sort of a way. It is a case of making the best of them, recovering as soon as possible and hope that when the next comes it will be less severe.

Humanity never fails to cringe at the plight of others and to sympathize with the unfortunates. It is always desirous of doing something for those in distress, regardless of the ones involved or where it is, and it is most fortunate that it has such an organization ready to act at the first intimation of need to which it can give support. The Red Cross stands for service and the large number of supporters shows the general recognition which is given to the importance of the organization. Despite its many calls this year it is always on the job.

FATAL HUNTING ACCIDENTS

With the hunting season in Connecticut just over two weeks old there have been three hunting fatalities and at least one more case where death was luckily escaped. If the season continues at this rate it is going to be unparticularly sad one in this state.

These deaths have all been accidental, but they have all been of a character that made them avoidable, and the question arises whether the carelessness which has been recorded in the use of highways by motorists and pedestrians has extended to the use of firearms in the hands of hunters.

Those who carry guns know that they are lethal death dealing weapons. That is what they have them for although it is expected to shoot game rather than themselves or others, and yet when there is a failure to keep away from the business end of a rifle or shot gun and the weapon is discharged whatever is in the way is bound to feel the effects of it, whether it be a slight or serious injury or death.

There's no greater care required in these days in the handling of firearms than there has always been. Guns must be recognized for what they are and used accordingly. Not many would think of looking into the muzzle of a gun knowing it to be loaded, and yet there have been the cause of fatal or serious injuries to self or others the latter neglected to so carry the weapon or so carry themselves that such situation would be avoided.

The lesson of this kind would seem to be enough for the hunters of Connecticut last season. It is sufficient to place an extra guard for their own safety with a small office chair, which can be "run" up and down. When the latter is used, it may be well to remove the back, as it would be in the way at times.

THE HOME BOOTBLACK

When polishing shoes in bad weather put an extra amount of polish along the joint between the upper and the soles. It will make them waterproof and prevent mud from caking on the leather.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Prepared pumice stone, which can be purchased in cakes at any drug store, should have a place on every toilet stand. It removes all stains from the hands, especially ink stains.

Women returning from the beaches and other summer resorts are finding to their dismay that gowns which suited their fancy before they went away are unsuitable, owing to the fact that they have virtually changed their type of beauty. They can either buy new dresses or get rid of the tan quickly. As a result, the tanned ladies are spending hours in golden wax baths. It takes several treatments to remove a heavy coat of tan.

Women who use weight tables blindly, ordering a reducing regime at the advice of their physicians to weights which may be way below the healthy weights for them, are taking grave liberties with themselves. There are of course hundreds, thousands of women who ought to reduce. They should find out the proper weight for them by having a doctor's examination and then they should follow whatever diet the doctor recommends until that weight is reached.

Sleep on a low pillow, or with none at all, since high pillows encourage double chins while you sleep. One of the best neck exercises consists of lying on one's back with head hanging over the edge of the bed. Slowly raise the head and bring the chin to the chest. Very slowly lower the head to forward again. Relax and repeat. A gentle upward and outward stroking massage of the throat will also help. Keep away the unsightly deposits of excess flesh.

HIGH IN CALORIES

Cheese sandwiches fried in hot butter make a very tasty and satisfying portion of food. They must be fried very quickly so the butter does not soak into the bread.

INTERIOR DECORATION

Cretonne baskets, lampshades and screens that are given a coating or two of varnish take on an interesting antique finish and are impervious to soil.

TO AVOID CHIPPING

It is utterly impossible to avoid chipping glasses if they are piled in the sink with other utensils. Wash each glass separately, rinse and dry with a clean towel. Then set directly on the shelf.

NEW LAMP SHADES

Stunning lampshades are made of bookcloth which comes in a wide range of lovely colors, and is stiff enough to pleat, without the necessity of any sort of a backing to strengthen it.

OBSTINATE FRUIT STAINS

Fruit stains that have not washed out of the table linen should be saturated with glycerine. Let stand for a couple of hours and then rub between the hands to loosen the stains. Wash in the usual manner.

REMOVES SOOT

Sprinkle salt over soot that has been tracked over the rugs and then sweep salt and soot up together. It will remove soot even in damp weather.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Moire is increasingly important as a fabric. It is particularly liked in white and pastel shades for evening frocks.

Mauve and yellow is an intriguing color combination featured in taffeta robes de style and in flowered chiffons and crepes.

Velvet this season is as apt to be figured as plain. Small floral patterns, or geometrical designs in bright colors on a dark ground are especially liked.

The white wool suit on tailored lines, worn with the rather elaborate white silk or organdie blouse is charming with the colored hat and colored footwear.

The double fox collar, that is, two fox furs joined in the back and forming long stole effects in front, is one of the most popular ways of finishing the neckline of both cloth and fur coats.

A smart coat for fall is made of natural colored kasha banded with natural lynx.

Plain fabrics are far in the lead for winter wear. Prints and brocades have been going out for several weeks.

A very charming style that will doubtless be the vogue six months from now is the velvet-lined coat. Wool, silk and fur coats are treated in this regal manner.

A crepe satin dress in black is trimmed with ecru point lace and pale pink globular pearl buttons.

Jumper frocks of velveteen, in which the skirt contrasts in color with the jumper are extremely smart, and at the same time practical for general wear.

OSTRICH BOAS SMART

Ostrich boas are being conspicuously featured in the smartest shops. A number of the best dressed women in Paris have recently appeared with uncurled ostrich boas in two-toned shadings, the colors matching those of the hat.

AFRICAN TURBANS

The smartest and most interesting hats shown thus far are copies of the head-dress of the women of Central Africa. There are several different interpretations of this new mode. One is of tobacco brown velvet combined with black velvet.

THE UNSIGHTLY HAT RACK

Remember that the first impression of a home may be a lasting one, and if greeted with a hat rack piled with coats and hats one is not apt to be impressed a great deal. If you must have a hat rack, keep it as far in the background as possible.

BROCADES AND TAPESTRIES

Hot bran will clean tapestries and fine brocades. Apply with a flannel cloth and brush off with a soft brush. Clean them before putting them away for the summer months and no moths will get into them.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When making buttonholes first overcast the edges, then work closely in the usual way. A buttonhole worked so will never fray.

Any piece of fancy work will show to the best advantage if care is taken in mounting. Do not tack fabrics or cords used in the making up. Do not be content with a shade that is not exactly right.

When lining a beaded bag, make the lining a little bit shorter than the bag and the weight will rest on it instead of the beads. A new lining is very much cheaper than a new beaded section.

Do not use darning stitches when the heels of your stockings become thin. Use a spool of silk and make parallel lines of chain stitches. This matches the mesh well.

EMBROIDERY SHORT CUT

Outline designs may be embroidered on the sewing machine if the pattern is simple. The result is pleasing and a real short cut.

Wind the bobbin with heavy mercerized thread of any suitable color. It is best to loosen the lower tension to give an outline stitch effect. For color sparkling the upper tension should be loosened and not the lower. Lengthen the machine stitch and stitch on the wrong side of the goods. The pattern, of course, must be traced on the wrong side. The color used in thread transfers the design on the right side. Different effects may be obtained by experimenting with white or black thread on the spool.

UNUSUAL TABLE MATS

Some housewives have found that small pieces of linoleum cut in square or oval shapes make excellent serving mats. They stand the heat of dishes well and can be scrubbed again and again without damaging them one bit. Pieces of decorative oil cloth can be obtained, too, by painting bright colored borders or flowered designs in the linoleum mats.

VEGETABLES IN SOUP STOCK

My little boy will never eat carrots, peas and celery with meat if served to him as a vegetable. But I slipped an extra celery stock into the vegetables destined for the sauce. Now he and others seem to like soup and all vegetables.

BEST FOR THE BABY

Rubber toys are the only sensible playthings for the tiny baby as they can be sterilized frequently and can do no harm if he should put them in his mouth.

COOKING FAT

All small pieces of fat taken from steaks, chops or roasts should be chopped, put in upper part of double boiler, set into the lower part of double boiler which is filled with water, covered and cooked until fat is rendered. Set away in a bowl to cool and before it begins to harden beat until the consistency of whipped cream. If the fat is not cold before you begin to beat it it will take quite a while before it begins to thicken. This makes an excellent cooking fat.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The women in China are rapidly forging to the front. A woman is head of a hospital and another head of a bank in Shanghai.

Miss Lois Gannaway, recently appointed city treasurer of Huron, S. D., is the youngest city treasurer in the United States.

In the 24 years she has been a druggist, Miss Julia Emanuel of Fort Wayne, Ind., has compounded a quarter of a million prescriptions.

Mrs. Frances E. Whitney, recently made vice president of the American Forestry association, is the first of her sex to hold such an important office in the association.

Municipal Judge Mary B. Grossman will preside over Cleveland's new Morals Court, which begins functioning in September. She is the first woman in the country to preside over such a tribunal.

Mrs. E. Lowe Gordon of New York City has obtained the co-operation of educators in several countries, as well as the French government, to promote world peace through an international girls' camp.

CONVENIENT

Keep a supply of plain white blotters in the buffet drawer, and use them when any liquid is spilled on the table cloth. They have amazing powers of absorption.

ORIENTAL RUGS

Rub the soiled Oriental rugs with a lather of white soap. Then rub off as much as possible and rinse with cloths dipped in clear cool water. Dry thoroughly.

RECIPES

Sugar Cookies: Two cups sugar, 1 cup butter, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons milk, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 cups flour. Cream butter and sugar, add other ingredients. Roll out on a floured board to a thin sheet. Cut in cookie shape, sift granulated sugar over the top of each and bake in a hot oven.

Meat and Macaroni Croquettes: Put the leftover roast through the grinder and for each cup of meat add 1 cup chopped cooked macaroni. Add 1 cup thick, white sauce and season with salt, onion juice and a little nutmeg. Add the beaten yolk of 1 egg and form the mixture into croquettes. Roll in egg and breadcrumbs and fry in deep, hot fat until a nice brown. Drain on brown paper to remove any grease before serving.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A kitchen stool that can be transformed into a miniature stepladder is invaluable to the busy housewife.

Salt should never be added to cereals until they have cooked, because it hardens the cellulose.

Carrots should never be pared, but always scraped with a sharp knife.

Vegetables should be cooked until they are tender but no longer. Overcooking causes them to be indigestible and strong in flavor.

Peanut butter sandwiches on brown bread are very nourishing for children, and highly satisfactory to their appetites.

Cream that is whipped will spread itself over many more desserts in a more plentiful looking way, than that which is served plain.

A delicious fruit cocktail may be made of balls of cantaloupe, honeydew and watermelon cut with a French vegetable cutter.

To prepare buttered crumbs for scalloped dishes mix dried crumbs with melted butter using one-fourth of a cup of butter to one cup of crumbs.

If baked potatoes are pierced when half done with a fork or skewer, they will be more digestible than if no escape is provided for the gases.

Oatmeal contains more fat than any other cereal and should therefore be included in the breakfast menu of the hard worker in wintry days.

Now that the preserving season is at hand, fill some of the tiny individual jars with choice jams and jellies. They are most inviting for an invalid's tray, or the breakfast that is individually served.

COMFORT IN THE KITCHEN

So much time is spent by most women in the kitchen that it is wise to make that room as comfortable as possible. One of the very important pieces of furniture which should be there is a revolving stool or chair the height of which can be regulated so the person using it may be up high or down low on the ordinary level. A high chair near the sink saves much time and energy when vegetables are being prepared or dishes washed. An old piano stool will come in well for this, with a small office chair, which may be "run" up and down. When the latter is used, it may be well to remove the back, as it would be in the way at times.

THE DANGERS OF PURGATIVES IN APPENDICITIS

By J. A. Crisler, M. D., Memphis, Tenn. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

In certain cases of illness, it is sometimes most important to know "what not to do" before a competent physician is called. This applies particularly to an acute attack of appendicitis. Whatever else one does or fails to do, don't give a purgative.

Long habit has made this injunction almost impossible to follow. The impulse comes strongly to the minds of all people, that a purgative is the first and most proper thing to give in cases of abdominal pain. The good mother smiles and tells the doctor when he comes to see the sick child, that she did not know what else to do, but knew that a purgative would be beneficial, and feels that she has hastened the case along the road toward recovery, by having used the time honored method.

Some old woman a century ago gave a child, suffering with colic, a large dose of castor oil, and cured it. This fact was heralded far and wide, and was adopted by even the most intelligent of the laity, as a "cure all" for stomach ache.

Fifty years ago when physicians began to recognize appendicitis as a separate and distinct disease, they also killed most of the cases with purgatives. Even later if a doctor did not give the patient a purgative, he was dismissed and another was called who would. Tens of thousands of graves dot the hills, speechless monuments to this fallacy and criminal ignorance.

Some 20 years ago Dr. John B. Deaver of Philadelphia, one of America's greatest surgeons, referring to appendicitis, thundered an edict that "Purgatives means perforation." This helped to restrict the purgation habit insofar as up to date physicians were concerned, but the old woman had sold her idea to a big market. Hundreds of cases of peritonitis, due to perforative appendicitis, are fighting for their lives in the hospitals in this country, every day in the year, due to the old woman's early energies.

The great majority of the cases that have been made desperate by kind and loving hands pouring purgatives down their throats before competent aid was summoned, would have been simple, clean cases that could have been easily and safely relieved by an early diagnosis, the with-holding of all forms of purgatives and an early clean operation. If this is true (and no competent surgeon in all the world will dispute it) let us remember never to give a purgative in any form of abdominal pain until the probability of appendicitis has been thoroughly and definitely excluded.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

W. Cameron Forbes, mentioned to succeed Gen. Wood as governor general of the Philippines, is a former incumbent of that important post. Mr. Forbes is a grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson, was Harvard trained, and on entering active life, chose banking and commerce as his callings. He was thus engaged when summoned, in 1904, by President Roosevelt to go to the Pacific dependency and join the commission which governed that new national acquisition. Arriving in Manila, Mr. Forbes became secretary of the commission, and also had special supervision of commerce and policing. For four years he thus served, and then became vice governor. Within a short time he became governor general, and remained such until the advent of President Wilson in 1913, when a democrat was put in his place.

Is very much a state of mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

What Old Mother Nature means by that is that most of us have opportunities a large part of the time, and frequently do not see them at all. It is the one who acts quickly, both in seeing and doing, who makes the most of opportunity and practically always finds opportunity. It was doing just this that had brought Danny Meadow Mouse so far on his long journey. As you know, time and again he had been in a very tight place, but each time he had seen opportunity and had made the best of it.

Now Danny was on his way to market. He didn't know it, but he was. He was in a bag of potatoes on a market truck. So for the first time in his life, Danny was having an automobile ride. He had ridden in an airplane and he had ridden in a motor boat, and now he was riding on a motor truck.

Danny wasn't enjoying that ride, because he didn't know where he was being carried to, and he wanted to go home. Then, too, those potatoes in that bag were not at all comfortable as a bed. However, they furnished something to live on, and that was something to be thankful for.

"I don't know what's happening to me," said Danny, "but I have been in awfully tight places before, and I guess everything will come out all right this time. I'm not going to worry until something more happens."

It was a long time before anything happened. You see, that market gardener where Danny had crept into the bag of potatoes was many, many miles from the town where the market was. It was very early in the morning, just at daylight, that the big truck rolled into the marketplace and the man began to unload. Danny had a bad fright when his bag of potatoes was unloaded. But it didn't last long. Shortly afterward the bag was opened and Danny wasted no time. He jumped out so suddenly that he scared the man who had opened the bag.

Now it never is an easy matter to know just where to go in a strange place. This market was entirely strange, of course. Danny dodged in and out between the bags of potatoes and between the boxes of other vegetables and fruit, looking for a place where he could get out of sight and feel reasonably safe. He was the more anxious to find this because in his first jump out of that bag he had seen a cat, and he knew that that cat would be looking for him. At first he could find no place where he felt safe in staying. He knew he couldn't keep up dodging all day. So as he ran he used those little eyes of his to the very best advantage. He was looking for opportunity and he didn't intend to miss it.

So as he ran he used those sharp little eyes of his to the best advantage

Presently he came to a sort of box. At least, he thought it was a box. There was a lot of stuff in it which looked as if he could hide under it. Danny didn't hesitate. He climbed into that box in a hurry, and he had hardly gotten in when the cover was shut. But the one who shut it hadn't seen him climb in there. What he was in was an empty egg-crate. That is, it was empty of eggs. It had in it merely the cardboard divisions for holding the eggs.

For a long time Danny lay there and listened to strange sounds that frightened him. There was a great deal of noise all about him. But nothing happened to him. That crate wasn't touched. It was late in the day before any one paid any attention to that crate. Then Danny felt it being lifted. It was carried a short distance and put in a small truck. A little later Danny heard the chug-chug of the motor, and once more he was off on his journey.

Preliminary surveys by government geologists indicate that this find the second in recent years, will total at least 40,000,000 tons. Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt D

Knowledge From Books

"Literature is not shut up in books nor art in galleries: both are taken in by unconscious absorption through the finer pores of mind and character in the atmosphere of society," said Lowell; and Emerson wrote, "books are for the scholar's idle times; when he can read God directly, the hour is too precious to be wasted in other men's transcripts of their readings. But when the intervals of darkness come, as come they must,—when the sun is hid and the stars withdraw their shining,—we repair to the lamps which were kindled by their ray, to guide our steps to the east again, where the dawn is."

'No man should consider so highly of himself as to think he can receive but little light from books, nor so meanly as to believe he can discover nothing but what is to be learned from books. Professor Blackie says, "all knowledge which comes indirectly, by reflection, and by echo; true knowledge grows from a living root in the thinking soul: and whatever it may appropriate from without, it takes by living assimilation into a living organism, not by mere borrowing."

Stories That Recall Others

To Let the Stars Out

One day Ruth, age four, had been listening to her brother tell about a boy getting a paddling at school. He said the paddle had holes in it.

"Why were the holes in it?" asked father.

"Oh, I know," exclaimed little Ruth, "to let the stars fly out."

Roentgen Ray Register

VIENNA, Oct. 24 (AP)—A clock to register the exact strength of roentgen rays administered to a patient has been invented by Sigmund Strauss, Vienna physicist. In the past, excessive radiation has sometimes resulted in dangerous burns to the patient. This hazard will be eliminated by the use of the new registering clock, Dr. Strauss said.

COTTON MILLS EMPLOY MOR EHELP THAN EVER

Production of cotton goods now employs more people than any other primary manufacturing industry in the United States, according to data compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York which shows the growth of the cotton textile industry in the last quarter century. On the basis of the latest manufacturing census forty per cent of those employed in all textile manufacturing are employed in making cotton goods in mills now located in 31 states.

Since the beginning of the present century the number of spindles in the cotton industry has more than doubled and the value of the products has increased almost six times to more than $2,000,000,000.

Due to improvement in mechanical efficiency and better organization of the industry from a manufacturing viewpoint production per operative has shown a marked increase. While actual production is double what it was 25 years ago the number of employes has increased from 307,000 to about 437,000. Since 1900 the number of cotton cloth mills has increased from 1,021 to approximately 1,600 or about 60 per cent.

Though the amount of capital invested in the cotton manufacturing industry is estimated at more than $2,000,000,000 compared with $500,000,000 at the beginning of the present century, a increase of about 300 per cent. Neither the capital invested in the industry nor the total annual value of the finished goods manufactured, however, provide an adequate index to the important position which the entire cotton industry occupies in this country.

ACADEMY FUMBLES PROVE COSTLY AND WARREN HARDING HIGH TEAM WINS

Playing like the proverbial ship without a rudder, due to the absence of Captain Ed. Brewer from the lineup, the Academy eleven went down to defeat before the Warren G. Harding High gridsters of Bridgeport at the campus on Saturday afternoon. The final score was 15 to 0, the margin of victory being two touchdowns, and a safety.

Although the locals put up a gallant fight all the way they seemed to be playing far below their usual form and consequently succombed to the team from the down state city.

The game was interesting to watch for the 800 present and thrills were numerous, both sides sharing them.

Bridgeport's first touchdown came late in the second period after both had battled fiercely in the first quarter. The score was made on a 15 yard pass, Chester to Capt. Morris, who, as he was tackled reeled over the end zone and fumbled the ball but the score was counted. The try for point was blocked. No more scoring was made until about the middle of the final quarter when after the Academy had brought the ball up to Bridgeport's 10 yard line by sensational play, and then fumbled, Pivornak scooping up the ball ran practically unmolested 85 yards for the score. Chester kicked the goal. The safety came in the last minute of play when Williams of the Academy attempted to pass from behind his own goal line and the throw was blocked resulting in the final 2 points.

The Academy's best chance to score came in the last quarter when they were within 10 yards of their opponents' goal, but again fumbled.

First Quarter.

The Academy won the toss and Bridgeport kicked off, McGone receiving and running it back 15 yards to his own 22 yard line. The Academy then proceeded to show real offensive power with Marks getting 7 yards on the first play and then Marks breaking loose for 15 yards and first down. A second first down came when Marks made 4 yards and Williams completed the pass with 7 more. Meeting made 7 yards bringing the ball to Bridgeport's 22 yard line. However, after three plays, first down was missed by inches on the visitors' 25 yard line and the ball went to Bridgeport.

The down-staters proceeded to show that they had offensive power when four consecutive first downs were made, with the visitors finding large holes in the Academy forward wall. The ball was on the Academy 29 yard line and a touchdown seemed certain. A Bridgeport player, Sweezey, was discovered slugging and was ejected from the game and Bridgeport penalized half the distance to their goal line bringing the ball back past midfield. With 44 yards to go for first down the visitors seemed hopelessly lost, but they promptly went to work with a new signal barker and made 20 yards of the distance only to lose the ball to the Academy.

Second Quarter.

The Academy in opening the second quarter tried the forward pass as a means of gaining. On the first play McGone passed to Labenski for 15 yards and again passed to Williams for 8. Williams taking the ball over his left shoulder on the dead run. A 5 yard offside penalty set the locals back at this stage and on the next play a local player fumbled on a triple criss-cross and Harding recovered at mid-field.

It was now that Bridgeport started their drive for the first touchdown. After the Academy had been set back 15 yards on a penalty Bridgeport reeled off a first down after two line plays and another first down on three line plays, bringing the pigskin up to the local's 11 yard line. Bridgeport then suffered a 20 yard penalty but promptly made this up on the next two plays and scored the touchdown with Chester passed to Morris over on the extreme westerly end of the field. The try for extra point was blocked.

Bridgeport kicked off, Labenski running the ball back 20 yards to his own 25 yard line. After two plays had gained little at the line, Williams ran 10 yards for first down, bringing the ball to mid-field. After Labenski had passed to Williams for 5 yards, the half ended with Norwich ball at mid-field. Score—Bridgeport 6, Norwich 0.

Third Quarter.

Bridgeport kicked off at the resumption of play to open the third quarter, and Labenski ran the ball back 25 yards to his own 20 yard line. The Academy were unable to gain after three tries at the line and Labenski kicked to Bridgeport 40 yard line. Bridgeport was equally as unsuccessful and after three tries kicked to Norwich's 22 yard line. Again the locals could not gain and kicked on the fourth down to mid-field. Harding gained 25 yards on a criss-cross, 8 yards around end and 12 through tackle on successive plays bringing the ball to the Norwich 4 yard line. But here the local defense strengthened and after two unsuccessful attempts at hitting the center of the line, a kicking back fumbled on the third attempt and Labenski fell on the ball for the Academy just over the goal line. The play was a touchback and the ball was brought out to the 20 yard line and given to the Academy. After one line play the third quarter ended with Norwich's ball on their own 23 yard line. Score Bridgeport 6, Norwich 0

Fourth Quarter.

To open the final quarter the Academy tried two line plays but they were unsuccessful and Labenski kicked on fourth down, the ball going but 15 yards to his own 25 yard line. The Bridgeport receiver fumbled on this play but a teammate recovered. The local defense was too much for the visitors and the Academy took the ball on downs on their own 30 yard line.

It was at this stage, with the period half gone that the Academy standees had a chance to cheer for the first play. Labenski tossed a beautiful pass to Williams, who exhibited some fine broken field running and before he was brought to earth 45 yards had been gained. On the next play Williams found an opening in the line and went 17 yards before being downed on Bridgeport's 12 yard line. A touchdown and possibly victory seemed to be in store for the locals at this stage. However, all hopes were shattered when after two unsuccessful tries at the line had brought the ball to the 6 yard stripe an Academy player fumbled and Pivornak, Bridgeport center, came racing in and scooping up the loose ball ran surrounded by his teammates for the touchdown. Only Jimmy Moore was in pursuit and although he made a desperate attempt to nail his man the runner's interference easily disposed of him. Chester kicked goal after for the extra point bringing the score up to 13 to 0.

Bridgeport kicked off and Labenski ran the ball back 15 yards to his own 25 yard line. The Academy lost the ball on downs on their own 32 yard line after four tries at line and then the visitors reeled off a first down which coupled with a 15 yard penalty administered to the locals gave the down-staters the pigskin on Norwich 3 yard line.

The Academy defense again tightened and Bridgeport was unable to put the ball over on four downs, Norwich taking possession on their own 1 yard line. On the first play Williams attempted to pass from behind his own goal line and a Bridgeport player blocked the throw and Cholko fell on the ball, adding the final two points to the score.

Williams, Labenski, Marks and Acting Captain Fidell played well for the Academy while Chester and Morris did good work for the visitors.

WILLIAMS BEAT TRINITY ALMOST LONE-HANDED

The crashing and driving power of "Pop" Williams, the 205 pound fullback of the Connecticut Aggies bowled over all opposition that Trinity could offer Saturday afternoon and the Aggies won easily 34 to 0. Trinity had nothing with which to stop the devastating rushes of Williams, who drove into and over the Trinity line with all the ruthlessness of a tank going into action. Time and again this Williams carried the ball and as often almost as he took the pigskin he made first down. Only twice during the game did Williams fail to gain and these were when his interference failed in their work of taking out their man.

Scoring in every quarter the Aggies experienced little trouble in downing the Blue and Gold and for the last five minutes of the first half sent the second varsity against Trinity. Trinity fought hard but being outweighed had little chance. The Aggies besides showing a world of driving force also displayed a brilliant aerial game and pass after pass was completed. Trinity had little or no defense for the air attack, the secondary defense playing close to the line in endeavor to stop the rushes of Williams.

The Aggie team especially the line showed a snap and aggressiveness that marks them as a real team. The backfield is fast and shifts with Williams to gain ground when needed. Schofield and Eddy are two fast-footed backs and all three are capable of hurling and receiving passes.

The game was broadcast through station WTAG with Randolph Wiggles of Newington announcing. During the game motion pictures were taken which will be shown as a part of a movie which is being taken under the auspices of the C. A. C. Alumni association.

YALE'S DEFEAT AND HARVARD'S VICTORY PROVE THE SURPRISES OF THE WEEK END

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—An already scrambled situation in the east was made into a football omelet as a result of Saturday's play. Elevens regarded as under dogs rose in their might and dealt death dealing blows to oppressors of years, and other teams made what had been long shot contests close enough to hold the handicappers to ridicule.

It was a day of sweet revenge as colleges cuffed around for many years did an about face to do some cuffing on their own hook.

A Brown Bear that walked like a man at New Haven projected the Bruins into the front row of the football picture with a victory over Yale, the first Brown triumph in ten years. Not so significant from a standpoint of mythical championships but vastly gratifying to Harvard supporters, encouraged by the enthusiasm of a charging Crimson line, was the defeat administered to Dartmouth at Cambridge. Harvard had been on the short end of Green scores for three consecutive seasons.

Pennsylvania, taking no chances, crushed Williams before giving its aces a vacation, and continued a formidable contender for eastern supremacy.

Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson, who will meet Saturday, had comparatively easy victories, as did Holy Cross. West Virginia barely nosed out West Virginia Wesleyan.

The Army took things easy in defeating Boston university, in preparation for an anticipated crucial game with Yale Saturday. A portion of the crisis was removed by the rebuff of the Blue yesterday.

New York university remained in the undefeated class and made up lost time and ground by routing Rutgers, after a weary wait of 15 years.

Boston college in crushing St. Louis university kept the Missouri men away from its unscrossed goal line and preserved intact its now unique record of a team with a flawless background.

Princeton was forced to accept a one point victory over Lehigh and the Navy opened an eleventh hour decision at the expense of Delaate.

Carnegie Tech was another successful applicant for goods in the revenge market. The Skibo victory was registered in spite of the fact that Pittsburgh was an odds-on choice.

Amherst, with Weslyan decisively defeated, encouraged its supporters to believe that on their "Little Three" championship will be the season's reward for expended effort.

Cornell took the day off.

Brown's victory and defeat for Dartmouth added interest to the meeting of the Brunonian and Green Saturday. All even after 20 years of play a great battle was forecast with little prospect that two such colors can be made to blend without a clash.

MAINE STRENGTHENS HOLD ON N. E. CONFERENCE TITLE

STORRS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The University of Maine eleven, running roughshod over Bates at Orono yesterday, strengthened their claim to be the strongest team in the New England conference, which is made up of six of the New England colleges with the exception of Vermont. The score was 33 to 0.

The Connecticut Aggies in their first home game staged a strong comeback after their first defeat at the hands of Maine a week ago. Tufts smothered Trinity yesterday, 34 to 0. Massachusetts Aggies after three straight defeats finally broke into the win column by subduing a 7-0 decision over Worcester Tech at Amherst.

New Hampshire suffered its second defeat of the season losing to Springfield by a 24-0 score, while Rhode Island ... overwhelmed ... 0 ... by the score of the City of New York. Only a few more than brief notes Maine, Connecticut Aggies and Massachusetts Aggies turned in victorious wins, New Hampshire and Rhode Island were defeated.

The showing of Maine to date has been one of the surprises of the conference season. The squad is the lightest in years and at the start of the season included only six veterans. Ted Fay, Williams, Rhode Island, Middlebury, Connecticut Aggies and Bates were downed on successive Saturdays and Maine now stands as the only undefeated eleven in the conference. If Maine wins from New Hampshire next week and two meet later in the season she will have a clear claim to the conference honors.

The margin of Connecticut's victory over Trinity yesterday was the largest in the history of the ancient rivalry between the colleges. With three victories and one defeat, Connecticut appears to rank second to Maine in strength among conference teams.

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Maine	5	0	1.000
Conn. Aggies	3	1	.750
New Hampshire	3	1	.750
Mass. Aggies	3	3	.500
Rhode Island	0	5	.000

TRYON'S TOUCHDOWN WINS GAME FOR THE YANKEES

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Two mud-soaked figures that were Red Grange, the galloping ghost of Illinois, and George Wilson, super-back from the Pacific coast, were lost in the curtain of rain and shadows as Eddie Tryon, Colgate flash of other seasons, made the single sensational play that gave Grange's Yankees a 6 to 0 victory over Wilson's Wildcats in the first clash of the American League rivals here.

For three full periods the two elevens slithered about the rain-soaked gridiron of the Yankee Stadium while 15,000 spectators waited patiently for either or both to break away for the expected thrills. Tryon, quiet mate of Grange, seemed overshadowed by the company he was keeping. But Wilson was tangled in the muddy footing and the Wildcats were clawing the famous redhead down before he could get under way.

Early in the fourth period, Eddie took ball on his own 20 yard line and broke through center with the hope that made him famous throughout the east last season. The Wildcat defense hemmed him in near the sideline, where, one by one, they "took their shot," and sprawled in the mud as Tryon, stride unbroken, slipped clear and away for the remainder of the 80 yards to the goal line and the only score of the game. Then the teams settled back again into the uneventful struggle in the mire after the single play that made a football game.

MICHIGAN TIGHTENS HOLD ON WESTERN GRID TITLE

CHICAGO, Oct. 24—(AP)—It looks like Michigan and Ohio State with Northwestern becoming increasingly dangerous as the race for the western conference gridiron championship begins to tighten up tonight.

The pressing problem in the "big ten" seems to be the stopping of the Wolverines and Ohio seems to have an excellent chance, judging from its defeat of Iowa yesterday. Northwestern has an excellent opportunity to finish undefeated and Purdue and Wisconsin also still possibilities, but Michigan, with victories over Illinois and Minnesota, has the edge.

Coach Yost's warriors have so much ability that the team will be hard to defeat. The line is outstanding and the backfield, with the remarkable passing of Captain Benny Friedman, is of championship class.

It is apparent that Jack Wilce has something in his Ohio team that resembles his famous teams of 1920 and 1921. Ohio was not expected to give Iowa such a lopsided facing after the showing of the Hawkeyes against Illinois, but the probably explanation is that Zuppke took Iowa in its stride while his Iowans were keyed up for a supreme effort. The Iowa attack is largely "Cowboy Nick" Kutsch, and not much else.

That age old gag that Stagg fears Purdue really meant something yesterday. Chicago was beaten by Purdue, but the maroons acquitted themselves in such fashion that Stagg's critics had no complaint to make. Stagg has hopes his team will develop in the remaining games but he has no idea of conquering Ohio here next Saturday.

The Northwestern team that held Notre Dame to a six to nothing victory a victory scored in the last two minutes of play by forward passing, is unquestionable the best it has produced at the Evanston institution in years. Northwestern was keyed up for Notre Dame yesterday, the line showed vast improvement and as a result of the showing the purple outfit will probably be a favorite over the remainder of its opponents, Indiana, Chicago, Purdue and Iowa.

Wisconsin was figured to give Indiana a lacing as Pat Page's team gave everything it had against Northwestern a week ago and was due for a slump. The experts figure that Indiana is the weakest team in the conference, that Page can make it play over its head on occasions but has not the men for a real football team.

Minnesota ran amuck against Wabash, a team that Purdue had difficulty in beating, but the Gophers were much too big for the little giants. There is great power in the Minnesota team and judging from its showing against Wabash, the suspicion exists that Coach Spears has actually got his team started in the right direction.

The conference standing with point score totals of all games including the non-conference is:

Team	W.	L.	Tie	Tp.	Op.
Michigan	2	0	0	130	6
Ohio	1	0	0	142	27
Northwestern	1	0	0	87	0
Purdue	2	0	0	46	31
Wisconsin	3	0	0	78	0
Illinois	1	0	0	33	26
Minnesota	0	1	0	7	47
Chicago	0	1	0	33	99
Indiana	0	2	0	45	66
Iowa	0	2	0	76	47

WESTERLY HIGH WANTS GAME FOR FRIDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 23—Westerly High school football eleven is desirous of having a high school football team as its opponent in Westerly on Friday next at the Westerly athletic field, off High street. A game was scheduled for that date between the W. H. S. and the Plainfield High school, which played such a tremendous game with the Stonington high school eleven in Stonington last Saturday, being defeated by the score of 27 to 0, that their team is hardly in condition to put up a good game with the blue and white players of Westerly. Westerly high school coach, D. Harold Rogers, would like to hear from some high school eleven, which could come to Westerly on next Friday, and thus assure a playing date.

PLANS OCEAN HIGHWAY ALONG SPANISH TRAIL

ARANSAS PASS, Texas, Oct. 24 (AP)—Swashbuckling gentleman, whose business instincts led them far afield when Spain was in her glory, have supplied Col. Sam Robertson of Brownsville, Texas, with a romantic background for an ambitious adventure.

Colonel Robertson is building an ocean driveway along the low lying islands off the coast of Texas. These strips of land stretch for hundreds of miles up the coast from Brownsville and lie within sight of shore.

The proposed ocean driveway will be the longest in the world, and when it is completed, autoists may drive from Brownsville to Corpus Christi, Texas, over the island beaches.

Pirates of the Spanish main have cast their glamor over this stretch of sand. More than 400 years ago, tradition says, a fleet of galleons, laden with the pirated treasures of the Montezumas, set sail from the New World for old Spain.

A tropical disturbance cast the fabled armada about, drove it out of its course for days, and finally wrecked the fleet on the Texas coast, a five days march north of the Rio Grande. More than 300 urvivors are said to have escaped by making their way overland to the Panuco river, now the shipping outlet for the Mexican oil fields near Tampico.

This treasure is supposed to have been buried somewhere along the course over which the pleasure caravans of modern America soon are to travel. Occasionally coins have been picked up in one of the sandy hills near the shore, and much sporadic searching has been done.

Several years ago, a man by the name of A. H. Marks of Corpus Christi, claimed to have stumbled onto the remnant of one of the Spanish vessels. Unable to finance salvaging operations, Marks made an attempt, it is said, to find some record of a vessel having been sunk at the spot where he found the flotsom, but discovered nothing authentic to connect his find with the fabled treasure fleet.

Within a stone's throw of the proposed ocean drive, the wreckage of the supposed treasure fleet still lies, according to tradition, but it is hidden by the waves that have voided countless other attempts of 15th and 16 century pirates to transfer the wealth of the new world to a crumbling Spain.

DEATH CRIER IN TURKEY AWAKENS CITY AT NIGHT

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 24 (AP)—In remote districts of Turkey, quaint customs still linger despite Angora's vigilant modernizing arm.

One of the strangest is in the distant village of Cesarea. Whenever a death occurs, a public crier shouts the news through the streets. Even though the death occurs in the depths of the night the crier immediately shouts out the doleful tidings and wakes all the living villagers with his cries.

TWO NEW LONDON GIRLS COMMITTED TO REFORMATORIES BY JUDGE S. V. PRINCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24—A couple of young girls with bobbed hair and poke hats were disciplined Saturday for failing to observe the conditions under which jail sentences were imposed upon them some weeks ago, when they were in the police court and were sent to reformatories by Judge Prince when brought before him at the end of a week which they spent in Providence. The girls are Mildred McDeigh and Leonora Girl. They have been going the pace that surely leads to institutions where their conduct will be watched and where they will be restricted in their liberties. The Girl girl was surprised when sentenced, and she wept freely. That however was only a demonstration and she went to the House of the Good Shepherd at Hartford while the McTough girl was sent to the Florence Crittenton Mission at New Haven. The commitment in each case is until the girls are 21 unless they sooner be discharged. Two girls were loitering about a barber shop in Montauk Avenue and were without employment.

AUT OTHIEVES GIVEN FOUR MONTHS IN JAIL

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24—William Owen McNeil and Roy Samuel Howe, who have been coast Guard sailors until within a few days ago, when they were discharged because of their conduct, will not do any duty aboard ship for some four months. Both are now to serve out a sentence of four months and to work on the coast attached to their apprehension and prosecution for stealing a car owned by Ernest Cobb, when they found parked on Montauk Avenue. The car is a touring car and it looked good to a group of fellows who were bounced from the service of the government and who had to get out of town before sundown or take a penalty from the Coast Guard authorities. They had no money, they said, as they took the car and got to New Haven, or elsewhere, where they could get work. There they found they were to abandon the car and that it would get back to its owner. The theft was discovered immediately and the state police nabbed the car and its occupants when it appeared at Saybrook. The sailors were not prosecuted for the theft of the car, where he made complaint to Patrolman Elwood Bailey who arrested Concannon on a charge of breach of the peace. He furnished a surety on his bond of $50 for his presentation in the police court Monday morning.

Patrolman Henry Hick this afternoon arrested a boy of 14 charged with theft and he was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for presentation in the juvenile court. The boy was at the Union station Friday afternoon and stole a bicycle belonging to Joseph Leahy, 39 Belden street.

W. J. Cantwell, chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, made complaint to the police Saturday night that while Mrs. Cantwell parked her automobile in front of the Crown theatre Saturday afternoon a thief visited the auto and stole her pocketbook, which contained $15 in bills and some change.

An automobile owned by Fred Carlson, Waterford, was stolen from that place Saturday afternoon and several hours afterwards the state police, Groton barracks, found the automobile abandoned and alongside the highway on Niles Hill road. The automobile was driven to Carlson's home and delivered to the owner.

Florence Jones, colored, of 457 Main street, made complaint to the police Saturday night that she had been attacked and beaten by an unknown assailant. The woman stated that she was walking along Water street, about 9:30 o'clock, and when between Atlantic and John streets, a white man came from behind and dealt her several blows on the head. Patrolman Edward Riordan who was assigned to investigate the complaint failed to find the assaulter.

In spite of the activity of late of the police in cleaning up the city of the numerous so-called "black and tan" dives, these resorts continue to exist, but the police believe that they will gradually put these places out of business. Another dive was raided Saturday afternoon and at the time the raid was started there were a dozen or more black and white men, all sailors, in the house, but when the raid was made, all but one of the sailors had succeeded in getting away.

Patrolman William Graham was patrolling Main street about 3:30 o'clock and he observed the number of sailors to enter the house at 358, which is conducted by Alice Marks, 34, colored and whose place has been under surveillance a long time. Patrolman Graham communicated with police headquarters and a raiding squad composed of Sergeants Samuel Hick and John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Graham, William Corcoran and Ernest Opperman surrounded and entered the house. When the officers got inside the place they found only the proprietress, and Lillian Blake, 28, colored, and Joseph Washington 24, colored, there. The Marks woman was arrested on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and the Blake woman and Washington were arrested on charges of frequenting. The Marks woman furnished a surety on her bond of $250 for her presentation in the police court Monday morning and the Blake woman furnished a like bond. Washington's bond was fixed at $100. Edward W. Jones, colored, qualified as surety on each of the accused's bond.

Patrolman George McCaskey was unable to report for duty this evening, being ill at his home, Wightman street.

Patrolman George Perkins who has been confined to his home on Norwood avenue several days by a severe cold, has resumed duty.

Bryan F. Mahan, son of Mrs. Margaret Whittlesey Mahan and the late Bryan F. Mahan, former postmaster and congressman, and Miss Hazel Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Reeves, Riverview avenue, were married at 6 o'clock Saturday morning by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, the ceremony being performed at the First Church of Christ in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. Mahan is employed as paying teller at the Savings Bank of New London.

Another large docket will occupy the attention of the police court Monday morning for tonight 13 prisoners were awaiting hearing on various charges, none of them, however, being of a serious nature. Most of the cases were for intoxication, there being seven to be presented on this count. Two other cases are for breach of the peace, while another is for keeping a disorderly house and two for frequenting. Another case to be presented is that of Harold F. Holloway, 43 Granite street, charged with fraud. This case will come up on continuance; Holloway was first presented Aug. 26 and he has been presented several other times, but each time a continuance was ordered. Holloway is specifically charged with fraud by the H. L. Handy company, Springfield, Mass., by whom he was formerly employed as salesman. The Handy company alleges that as salesman for them and acting as their agent, Holloway collected over $1,000 from merchants to whom he sold merchandise and appropriated the money to his own use. About 30 witnesses have been summoned in the case, these including merchants in New London, Norwich, Montville, Uncasville, Groton, Noank, Mystic, Waterford and East Lyme.

Stephen Buscha, 35, a laborer, residing on North Bank street, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman John Sullivan, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife. Buscha went to his home about 5 o'clock and created such a disturbance that Mrs. Buscha requested her husband's arrest. He was arrested in August on a like charge and at that time Judge Prince imposed a suspended sentence.

Broadway Theatre

One of the fastest adventure melodramas of the season, "The Lone Wolf Returns," is now showing at the Broadway theatre as the first feature on a double bill. The story, which is an adaptation by Columbia Pictures of the famous Louis Joseph Vance novel, treats of the reformation of the master crook, Michael Lanyard, through an accidental meeting with Marcia Mayfair, a New York society girl, while he loiters behind portieres in her boudoir in an effort to evade the authorities.

Billie Dove is charming as Marcia Mayfair. She possesses the wholesome quality of personality required by the part and dresses it with a richness of fabric and smartness of design that pleases the feminine element of the audience.

"The best dog picture yet"—that was the verdict of the many movie fans on seeing the second feature last night when "Thunder" the Marvel Dog made his appearance in "The Phantom of the Forest."

The picture is crammed with exciting incidents, one of the most spectacular being a forest fire with giant 300 foot forest monsters crashing to the ground ablaze. Through this inferno comes Thunder carrying a child in his mouth. It is a sight not easily forgotten.

The bill is topped off with a new Kinograms. We can readily say that the program is marvelous.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

To Have Mental Hygiene Branch

A group of interested people met Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Elizabeth Huntington at 344 Washington street to hear Miss Hester Crutcher, executive secretary of the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene explain the advantages of having a branch in Norwich. They decided to organize immediately and appointed Mrs. Charles W. Gilbert temporary chairman with power to appoint a nominating committee who should report at Slater Hall annex on Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, after the lecture by Dr. Lloyd J. Thompson.

Palace Theatre

Down to the last graphic detail, the battle of Belleau Wood, one of the major engagements of the World war in which American soldiers took part, was reproduced in motion pictures as one of the sequences of "The Big Parade" which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are to present at the Palace theatre opening at today's matinee and at daily matinee and evening performances on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The battle was planned by general officers of the Second Division, U. S. A., and to their rank and file it was both a school of instruction and a review. The newer recruits learned how 'twas done, but the vets received the unforgettable reality.

The whole personnel of an American Legion post imparted realism to the billeting episode at a French farmhouse by playing the roles of the billeted doughboys. It was a long and mirthsome job in which the vets reinforced the wide knowledge of Laurence Stallings, the author of the story, by telling and acting their own funny times with the "froggies" and the "mossifers."

Renee Adoree in The Big Parade

It was many months in the making, and as the work progressed the enterprise grew from "just a movie" to an epic of America in world crisis.

Breed Theatre

Once more the handsome O'Brien appears as Norma's leading man in "Graustark," her new starring vehicle which First National is offering at the Breed theatre. And the tremendous influx of commending "fan letters" to the Schenck headquarters after the announcement of O'Brien's signing emphasized once more the actor's wide popularity.

O'Brien's screen history has been considerably interwoven with that of Miss Talmadge. He appeared first as her leading man in one of the early productions she made under the management of D. W. Griffith. Thereafter he was with her in many pictures and is particularly remembered for his work in "Secrets," generally acclaimed one of Norma's greatest.

Both Mr. Schenck and Miss Talmadge felt that O'Brien was ideally adapted to the leading male role in "Graustark," which is a modernized version of George Barr McCutcheon's celebrated novel. Dimitri Buchowetzki, the director, selected O'Brien as "the ideal American," and he was the unanimous choice for the part of Grenfall Lorrey, the American youth who falls in love with the beautiful princess of Graustark, and goes through many adventures to win her hand.

Norwich Produce Market

Apples continue plenty with good demand for quality stock but poor grades and wormies sell slowly. Pears are offered in moderate quantities only with moderate demand. Supplies of Concord grapes from New York state continue to increase slowly at slightly reduced prices while California grapes, oranges and cranberries remain unchanged.

Lima beans are very limited and sweet corn practically gone. Cauliflower is plenty and somewhat cheaper. Parsnips and turnips are also offered more freely and a little cheaper. Potatoes continue firm with prices advanced a little on both native and Maine stock.

Eggs remain very high with fresh scarce at any price and butter also remains firm.

Dressed meats and greens are unchanged.

Issued Warning Cards.

About 75 warning cards were reported to have been issued in this city Friday night by the state police in their inspection of headlights, taillights and brakes. Over 300 such cards were issued in the past week by the police at the Groton barracks. The warning cards issued require the operator to make a sworn statement under oath that the defect is remedied and send the statement to the motor vehicle department at Hartford for record.

PROPOSING HAND SIGNALS IN MOTOR DRIVING LAW

Incorporation of a specific code of hand signals in the Connecticut motor vehicle law will probably be proposed in the session of the legislature which convenes in January, according to the October bulletin of the state motor vehicle department.

"The hand signal, in its present execution, is 'cautionary,'" it is pointed out, "and so far as reliance can be placed upon it, except in unusual cases, it stops there." The person for whom a signal is given, does not feel justified in accepting it as an indication of the exact operation that is to follow, but must wait and see what develops. A driver noting a signal by the driver of a car ahead simply takes it as an indication that there is to be some unspecified change in the operation of the car ahead, and governs himself accordingly.

That is the situation today in almost every part of the country, according to the bulletin, owing largely to the fact that there has not been enough education in hand signalling by motor vehicle operators, but the motor vehicle department opinion is that there is no reason why that should be the situation. It holds that the hand signal is a complement to the correct operation of a motor vehicle.

What might be called a composite code of hand signals drawn from practices approved and taught by different motor vehicle authorities of eastern states, is described in the bulletin, for possible inclusion in the Connecticut law, as follows:

"No 1—Stop or slow—Extend hand and arm horizontally and hold rigid."

A different code is employed in the west, especially in California, which is explained briefly in the bulletin and compared with the improved eastern code.

"No. 2—Extend the arm horizontally and hold rigid means turn left."

"No. 3—Extend the arm downward means stop."

The eastern code the bulletin says, is unobjectionable if the signals are properly given.

"No campaign is wasted on the driver who gives a direction and then disregards it. The Connecticut department feels that that type of driver ought to be punished, because of the obvious danger of his practice, especially when it is a direction to a pedestrian to pass in front of his car."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—Halting of the decline in the stock market, which had been under way with few interruptions for three successive weeks; further irregularity in the general business situation; a decline in cotton prices to the lowest levels since 1921 a rally in wheat prices; a temporary easing of call money rates and the establishment of new 1928 high levels by Norwegian, Italian and Japanese exchanges coincident with new lows in sterling and the Chinese currencies were the outstanding developments in this week's financial and commodity markets.

The rally in stocks was a natural correction of a temporarily oversold condition, but there was still a wide variance of opinion among expert observers as to the future trend. Bankers and business men gave assurance that here were no clouds on the business

[illegible] despite a slackening of demand in several important lines, but bear traders conducted an energetic campaign to ferret out weak spots, a number of which were uncovered. Meanwhile pool operations were reanned in a few specialities which give promise of larger earnings and increased dividends. Trading was reported to be largely professional in character.

Fears that the next government crop estimate might place the year's production above 17,000,000 bales inspired the renewed liquidation in the cotton market. On the other hand, wheat was marked up on the theory that the United States has reached the maximum visible supply and on reports of a better export demand. The reported destruction of several hundred thousand tons of sugar in the Cuban storm had a stiffening tendency on raw and refined prices.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Golden Rule Children

A tattered wistful child peers now
In your lighted window shine;
You turn away, well, anyway,
He is not mine.

"I did not make the war which brought
Such ruin to his curly head.
If nations did as nations ought;
No child would lack for bread."

You turn away, and you forget.
Your little ones romp through the door.
They will not see, nor you—and yet,
Forevermore.

Dead children on your step will lie.
Dead faces at your window wait.
Oh, let us help them, you and I.
Before it is too late!

Bedouin Song

From the desert I come to thee
On a stallion shod with fire;
And the winds are left behind
In the speed of my desire,
Under thy window I stand,
And the midnight hears my cry:
I love thee, I love but thee!
With a love that shall not die

Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment-Book unfold!

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.
Let me hear what the voice can say
In a poem of thy choice,
Or my heart will break, or turn to clay,
And my life will fall from me quite away
From the sound of my own voice.

And I tell thee true, my love can crave
Nothing that thou canst not give;
Thou canst not save me, nor slay me, love,
Nor bid me die to live.
Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Come down, come down to me;
Do not leave me here to weep,
Or the passion in my heart will grow
Till it shatters it in twain!

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Let down thy hair, let down thy hair
For a ladder to climb up there,
And tell me, tell me that thou art mine,
Or life will forever be dark as night.
Look from thy window, my love divine,
And say thou wilt be my light.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I die on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I die on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

Look from thy window, and see
My passion and my pain;
I die on the sands below.
And I faint in thy disdain.

TAFTVILLE

Hindle-Troeger

A very pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Margaret M. Troeger became the bride in marriage with Walter Hindle of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Fall River, Mass., by Rev. Edwin Gordon Davis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride on Hazard street and the house was attractively decorated with palms and cut flowers. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lena Troeger as maid of honor, and George Hindle, brother of the groom was best man.

The bride was gowned in white satin duchesse veil, caught up with orange blossoms and pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of coral georgette crepe with picture hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The wedding march was the Bridal Rose played by Lohengrin played on the piano by Miss Dorothy Troeger, sister of the bride, who was pretty in a dress of golden brown velvet with a corsage of golden brown chrysanthemums. The bride's gift to her maid was a string of pearls and to her niece a gold bracelet. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold piece.

After the ceremony a delicious chicken supper was served by the Misses Troeger. Guests were present from Hall River, Mass., and Deep River. The bride received many gifts including several checks, linen, silver and glass. After a wedding trip to Washington and Philadelphia, the newly married couple will be home to their many friends after Nov. 15 in their furnished apartment in Brooklyn, N. Y. The brides going away gown was of American pan hoult trimmed with squirrel, and hat to match.

Rudolph B. Schmidt was the leader at the meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor held Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, and the topic discussed was Lessons from Great Athletes.

FITCHVILLE YOUTH KILLED BY HIS OWN GUN WHILE OUT HUNTING

While on his way home from a hunting trip, Joseph W. Fiske, 17, of Fitchville, was accidently killed early Saturday evening when the shot gun he was carrying went off as he was climbing over a stone wall. The fatality occurred near the former Tibbets farm in Fitchville.

The youth had been hunting during the afternoon and when he did not appear at his home during the evening a search for him was started. He was found by the wall about 11 o'clock Saturday night and had evidently been dead for about six hours. Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve of this city conducted an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the young man's death and gave Undertakers Hourigan Bros. permission to remove the body.

The youth was born Sept. 27, 1909, and was the son of Charles and Jennie Dixon Fiske. He was a member of St. John's parish, Fitchville and was employed at the Palmer mill in that village. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Jennie Fiske and one brother, Charles Edward Fiske.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve gave a verdict of accidental shooting. The youth had stopped at the Tibbets farm for a drink of water and leaving the house had followed the wall for some distance. Then he evidently placed his gun against the rather high wall and pulled himself to the top of it. Reaching down for the gun he evidently started to pull it up after him and either hit the gun against something or the trigger became caught, discharging. The gun and the charge struck the youth in the right side of the face. He died so quickly that he probably didn't hear the report of the gun.

In failing back his heel became caught on an obstruction and he lay in such a position that his body appeared to be but a shadow in the moonlight. The shot that killed him was heard about 5.30 o'clock but no attention was paid to it until the search for the youth was started.

ST. THERESE NOVENA A MARVELLOUS SUCCESS

The wide-spreading influence and effect of the labors of the missionary father, Rev. M. A. Kelly, C. S. Sp. of Philadelphia at St. Patrick's church during the week was convincingly demonstrated during the closing exercises of the novena in honor of St. Therese Saturday and Sunday. At the outset, the missionary reminded the people that he was not in the pulpit merely to entertain them; that whatever good they might derive from his preaching, as from their religion in general, must come from the altar, where forever the Lord Jesus Christ is waiting to bless and comfort and inspire His followers. It must have been very consoling to the mission father to see the many parish children receiving holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass Saturday; while during that afternoon and evening the zealous priest heard so many confessions that the number going to the altar for communion at the 7:30 mass Sunday included nearly every person in the congregation of about 1,800. The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who read the mass, and his assistant, Rev. John J. Reilly were occupied for fully twenty minutes administering the Holy Eucharist. The edifying sight was repeated at the 9 o'clock mass. Father Kelly's eloquence possessed the requisites of a good confession, sincere contrition for sin, and a firm purpose, with the help of God, to sin no more. During the week many of the careless, the lukewarm and the erring have been brought back to peace with God.

Saturday evening Father Kelly resumed from the text, "He has wrought himself shameful confusion" in regard to the young woman of the parable to call the attention of St. Therese, humility, meekness, to the whole train, crude, shallow souls of the world at present. It was not so in Bethlehem. God had sent St. Therese at this time on a special mission, to set an example to the careless young women of the world, who appear to have shed from their souls as those charms once accounted sacred.

Sunday was the 22nd Sunday after Pentecost the epistle read in all the churches of the day being Philippians 1:6-11 and the gospel Matt. XXII. 15-21. Sunday evening, in spite of the storm, the church was filled for the concluding exercises. Rev. John J. Reilly read the Gospel text of the sermon, and Father Kelly gave benediction and read the special prayers.

Father Kelly's text was "A little child shall lead them." He referred to the week of miraculous peace and pious exercises just ended to glorify Almighty God through the latest marvel of His divine grace, the sanctity exhibited by Therese. He expressed the hope that the graces of her sweet life in devotion on the Redeemer would perpetuate henceforth the lives of all who had participated in the weeks' exercises. Personal holiness must be sought within the imitation of Jesus Christ; and the study and contemplation of this the latest one of His saints cannot fail of resulting in the hope to walk side by side with one who resembles Christ so well and so much. He amplified the thought that the problem of one's own personal peace is nothing more than learning to walk in the way of Christ.

At the close of his most eloquent and inspiring sermon Father Kelly bestowed the Papal benediction upon the large congregation. Mrs. Edward McKeon at this point sang in a voice of power, flexibility and perfect control, the arrangement of "Ave Maria," by Luigi Luzz. The special St. Therese hymn "Oh, Little Flower" was sung, as on previous evenings with most satisfying harmony by the volunteer choir, which has done work of first quality throughout the exercises. During benediction, O Salutaris and Tantum Ergo and Divine Praises (Elliot) added to the beauty of the services, the voices of Mrs. Bernard M. Quinn, Roderick F. Sullivan, Walter LaFontaine and the other singers standing out well. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine accompanied with the customary skill, also assisting in the choruses; and after the great congregation had gone to the sanctuary railing for the venerating of the relic of St. Therese sent the worshippers out from the magnificent church to the majestic recessional, "March of the Priests," from "Athalie."

Souvenir cards of the novena with the reproduction of the shrine and a prayer for the intercession of St. Therese were distributed to the congregation.

During the week the altar flowers have been furnished by the Rosary society, families and individuals; the rose associated now in the church's thought of St. Therese with her promised "shower of roses" in prayers and good deeds to bring back men to Christ, has been the blossom used, the choicest of red roses during the week, with pink and white roses Sunday. These flowers have been arranged with special taste by the altar society members, Mrs. Jeremiah Lynch, Miss Annie G. Stanton, Miss Annie M. Sheehan, Miss Anna McGrory and Miss Katherine Sheehan.

The ushers who served so faithfully and so well throughout the week were Alexander A. Kilroy, William J. McKnight, John R. Wozniak, Maurice Looby, Thaddeus Leahy, Michael J. Murphy, Austin Furling, Andrew Deneff and Leonard Desmond, with John P. Corcoran in general charge.

This (Monday) morning, at the regular daily parish mass at 7 o'clock and the novena mass at 8, many will gather to offer prayers of thanksgiving for the success of the week's novena and for favors obtained by prayers during the nine days.

SEASONS IN PICTURE AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

Notwithstanding the stormy afternoon a good sized audience attended the service in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday and evidently those who attended fully enjoyed the service. The opening services consisted of the singing of hymns and scripture reading. Hugh Kinder rendered effectively two vocal solos, and Edmund A. Prentice offered the prayer. A four reel moving picture entitled "The Four Seasons" was shown, each reel portraying in a very realistic way a season of the year; first spring, then summer and autumn followed by winter. The reels certainly pictured the varied scenes true to nature.

Between the reels Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church gave a very instructive and interesting message in line with the pictures. Among other things the speaker said: "I suppose we miss, take for the topic, the book of nature. The seasons have always been in them lessons of life. We speak of the spring of life, the summer of life, the autumn of life and the winter of life. The seasons with their various forms of nature teach us the simple fact of beauty; there is beauty everywhere; nature wears many dresses that emphasize beauty. The religious mind finds in the beauty things that point to the beauty of life and God. Many of the poets evidently have in their writings thought much of God in nature. We have our favorite season; at this period of the year we of course think of the beauty that autumn suggests, and we repeat the words, 'some call it autumn and others call it God.' We cannot improve on the dainty things God has written for us; nature is a manuscript in which God writes, and his many writings are most beautiful. It is a crime for us to disregard beauty about us as we do. Of course we must be careful not to overdo our love for nature, but is it possible to do just this; is it possible to love beauty and God too much? The religious mind likes to recall the regularity of the seasons, and therefore the dependableness of the seasons. God is so good, there is always 'seed time and harvest.' God is a great provider. The seasons never lose their charm. The calendar of the season should remind us that there is a certain time for us to do certain things; we should improve the time and do the work as it comes to us."

NIANTIC STOREKEEPER DIES WITH BULLET IN BRAIN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NIANTIC, Oct. 24—George Sheffiet, keeper of a grocery store in this village, shot himself in the head Saturday evening, the bullet entering the brain just above the ear. There is doubt whether it was a case of suicide or whether the shooting was by accident. A frequenter of the store has been in the habit of exhibiting an automatic Colt revolver of .45 calibre in the store, but always with the safety attachment, upon it in place so as to prevent the discharge of the revolver. Saturday evening Sheffiet was handling the revolver, but then, it appears, the safety was not in place. The result was that he shot himself in the head. Mrs. Sheffiet had been with her husband in the store just prior to the tragedy. The couple lived happily so there was no reason known for the act committed by Sheffiet. The couple have a married daughter. The reported suicide was the talk of the village today and sympathy was generally expressed for the family. The body was taken charge of by a New London undertaker.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS BY NORWICH C. E. UNION

The annual fall meeting of the Norwich C. E. union was held at Hanover Saturday afternoon and evening.

In the absence of Rev. Dwight Stone who was recently injured by a fall, Mrs. Stone led the devotions.

Gertrude Ladd, president of the Hanover society gave the union a hearty welcome to which Ralph Marsh, vice president of the union gave the response.

The reports of the secretary, treasurer, finance, lookout and missionary committee were read and accepted.

The report of the nominating committee was read by the chairman, Henry Sebastian, as follows:

President, Harold Muttart; vice president, Mazie Stamm; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry Sebastian; recording secretary, Ellen Neilson; treasurer, Orrin Banning. The secretary was instructed to cast one ballot and elect the officers.

Owing to the illness of President Kean, he was unable to be present, T. T. Philips of Bridgeport, chairman of state finances, brought the afternoon message, emphasizing the fact that the C. E. young people are members of the largest young people's society in the world. He gave the United C. E. program for the year, after which he told of some of the activities of the other unions in the state.

At 5 o'clock a social hour was enjoyed followed by a banquet supper served by the ladies of the church. The menu consisted of salad, beans, brown bread, rolls, ham, pickles, cake, ice cream and coffee. Songs and yells were most heartily enjoyed by all. A roll call of societies was then taken to which about 70 responded, but more came to the evening service which opened with a praise service led by Wilbur Park of Hanover. The new president, Harold Muttart, led in prayer. Miss Marion Browning then rendered a vocal solo, "Come Unto Me and Rest."

Mr. C. E. Spalding of New London, the speaker of the evening, was then introduced. His subject was Young People's Work and Community Service. He defined young people's work as consisting mainly in their strategy in creating Christian character. It is a series of problems to be solved. The principal and most needed element in Christian character is the consciousness that we owe society the best we can give.

The finest joy of life is felt in ministering to others. Cultivate the fine art of living together. There is nothing so fine and beautiful. A fine Christian character contributes more than anything else toward this. It depends especially on those unconscious words as the secret of community service.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Dr. Spalding for his splendid address.

The Bozrah society was awarded the banner for having the largest delegation. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The resolutions committee, O. S. Maples, Florence Bennett and Margaret L. Chaplin, presented resolutions which were accepted as read. They expressed appreciation for the faithful work of the retiring officers and regret at their leaving, assured the incoming officers of hearty support, wished the speakers and expressed sympathy to State President Kean in his illness, and sent a message of sympathy and earnest wishes for speedy recovery to Rev. Mr. Stone, pastor of the Hanover church. The resolutions also sent greetings to George Hyde, with regret for his absence as he has been for many years a supporter of the union's meetings with his enthusiasm and C. E. spirit. The resolutions further recorded with pride and achievement of the finance committee in raising the state quota for the union and especially thanked William Park for his generous gift. Gratitude for the entertainment by the Hanover church was also expressed.

JAIL AND FINE FOR BEATING HIS WIFE

At the Saturday morning session of the city court Joseph Uzalko of No. 10 Mt. Pleasant street, was given a fine of $5 and costs and a 1 year suspended jail sentence on a charge of beating his wife. He was arrested Friday night for beating his wife and breaking up the furniture. Mrs. Uzalko stated that he had made life miserable for her the past three months, beating her every week and threatening to put her in the state insane so that he could be free. After he beat her Friday night he went out to the wood shed, got an axe and started to smash the stove.

George P. Babulais, a sailor attached to the U. S. submarine base was in court on a charge of operating a machine without having his license or registration with him. The case was nolled on payment of $6. Two local drivers were in court for violating the auto rules.

PASTOR'S SERMON ON FOOLISHNESS OF PREACHING

In his sermon at the Sunday morning service at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster, answered in the affirmative the question of his theme, which was, "Can we be saved by the foolishness of preaching?" His text was 1 Corinthians 1, 21: It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

In part he said:

In his day Paul assailed the conventional order and compelled a hearing for his new conception of the gospel. What was called the "foolishness" of that day has become the approved wisdom of later generations. Rarely is the merit of the pioneer recognized in his own day. Perhaps the present day preacher exerting the widest influence by spoken word, by printed page and by radio, is Rev. Dr. Fosdick, of New York. His message is that of liberal version of the gospel of the latter part of the 19th century and his mission is to popularize that message among the religious classes who branded it as the "foolishness of preaching" 50 years ago. Certainly he reaches more people than were reached by Beecher and Spurgeon in their day.

But among the free churches the preachers are not all in the pulpit. Certain laymen, by word and by deed, exemplify the great principles of their cherished religious faith.

The late lamented Thomas M. Osborne was ranked as a sincere social reformer and as a distinguished penologist. Of him was it said: "I was sick and ye visited me and in prison and ye came unto me." If we expect him to completely revolutionize the prison policies which are the result of 500 years of history, and to do it within 20 years time, we show ourselves as limited in outlook as those who demand complete prohibition of liquor within six years. Habit and social customs are involved and they are among the things most difficult to change. A reasonable estimate of Warden Osborne's work remarks that it shows to advantage when directed by a compelling personality and when contact is made with a certain type of prisoners, especially those serving long sentences and those craving sympathy and comradeship. At times, his policy has influenced for the better many incorrigible prisoners, however, and he has made glaring exposures of the abuses of the old system of severity; but he will be most commonly remembered as a messenger of light where the darkness of neglect and cruelty had prevailed; as the evangel of the gospel of mutual rights and duties and of the claims of brotherhood and of revived hope and awakened moral ambition. Those accustomed to the background of social caste, sordid pleasures and harsh discipline have stigmatized his policy as the "foolishness of preaching," but tomorrow it will be marked as the light of a new day of fraternity and mutual trust.

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE; STARTED AROUND CHIMNEY

Fire thought to have originated around the chimney, destroyed the house and contents owned by Antonio Gut of Roosevelt avenue, early Saturday morning. The fire department responded to a telephone call for help although the house was located outside the city line, as there was no available water supply the firemen could do nothing to save the house, but they removed what furniture they could until the heat drove them from the building. A bucket brigade from a well kept nearby buildings wet down so that they wouldn't catch fire. A large pine tree nearby took fire but the flames were extinguished when the burning branches were cut down by Mr. Gut.

Mrs. Gut was awakened about 5:30 o'clock by the crackling of the flames and found that the entire roof was burning. The fire had a good start when discovered and spread very rapidly. The loss is estimated at $7,000.

CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM BURNING GASOLINE

While washing a dress in gasoline at her home, No. 12 Alice street, Mrs. Napoleon Labria narrowly escaped with her life when her clothing caught fire about 10:45 o'clock Saturday morning. She was using the gasoline in a sink about a foot away from a lighted gas stove and the fumes from the gasoline caught fire, setting her clothing on fire. Mrs. Labria wrapped a rag around herself and with the assistance of Thomas Doyle and James Dwyer, grocery clerks employed by George O Hathaway, who happened to be delivering groceries in that vicinity, extinguished the flames. Mrs. Labria escaped with a burned arm and singed eyebrows.

The fire department responded to a telephone call and rendered first aid to Mrs. Labria. The dress Mrs. Labria was washing and which was valued at $30 was destroyed by the flames.

MISS GROVER'S AUTOMOBILE FOUND IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24.—An automobile belonging to Miss Miriam Grover, 32 Oak street, Norwich, which was stolen in that city Friday, was recovered by the New London police Saturday night when the automobile was found abandoned. The auto, which carries registration, N-8444, and is a four door Ford sedan, was found on property of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, off Water street, by Patrolmen Clarence Martin and Edward Riordan. Because of the machine being parked in such an unusual place, between the tracks and North Bank street residences, the officers investigated and determined that it was the automobile stolen in Norwich and of which theft the New London police had been notified. The automobile was taken to a garage and this morning it was recovered by its owner.

The battery and the key were taken from the machine.

HORSE WAS KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

Early Friday evening a large horse belonging to the John H. Ford estate, which was one of a team driven by James K. Davis of No. 162 Whipple street, was killed by a southbound trolley car at Mohegan hill, near Gallivan lane.

The horses were being driven towards Norwich and near Gallivan lane the truck was struck by an automobile, the driver of which did not stop after the accident but escaped in the dark. The horses became frightened and overturned the truck which landed on top of them, one of them lieing across the trolley track.

Workmen in the vicinity tried to warn the motorman of the trolley car that the horse was on the tracks but the motorman evidently did not see the workmen's signals or the horse and the trolley struck the animal.

trolley struck the animal in the head. The trolley car was on an upgrade at the time and it was stated that there was a clear view ahead of the car for 400 feet.

It was learned by Harry N. Ford that the driver of the automobile was an employe of the M. A. Gammino Construction Co. of Providence.

The trolley car was in charge of Motorman George W. Atwood and Conductor Joe Cascavant.

Mammoth Wolf River Apples

Dwight L. Underwood of 434 Washington street brought to The Bulletin office Saturday a sample of a Wolf River apple from one of several trees of that variety which he has on his place.

The apple is 14 inches in circumference and its brilliant coloring makes it a most attractive piece of fruit.

Fourth Wedding Anniversary

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tryon of 96 Franklin street celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary with about 30 friends and relatives who enjoyed a very pleasant evening. Various games and stunts were played and prizes were won by John C. Atterbury, William Batty and Mildred McCann. Miss Marie Atterbury rendered several fine piano selections accompanied on the ukulele by Michael J. Aldi and George W. Tryon. At 10:30 a dainty luncheon of sandwiches, fancy cakes and coffee was served. Mrs. Tryon cut a large decorated cake lighted with candles and each one received a piece of the cake. Mr. and Mrs. Tryon received many beautiful gifts from their guests who wished them many more years of happiness together.

WIND AND RAIN STORMS IN ALL NORTHEASTERN STATES

At Pittsfield, Mass., Roofs Were Ripped From Houses, Windows Smashed, Chimneys Blown Down, Causing Damage Estimated at $100,000—Shipping Was Tied Up at Providence by Raging Seas—In the Vicinity of New York Three Persons Were Killed and Many Others Injured.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Freak atmosphere disturbances, that included storms approaching hurricane force and torrential showers, visited New England in common with other eastern states today. Pittsfield, Mass., suffered damage expected to aggregate $100,000 when a high wind cut a four mile swath a hundred yards wide across the city, uprooting chimneys and trees, ripping roofs from houses and smashing windows.

In Springfield and Lowell, trees, chimneys and advertising signs succumbed to the wind. The accompanying downpour in Springfield caused washouts. In Vermont telephone circuits were put out of commission by the winds and murkiture cloudbursts.

Shipping was tied up in Providence, R. I. today as a result of a gale that piled up raging seas.

REACHED HURRICANE FORCE IN VICINITY OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Striking with startling suddenness, and with winds that at times reached hurricane force today raked sections of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Three persons were killed in the vicinity of that city, many others injured, considerable property damage was caused in more than a score of cities and towns of the four states, and harbor and coast wise shipping was affected.

Mrs. Alma Pettit was killed in Hempstead, Long Island, by a limb torn from a tree by the wind.

In New York there were numerous injuries from falling window glass released by the wind and signboards blown away and sent whirling through the streets. A wind that for five minutes blew at a speed of 75 miles an hour churned the waters of New York harbor, buffeted smaller vessels into helplessness and paralyzed harbor traffic in general.

The 4,000 ton freighter Fajaby was driven away from three tugs that were trying it and was pounded into the end of the New York Central pier at Seventieth street, Hudson river, causing damage estimated at $20,000. Wrecking back into the river, with the tug trying to hold it, the freighter crashed into a freight car float before it could be recaptured by the tugs.

During the height of the blow, numerous calls for help were received by the coast guard from small craft at the Ehr basin in Brooklyn and in Sheepshead bay. Waves broke over the sea wall at the Battery and ferryboats had difficulty landing at their slips in lower Manhattan. Several yachts broke away from their moorings at yacht clubs along the Hudson.

Towns and cities in northern and central New Jersey suffered property damage, roofs being blown from many houses, trees uprooted and telephone lines torn down. Some injuries were reported. Philadelphia also was visited by a storm. In some towns the temperature took a precipitous drop as the storm struck.

Gales off the Rhode Island coast affected shipping, two steamers wanting in Narragansett bay for the storm to die. The steamer Lexington, which left New York last night for Providence, was forced to put into New London harbor.

The storm extended as far as Washington, where rain and hail fell today, followin a steady downpour last night which was accompanied by high winds.

WOMAN AND MAN TRAPPED IN VESSEL THAT CAPSIZED

IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Trapped in the river freighter G. F. Brady when the vessel was capsized by a gale and exploded in the Tappan Zee today, a woman cook and a fireman were killed. Nine other persons narrowly escaped death by jumping or being thrown into the water as the vessel suddenly rolled over.

Mrs. Oscar De Mond, cook and Charles Hayes, fireman, perished. The others who were on the freighter were rescued from the water by the crew of a tug, which was nearby when the explosion occurred, caused by water rushing into the boiler room as the craft capsized.

Loaded with coal, yeast and stoves, the small steam freighter was caught unaware by the sudden gale and instantly turned over. After the explosion it sank in 15 fathoms of water in the deepest part of the Tappan Zee, a broad expanse of water off this town. Parts of the shattered vessel were hurled high into the air by the force of the explosion. The boat operated between Peekskill and New York.

QUEEN MARIE STARTS ON TOUR OF UNITED STATES

Aboard Queen Marie's Special Train, Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Queen Marie of Rumania today began her tour of the United States, with Butte fixed as the destination of her first days journey. The trip will take a royal party to the west coast and back again, journeying through Canada on part of the western swing, and returning to New York late in November.

The queen set forth from New York this morning in accord with her own family and hosts that the state of her health to be the dominant fact to be considered throughout the trip.

The announcement from the royal quarters preceded another by a spokesman for the queen in denial of reports from abroad that King Ferdinand had requested Marie to terminate her tour and return to Bucharest. Reports of such pressure being exerted from home, the spokesman said, were baseless.

With the departure from New York this morning, the queen willingly placed herself in the hands of a trained nurse, Miss Adeline Young of Johns Hopkins hospital, who now is in supreme command of the royal car so far as the queen's health is concerned. Miss Young will keep a check on Marie's condition daily, reporting any development that might necessitate change in programs.

PRESIDENT HAS POWER TO REMOVE OWN APPOINTEES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A story making opinion upholding the power of the president to remove without consulting the senate, officers appointed by him with the advice and consent of that body was handed down today by the supreme court.

The court, 6 to 3 held that the president had full discretion in removing such officers with the exception of a few judges, notwithstanding any restrictions that the congress might impose.

The decision set at rest a controversy between the legislative and executive branches of the government as old as the constitution itself. From the first congress up to the present, these two departments of government have been at odds as to power of removal of appointive office holders.

The question, frequently an issue for heated political debate, reached the court in an appeal by Frank S. Myers, appointed by President Wilson to the postmastership at Portland, Oregon, in July 1917, and subsequently removed by him in February, 1920.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE CONSIDERS AIR DEFENSE

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Linked with discussions of foreign policy at the imperial conference today, was consideration of the question of defense, especially in the air. As a sequel to an air demonstration of last Saturday, the imperial conference will consider further schemes for co-operation between the royal air force and the air forces of the various dominions. The combined strength of the various squadrons of the British air forces now amounts to approximately 350 airplanes.

ULTRA-MICROSCOPE IS EXPECTED TO PROLONG LIFE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The ultra-Microscope bids fair to raise the average span of mankind life to 70 years or more, by enabling science in the treatment of disease, Dr. William J. Mayo noted surgeon of Rochester, Minn. said today in an address before the Canadian club.

"The future of medical science," he said, "lies in further investigation of the ultra-microscopic field, and as the microscope carried the average age of man from 20 years to 58 years, so the ultra-microscope bids fair to do." Mayo laid great stress on the value of religion in healing. He said that the appeal to the emotions, which existed before the practice of medicine is not to be ignored. He described Spiritualistic seances as the work of jokers, who first "deprive their victims of their sense of sight, the most important means of obtaining true knowledge, by taking them to a dark room and there conjuring up fraudulent conceptions."

TO ENDEAVOR TO PRODUCE PETROLEUM CHEMICALLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The most thorough experiments ever conducted to produce petroleum chemically will be made shortly under an endowment established by John D. Rockefeller and now amounting to half a million dollars, the American Petroleum Institute announced today.

The experiments will consist of reproducing as nearly as possible the geologic conditions believed responsible for the production of petroleum.

Petroleum, in the belief of most geologists, the institute says, is produced by geologic forces acting through long periods on the deposits of buried aquatic organisms. The proposed plan is based on this assumption and by the use of great pressures and varying temperatures the scientists hope to hasten the natural process brought about by rock pressure and the changing earth temperatures.

Belgian Money to go on Gold Basis Today

Loan of $100,000,000 to Belgium Will Stabilize the Franc at About 36 to the Dollar.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Belgian money will go on a new gold basis tomorrow with the creation of a new monetary standard—the belga—equal to five paper francs and with a definite gold value of .209211 grams.

The Belgian franc will be stabilized at 174.31 to the pound sterling, or about one-seventh of its pre-war value, but it will no longer be quoted on the foreign exchange markets of the world. Instead there will be the belga for the purposes of foreign trade.

Belgium's money, which has fluctuated in value from day to day since the Germans invaded the country in 1914, now has the support of the leading banks of issue of Europe, the United States and Asia. This support is expressed in an internation loan to Belgium of $100,000,000 which will be used to keep the Belgian franc up to its new par level which will make it about 36 to the dollar.

The loan will be placed upon the market tomorrow. It will bear interest at seven per cent. plus one per cent for amortization and will run for a term of 30 years. The Federal Reserve bank of the United States, the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the German Reichsbank and similar banks in Japan, Holland, Sweden, Austria and Hungary have agreed to support the loan in addition $35,000,000 in credits will be placed at the disposition of the Bank of Belgium to assist in carrying out the immediate stabilization plans.

Bankers and businessmen in Belgium received the governments stabilization announcement this afternoon with favorable comments. The only criticisms of any extent heard were aimed against the creation of the belga, which some traders view as an unnecessary measure. Governor Francq of the Bank of Belgium, appeared on the bourse this afternoon and explained why the government had decided to establish the new currency for foreign trade while retaining the franc in domestic circulation.

He stated that the belga was not based on the British pound or the American dollar, but on gold. "There were two formulas for stabilization" he said. "We could have tied ourselves to some fixed proportion to foreign money of a gold standard or have fastened it up on the "flowing" principle" the governor added. This latter formula, which will be attributed to the belga is exactly .0211 grams. On this basis the dollar is worth 7.35, and if the pound is at par it will be exactly 35 belgas."

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Testimony to show that an accountant was given for putting 250,000 shares of United States Steamship company stock to hold while its was in the company's employ featured today's session of the Morse mail fraud trial in federal court.

Capital surplus was to be reduced to equal amount, according to the letter.

Keary testified the entry was to be made in order to increase the plant and equipment value to equal $2,000,000.

The defendants in the trial are Erwin A., Harry F., and Benjamin W. Morse, sons of Charles W. Morse, and 14 others. They are charged with use of the mails to defraud in connection with the stock selling operations of the United States Steamship company, the United States Transport company and the United States Shipbuilding company.

Discovery Practically Restores All the Cash in the $320,000,000 Bond Fraud of Bank in Pittsburgh—Money Was Found Near the Home of Edward Goodfellow, an Associate of Bond Saleaman Knapp, Who Fled With the Money in a Small Satchel—Goodfellow Pointed Out to Officers Various Other Places Where Portions of the Money Was Hidden.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Practically all the cash in the $320,000 bond fraud involving funds of the Order of Brotherhood Savings and Trust company was in possession of authorities tonight.

A previous scanning of Goodfellow's property produced one package of about $8,000 found buried near the garage. Under questioning Goodfellow admitted the remainder of the cash was also buried there and accompanied officers to his home and pointed out the various hiding places. A couple days later Knapp returned and told Goodfellow he was going to Canada to escape prosecution and asked him to keep $8,000 in cash for him. Goodfellow said he left the money in the house and that Knapp came and got it.

Goodfellow said he was very much worried because of grave suspicions aroused by these actions and he decided to turn the money over to the authorities today. In the course of Goodfellow's statement, he said Knapp told him that he was "through" and that he would be "in the hands of the police" before the week ended. Knapp was arrested a week after the fraud, it is said he was about to board a boat for the old country.

With impressive dedicatory exercises, the reconsecration of the Hebrew cemetery at Perkins' Corner was carried out Sunday with Rabbi L. L. Silver of Springfield, Mass., as the officiating clergyman. He was assisted by Rabbis Rosenberg of Norwich and Max Levine of this city.

The ceremonies included the dedication of an attractive iron fence which now surrounds the burial grounds. A sweeping rain failed to affect the size or the enthusiasm of the assemblage of Willimantic and vicinity Hebrew residents. Returning from the cemetery to the synagogue, a short service was held and a talk given by Rabbi Silver. Rabbi Silver asked the congregation to always maintain its cemetery in good order out of respect to the remains of the loved ones interred there. He reviewed the history of the local Hebrew cemetery and said that he considered its location ideal. To an appeal for subscriptions to a fund to help pay for the expenses of grading the cemetery and the erection of the new fence, the congregation liberally contributed over $700 in cash. Added to this was the subscription of the Hebrew Ladies' society of $3 0 and amounts from other sources to cover the total expense of about $1 500 of which the cost of the new fence is over $1,000. The services were concluded with a supper served in the vestry by the Hebrew Ladies' society to about 175 people.

There were two Hebrew cemeteries for many years at Perkins Corner, located side by side. The first was the Louis Penner Waldmanth Hebrew cemetery. This was shortly before the people of the Jewish faith organized a church society which was formulated in 1919 as the Sons of Israel congregation. The first synagogue was located on Temple street. This society established a second cemetery. It was decided this year that two burial plots were unnecessary and by arrangement the Louis Penner cemetery was taken over by the organization. The combined cemeteries are to be known as the Sons of Israel society cemetery. Many improvements were made to the grounds and the new fence erected.

Another continuance of one week was granted in the case of Leroy Roberts, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law by filling the tank of a motorcycle with the motor running. JEWETT CITY

LANDS MONSTER EEL IN JEWETT CITY POND

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 25.—The fatherless fish of fresh water eels has gone where he will do no more good. A Polish man caught the great wriggler of the fourteen inches Monday morning. He was fishing with a bag of worms and expected just he thought to haul the bottom of the pond. When dressed and weighed the monster went up to 7 1-2 pounds. He was three feet two inches long without his head, and in girth was just the same as a can of string-beans.

The take was reported by a man who worked in the water mills 10 years ago, when a pleasure of eels into the log mill dame stopped the wheels. Water was only started again after a gang of men had entered the wheel pit through the penstock and with axes and pitchforks had chopped up and thrown out a cart body full of the eels.

At the Ashland mill on the plant was shut for two days on account of the attempted passage of thousands of eels through the wheels.

KEECH-PERRY NUPTIALS AT DANIELSON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 25.—With many relatives and friends in attendance and amidst pretty decorations, Miss Irma Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Perry of 7 Prospect avenue, and J. Stanley Keech, son of Mrs. Herbert C. Keech of Hutchins street, were united in marriage at the Methodist Episcopal church at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. Harvey H. Conklin of Baltic, a former pastor here, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Roger C. Stimson, the pastor. The double ring service was used. Mrs. Harold B. Atwood was organist.

The bride's dress was of bridal satin trimmed with shadow lace. Her tulle veil was draped with orange blossoms that were worn by the groom's grandmother. Her bouquet was a shower arrangement of white roses.

Other attendants were Miss Flora Keech, who wore gold taffeta, and Miss Mary Young, whose gown was of orchid taffeta. Both wore black satin picture hats.

The church was very prettily decorated, under the direction of Fred Goetz with bittersweet, wild alder, sumachs, palms and autumn leaves.

Immediately after the service there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Keech left for their wedding trip during which they will visit in New York state and in Pennsylvania.

The bride received numbers of very beautiful and useful gifts.

Both the newly wedded couple are very well known here, having lived all of their lives in Danielson. Both are graduates of Killingly high school. The groom is engaged in business here Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Keech will make their home on Hutchins street.

It appears to be against the rules to drive an automobile along a railroad track. This privilege, it seems, is reserved for trains. Possibly because it was night and because an unusually severe storm was raging, Joseph Malnville of Versailles decided the arrangement might not be operative for the time being. That's the principal reason why he appeared in the town court Monday morning and pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while he was under the influence of an intoxicant. Judge W. Fenner Woodward fined him $100 and costs, a total of $114.81, which was paid.

State Officer Nelson brought Mainville in from Dayville in the downpour of Sunday night. With several companions in his machine, Mainville started from the Main street railroad crossing in that place to drive down the main line of the New Haven tracks toward Danielson. Observers who sensed the fact that he would likely drive the machine off the railroad bridge a few hundred yards below the station and into the river raced out to him to be careful, while one active fellow pursued the bumping car, leaped on the running board and turned off the ignition. In due time Officer Nelson arrived and took Mainville along with him. In court Mainville proclaimed that he had had but one glass of beer. Now, there's some beer!

Sidney R. Bard of Brooklyn and a member of the staff at the Brooklyn savings bank here, is engaged in making a check-up of soldiers' graves in Killingly, as he has already done in the town of Brooklyn, that these graves be provided with adequate markers in cases where such a provision, for any reason, is needed.

It was on the morning of Memorial day, 1925, that the young man first conceived the idea he has since carried out. He had been placing flowers on the graves of relatives in the South cemetery at Brooklyn when he observed that the grave of his great uncle, Robert White, was without a flag, though one should have been there.

Since that time, at the expense of much time, effort and patience, he has found about all the poorly marked soldiers' graves in the town of Brooklyn. Under a provision of the state of Connecticut for supplying proper markers, 21 stones already have been placed in cemeteries of Brooklyn, where lie buried the soldier dead who had served in the Revolution, War of 1812, Mexican, Civil, Spanish and World wars. The markers are shafts of white granite bearing the name, military service, age and date of death of those in whose honor they are placed. Sixty more such markers are to be placed in the cemeteries of Brooklyn. Brooklyn's appreciation of what Mr. Bard has done, was expressed in the form of an appropriation for meeting the cost of certain phases of the work involved. Mr. Bard receives no remuneration whatever for his very splendid and patriotic work.

"King" George W. Jacques of East Killingly has gone into the lumber business, to some extent. He has purchased all the poles standing along the railway right of way from East Killingly to Plainville. Recently the trolley rails were taken up by the Connecticut company and the overhead wires and wire taken down. King George gets the poles—about 200 of them—by purchase, and will remove them in due time.

No great amount of damage was reported during Monday from the wild storm of Sunday night nor the howling gale of Monday. Some limbs were knocked off trees, a window blown in here and there and other minor happenings of this nature reported, but there was practically no reported damage that might be regarded as serious.

In the last week before the election of Nov. 2, Killingly is taking its politics very mildly. No rallies, parades or other demonstrations that formerly were thought necessary to the success of a political campaign are planned. In this town about the only contest of strictly local interest would be over representatives, and the town, it appears, is considering that possibility with complacency.

Killingly high school's football team will have its first real test of the season next Friday afternoon when it plays Putnam high school at Putnam. Killingly has an active and aggressive team this year, though it has a short roster of players. The fact is sensed that Putnam high is apt to be a hard team to beat.

Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Foster Center church a funeral service for Mrs. Abby F. Brown was conducted by Rev. Gilbert B. Cutler of North Scituate. Burial was in the Speare cemetery at Foster Center. The bearers were Roy Hopkins, Elmer Hopkins, George Weatherbee and George Tucker. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A death in Foster Center Sunday afternoon was that of Mrs. Mary E. Nichols, widow of James P. Nichols, who died about five years ago. The family came to Foster from Providence about 20 years ago and since had made their home there. Mrs. Nichols was born in Foster, a daughter of Israel G. M. and Lydia Eldridge Phillips, and was 75 years of age. She leaves two sons, George Nichols, postmaster at Foster Center, and Ralph Nichols.

Practically all the leaves were stripped from many trees in Danielson during the storm of Sunday night and the gale onf Monday. Driven by the wind the leaves went swirling hither and yon. Stripped of their foliage the trees now are ready for November's bleak settingofgrayda ETAOINSHM bleak setting of gray days and chill weather.

Cooking and sewing classes are now engaged with work in the home economics department at Killingly high school, this being a new department at the school.

Wednesday evening girls are to meet at the Methodist Episcopal church to organize a handicraft club.

Motorists told Monday of narrow escapes they had during the storm of Sunday night from hitting people walking in streets bordered by good sidewalks. The mystery of why so many people will assume the risk of injury or death by highway walking when there are good sidewalks available has never been satisfactorily explained.

Lectures and pageants will feature the Americanization exhibit to be held in the town hall for three days in November.

Resumption of operations in the Ballouville mill by its new purchasers, the Paco Manufacturing company, has been the means of bringing happiness to families of that community, where business has been slack for a long time.

Rev. Frank Hallett, rector at Thornton, R. I., will preach at the All Saints day service to be held in Old Trinity church, Church street, Brooklyn. Rev. Mr. Hallett formerly was a professor of Greek at Brown university.

Chautauqua guarantors have a meeting scheduled to be held in the parlors of the Baptist church Wednesday evening.

Hundreds of barrels of apples are being hauled out of towns in this county by motor trucks for delivery to concerns in large cities in New England, to be kept in storage during at least part of the winter season.

PUTNAM

THURSTON FIGURES HIS DEFEAT SAVES HIM MONEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 25—Ralph E. Thurston, general manager of the Putnam Light and Power company was a candidate for representative in the general assembly at the recent republican caucus, and was defeated by a very decisive vote—350 to 150.

Mr. Thurston, who is an exceptionally able man, both in his profession, and in a business way, was at Atlantic City attending the annual convention of the National Association of Gas Manufacturers at the time the caucus was held. Since his return he has had to submit to a good deal of "joshing" from his friends. He took it gracefully and his comments were interesting. During the past two or three days he has also received "congratulations" by mail, telegraph and telephone from all parts of New England from men who are associated with light and power companies.

Incidentally, it has been told by men in a position to know, that Mr. Thurston was recognized as one of the ablest electrical engineers in the east.

Speaking of the result of the caucus he said:

"I was told that I could be of service to the people of the town by accepting this nomination, that there was a general demand that I should be the candidate. Somebody evidently was mistaken. My experience in politics seems to be, that I walkad right in and I turned around and I walked right out again. As far as I can determine there was no unanimous call on the part of the citizens of Putnam that I should represent them in the legislative halls at Hartford.

"Well, it's been an experience and while I wasn't here to attend the caucus I can imagine what it was like from the published reports. The newspaper men apparently didn't miss any of the details.

"But as a matter of fact my best friends were those who voted against me. Think of making the trip to Hartford on five mornings every week and coming back in the evening during the four or five or what have you, months that the legislature is in session.

"The salary, I have been told, is $300. My guess is that it would have cost me twice as much as that and when I got back at night I would have had to dig into the day's work. But I needn't worry about that now.

"I am due, however, for a bad half hour's session with my boss. The heads of the Putnam Light and Power Co. were not seeking to have me elected to the legislature no matter what the opinion is here in Putnam, nor are they anxious to have public sentiment stirred up in the way it was. I am going to be asked how I came to think I was a popular idol, and to if that the next time I am slated for political preferment—isn't that the right phrase—I had better consult the people who pay me my salary. But I've got a pretty settled conviction that there isn't going to be any next time. Being run over by a steam road roller is all right once for a person who isn't in the game. I can't imagine it happening twice."

At the request of more than twenty electors a special town meeting has been called in the Seminary hall at Woodstock to see if the action at the annual town meeting authorizing the building of the state highway from West Woodstock to the town of Eastford, will be changed.

There is a very general sentiment among the citizens that the action taken at the town meeting to build a road from Woodstock to Eastford—four miles at a cost of $100,000—will put too great a burden on the town, that it will mean a long standing debt. It would be built under the so called state aid system which means that the state would bear three-fourths of the expense and the town one fourth This would extend over a period of years but in the meantime the town would have to provide for the entire outlay until the legislature had appropriated a sufficient amount to reimburse Woodstock property owners.

Those in a position to know believe that the action taken at the annual meeting will be changed and this stretch of road will be built a small section at a time.

"Financial Facts" About CONNECTICUT

1. HISTORY

Since 1918, the debts of the 48 states as a whole increased 132%.

Connecticut indebtedness (most of which was Democratic inheritance) decreased 37%, so that today we are out of debt.

When the Baldwin administration came into office in 1911, Connecticut's net debt was $3,800,000.

The next four years of Democratic rule added over $7,000,000 to this debt, so that when the Holcomb, Republican, administration came into office in 1915, the net debt was over $10,900,000. No reserve of any kind was provided for the payment of this indebtedness.

War activities (State Council of Defense, Home Guard, Fuel Administration, Soldiers' Relief Fund of $2,500,000, etc.) added slightly over $5,000,000 to this indebtedness, so that in 1921 it was $16,291,000.

Since 1915 Republican administrations have been building up a sinking fund, to retire this indebtedness. In 1921 this fund was slightly over $9,000,000. Then Connecticut's "pay-as-you-go" policies began to show results.

No more bonds were issued. Money was consistently added to the sinking fund and the state's net indebtedness began to disappear. Appropriations for departments and institutions were kept well within the state's income, and yearly surpluses were the rule. In June, 1925, the state went "over the top." The sinking fund totaled over $12,000,000 and cash balances were $4,800,000, more than enough to offset the old indebtedness of $16,291,000.

During the past year the net surplus has grown still healthier so that:

Connecticut pays all its bills with current income. No bonds, notes or loans have been issued.

Connecticut's credit is the best of any state in America, because Connecticut doesn't do business on credit.

2. EXPENDITURES

Connecticut's per capita expenditures (total government costs) increased, since 1918, 62%.

The total cost of government in the 48 states as a whole increased 123%, twice that of Connecticut.

3. INCOME

The increase in total income of the 48 states as a whole since 1918 was 92%.

(1918-1924)

The 48 states as a whole increased their percentage of income twice as much as Connecticut, but it required only half the percentage of increase in expenditures to run Connecticut that the states as a whole expended. Connecticut, in addition, paid all its bills and retired its indebtedness.

4. TAXATION

From 1917 to 1922 (last figures available, Federal Trade Commission) the 48 states as a whole increased taxes for state purposes 101%.

Connecticut's increase was about 15%. This was the lowest increase of any state.

5. TAXATION, 1914-1926

In 1914, the 4th year of Democratic administration, 89% of Connecticut's income was derived from taxation and loans.

In 1926, under Republican administration, only 59% of Connecticut's income is derived from taxation. The state does not need to borrow money, so there are no loans today.

In 1914 the income from departments and institutions of the state from services, fees, licenses, board, tuition, sales of products, etc., comprised but 11% of the state's total income. The balance came from taxes and loans.

In 1926 income from departments and institutions from the sources referred to comprised 41% of the state's total income.

Republican administrations have made many of the state's various departments and institutions as nearly self-sustaining as is consistent with increased efficiency.

No state in the Union can show a better financial record than Connecticut!

This gratifying condition is due to the honest and conscientious labor of the men and women comprising the majorities upon whom the responsibility of government always rests, in the Connecticut legislature, various state departments and institutions, and the state's executives.

PARIS, Oct. 25 (AP)—The funeral garb of the conventionally-dressed waiter has proven too sombre for diners who want to savor the traditional gaiety of Paris, and some of the larger resturants are experimenting with new uniforms.

HAND SIGNALS

According to the October bulletin of the state motor vehicle department it is proposed that the next legislature be asked to include in the state motor vehicle law a specific code of hand signals for motorists.

In the days of horse drawn vehicles there was never a thought of telling the driver in back what it was planned to do, which way you were going to turn or if you were going to stop. Vehicles traveled at a rate which made it unnecessary. If they happened to be close together it was easy for one to avoid the other. But in these days of rapid traveling, when drivers are ready to cut ahead, when others persist in keeping close to the car ahead and when drivers stop suddenly, or shoot to the right or the left from the lanes of traffic, it has become necessary for those who are going to stop, or turn to indicate their action by signalling with their left hand.

Such is possible under most circumstances and takes but little time. One important factor in this connection is the matter of uniformity. If signals are going to be given they should be all alike. An extended arm should not mean that one driver was going to stop and that another was going to turn to the left. One signal cannot be expected to mean a half dozen things to the driver behind, so in the interest of uniformity the plan to have a specific code established is an excellent one.

But will such action place the responsibility upon the car ahead in case of an accident in case no signal is given. Closed car signalling is more or less difficult. There are occasions when the discovery of dangerous places in the road or the stopping of a car ahead necessitates quick action on the part of others, so much so that there's no time to give a signal, and others when the working of the emergency and the holding of the wheel would make it impossible to have a hand out of the window. In many instances the rear warning light serves to show that a car is being braked and that of necessity means slowing down and the condition calls for the exercise of caution on the part of others. Those who persist in following too closely cannot expect to rely upon hand signalling from ahead. There must be a reasonable amount of responsibility assumed by all drivers under all conditions, but the desirability of a code of signals cannot be gainsaid.

HASTENING JUSTICE

In many ways there has been disclosed the need of speeding justice. This has been brought home to court officials and to courts. Frequently it has been pointed out that new and considerable delays in criminal cases can be expected because of the taking of such cases to the highest court in the land.

The United States supreme court through the chief justice has frequently made suggestions for the speeding up of cases and in connection with the delays which are frequently too great, evidence of its determination to do its part once more is furnished by the announcement that 18 of the criminal cases now on its docket will be advanced for an early hearing and in the future the court on its own initiative will push the criminal cases forward as fast as it can.

The court sees its opportunity for setting an example. It always has a big docket before it, and many of the cases are of much importance, but in most instances the civil cases can give way to the criminal without serious harm and where that can be done the court proposes henceforth to do it.

There is much that can be done by those having cases before any of the courts, including the supreme court, to speed up the hearing of them. Delays are of court part of the scheme to escape the effects of trials, to avoid or lighten the punishment and to dodge the law. It is because of the delays, technicalities and the failure to mete out justice that there is so much disrespect for law, and so strong a disposition on the part of a mob to take the administration of justice into its own hand.

The rights of the accused should by all means be respected, accused should have their trials and be penalized only on conviction, but greater respect for the courts and less inclination to lynch law would result if cases were not subjected to all kinds of time-killing delays in the expectation that such waiting will bring advantages.

LONG SUFFERING ARMENIA

One might suppose that Armenia had already suffered enough without the visitation of the latest calamity. But such disasters are not distributed according to the large amount or small amount of suffering that has previously been inflicted. Armenia's earthquake or volcanic regions have reasons that particular region, where similar troubles have been experienced before, quite the same as the recent quakes in San Francisco are reminders of what has gone before on a much larger scale. Those residing in the earthquake or volcanic regions have reasons to believe that what has happened before can be expected again, however much they might wish otherwise.

But the Armenians have had much more to contend with than earthquakes and volcanoes. They might consider themselves fortunate if these were their only troubles. They have suffered enough at the hands of the Turks to drive other than a hardy and determined nation out of existence. Massacred, crushed, severely penalized and driven into exile, they have fought against great and overpowering difficulties. If a verdict was to be reached it is confidently believed that it would be agreed that they had suffered enough.

From all corners of the globe assistance has been extended to them. Even now thousands are getting assistance through the medium of organizations which are doing out the contributions of a sympathetic world. Their plight has opened the hearts and pocketbooks. The children are receiving aid which in a large degree would otherwise be denied, and many others are looking to the kindness of more fortunate people for part of their food and clothing as they struggle against big odds.

The visitation of this additional hardship, with the killing of many, the injuring of a greater number and the destruction of much property in the city better known by the name of Alexandropol comes at a time when much reconstruction work had been done and means that much of it must be done over. Long suffering Armenia will accept it with the same fortitude as in the past and judging from the past it will not be forgotten by its sympathetic friends throughout the world.

NEW YORK'S CURFEW

It may seem a bit out of place and out of date, but New York is thinking about a curfew law. That thinking has got to the point of action and while no one authority has the complete right to put it in operation, one can apparently prevent it.

Because the board of estimate of the city assembly has given its unanimous aproval to the idea of a curfew law it can be said to be making progress. The necessary first steps have been taken. It now remains for the aldermanic branch to act upon it and if that is favorable the mayor can put the law in operation or crush it, and inasmuch as he is said to be in favor of it his action seems a foregone conclusion.

But New York isn't planning to shut up the town at nine or ten o'clock in the evening. New York is only starting at that time and the mayor and the city government has no idea of stopping anything like a pleasant evening for the people of New York by starting and trying to enforce a curfew law that will put the lights out that early.

New York's curfew law calls for the other amusement places at 2 a. m. The other amusement places at 3a. m. The mayor thinks the revelers ought to get home before the toilers start out for work, in order not to create a bad impression upon the working class. That doesn't mean the institution of any decided reform in the big city. Rather does it appear to be more in line with the idea of cutting hours in other directions. Of course if they cannot work only so many hours they ought not to play all the rest of the time or to put bad notions in the heads of those who are willing to work some of the time.

Somehow the idea of a curfew law and New York city are hard to consider together. They are disposed to clash much like oil and water. Perhaps the outcome will be that hilarity in the metropolis will go uncurbed and those honest toilers going to work who might be disturbed by the sight of the revelers will be required to go to work a few hours later. New York has ways of its own.

A SET OF DISHES

"I'll say you are the prompt lady," said Gwendolyne, the yellow-headed ticket dispenser, as she slid into the glass case and found her coadjutor already ensconced.

"Yeah," replied dark-haired Sue, very languidly. "Ain't you found out yet in your young life that the earlier you don't go to bed the sooner you wake next day? This is the next day for me, and she yawned so widely that every one of her 32 very white and shining teeth appeared and then in a moment vanished.

"Dancin'?"

"And then some. I'm just dead on my feet. • • • But we did have a good time. D'you ever hear of a couple name of Charlie May, Charlie J. May, that works at that assembling plant over in Ravenswood? We was all over at their place. We was all out dancin', you see, an' then this May couple says come on over and fix up a snack of late supper. So we went. • • •

"This wife of Charlie May's, she's a case. Laugh, and talk, and carry on • • • my goodness! She is a smart one, too, for she's married, and she's some great lawyer's private secretary. • • •"

"I bet he don't know she's married, though?"

"Yes, he does. She said she was awful afraid to get married for fear he'd fire her, the way they do. But she said she just didn't have the nerve to get married and pretend she wasn't the way so many girls have to do nowadays, so she told him. She says he's a right human old bird and give her a raise for a wedding present.

"Well, so they got married, and his folks and her folks they give 'em furnishin' for the flat, an' some of their kin give 'em an e-normous set of dishes. My land, girl, you never saw such a lot of dishes, different sizes, plates and cups and sauce dishes, hundreds of pieces.

"Well, so they say amongst themselves, with her keeping on work and all, 'Let's save all we can,' they say, 'and not have any cleaning done or anything.' He says: 'Hon,' he says, 'we'll do it together, evenings,' he says and, she's game, and they start out Every Friday evening, or Saturday afternoon, or at least Sunday morning, if they can get up in time, or stay at home, or haven't got a bid they're bound and determined to keep, they give the flat and everything a good old going-over, and it's all as merry as the marriage bell.

"But this girl, this Hazel May, she says they just naturally can't either one of 'em turn down a bid to do something; they're off to work at 8 in the morning, and they rush home to wash up at 5, and then out somewhere, and so it goes on. You know.

"Then was ten of us last night countin' them, an' we goes in. Right spang up close to the door's a card table, all set with the leavin's of a meal on it. In the middle of the room's the leavin's of another. On the chiffarobe's another. On the davenette's another. Of course, on the dining table there's a spread out, one at each end. Kitchen table one. Bedroom table one. My soul, girl, I do believe if they'd of had enough more tables there'd been a lay-out of dishes left from some meal or other on every one, because by the side of the phonograph on the floor's two cups and two plates, where'd been a meal, and then set off, so's to start a tune.

"We get in, for a bite to eat, mind you, and we see this lineup of dishes. Laugh? We nearly died. Hazel May, and Charlie May, they laughed the most of any of us. They said, well what was the use of all that e-normous set of dishes on shelves. So they just used them, piling as many in the sink as it would hold, till they got to the end of the set, and goin' out every night world-without-end."

"What did you all do?" asked the yellow-headed one, and as she did so she prepared piles of change, for the hour of opening was at hand.

"Yes, that wasn't so bad, too," said the other. "The five boys take off their coats and Charlie May he takes his place at the sink, and the girls give each one the boys a dish towel, clean, thank goodness, and they washes that whole e-normous set of 235 pieces of china, and in the meantime us girls slices bread and butter, and as soon as we can reach the stove we cook some bacon and eggs and make some dandy hot coffee, and then we put all those dishes away, and now," with a spitting yawn, "those Mays can start in and use their set of dishes all the way through again." — Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE PROVES ITSELF IN FLORIDA

By Franklin Martin, M. D.
President Gorgas Memorial Institute

Scientific medicine is proving itself again on a tremendous scale in the stricken areas of Florida, especially in those cities where the water and sanitary systems are completely destroyed.

Without the knowledge which scientific medicine has at its command and is putting into practice, the toll of dead of the aftermath would exceed by many hundreds the number of dead from the hurricane.

"Pestilence Feared in Hurricane Area" was the headline in many of the newspapers in the United States following the disaster. Local officials warned the people against danger of typhoid fever from drinking water that had become polluted.

There was not a sufficient supply of water of known purity for all, but water treated with chlorine was available, and as a precautionary measure against contracting typhoid, the people were advised to get vaccinated against typhoid. These two things, chlorine and "typhoid shots," are contributions of scientific medicine which will save many from sickness and death.

To guard against lockjaw, always feared after a calamity of this nature, antitetanic serum was brought from many cities. Two hundred and eighty thousand units reached Miami from Richmond, Va., by airplane. Given in time and in sufficient quantities, it prevents lockjaw.

Not so many years ago an experience such as the suffering of southern Florida have gone through would inevitably have resulted in epidemics of disease, fatal to many more than have lost their lives.

In addition to the few safety measures just mentioned, we in civil life have at our command other guardians against disease which will absolutely protect. I need only to mention how vaccination protects against smallpox, toxin-antitoxin against diphtheria, and the newer serums against scarlet fever.

Despite these protecting discoveries more than 2,000,000 people die in the United States every year who should live on living many years beyond the period of their demise. They die from causes because they did not realize, and, when one of the vital organs of the body wears out through neglect or abuse, they cannot go down to the corner drug store and buy another.

No one had ever told them that wrong habits of living, such simple things as too much food, not enough exercise, too hard work, are possible of cutting off many years from the life span.

All that the Gorgas Memorial asks is that you treat your bodies with as much care as you give your automobile. Have a physical examination once a year by your family physician so that you may be warned of incipient disease before your body is ruined beyond repair. Take advantage of all the wonderful discoveries that will guard you from disease. Then your life will be longer and happier.

Stories That Recall Others

Laundry Saving

When Mrs. Jones was gathering soiled clothes Monday morning she found several handkerchiefs with a huge knot tied in each of them.

When Howard was asked the reason for them, he replied:

"Well, mother, you see, I always have a clean hanky that way. I tie a knot in it before I go to school, then when my hands get dirty I undo the knot and use the nice clean part and tie a knot in the dirty part so it won't show."

Something To Worry About

Sixteen year old Joseph and his sister have begun to have "double dates" together. The other evening Joseph was to accompany his sister and her steady and sister's chum for a drive.

He came in for his mother to tie his tie and then slipped into the room where his sister was curling her hair. His mother listened to their conversation and heard her son say: "Now look here, Virginia, you go easy on the eats tonight. Remember it's your brother's time to pay the bill."

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

The Art of Reading

"The most important step toward getting mental power is the acquisition of a right method in work and a just standard of attainment," says President Elliott. The secret of success in reading is concentration. The mind must be focused like a lens on just those books and just those parts of them that are needed to accomplish the desired object. Have a definite purpose and do not allow yourself to be turned aside from it. There are those who read merely to get over a certain number of pages and say that they have read a book. Printed words run before their eyes and make no impression on their minds. In this age of hurry many rush through books as trains rush through tunnels.

The true reader makes his reading give an account of itself. After you have read a few pages stop and think it over and arrange it in your mind. It takes time to ripen, the best growth is slow.

SENATOR BINGHAM SEEN BY OTHER SENATORS

Senator Hiram Bingham, as viewed by his associates in the United States senate:

"Senator Bingham has already achieved a fine position in the senate. His industry and ability have been of the greatest value in committee work. All his colleagues on the military committee recognize and appreciate this. On the floor of the senate he speaks clearly and fearlessly and, being a student of public affairs, his words carry weight. His general ability and his loyalty to the republican party and the Coolidge administration make him an especially valuable senator not only in the service of the state but in the nation. I know I am speaking the sentiments of all his republican colleagues when I express the hope that Connecticut will re-elect Senator Bingham."

JAMES W. WADSWORTH, JR.,
United States Senator, New York.

(Senator Wadsworth is chairman of the committee on military affairs, of which committee Senator Bingham is a member).

"Senator Bingham is alert, courageous, and useful in every way. No member of the committee renders more acceptable service. Furthermore, not only does he do his committee work well, but he is always present on the floor of the senate and participates with ability in the discussions; he has the respect of his colleagues without reference to political considerations. Senator Bingham is an excellent presiding officer and is frequently called upon by the vice president to preside over the senate.

"I feel that he is in every way a worthy successor of the splendid men who have heretofore represented Connecticut in the senate."

FRANK B. WILLIS,
United States Senator, Ohio.

(Senator Willis is chairman of the committee on territories and insular possessions, of which committee Senator Bingham is a member. He is also a member of the committee on commerce with Senator Bingham).

Little Talks on Thrift

PROTECTS THE FUTURE

Thrift is an insurance policy against failure.

Those who practice it consistently and truly, may be sure of the fact that they shall never fail entirely. They may not gain the great heights of success, they may not become the possessors of tremendous wealth or power, but they may be assured that they shall always hold an honored, respected place in the affairs of men.

These facts are too little appreciated. One of life's greatest tragedies is to become a dependent in the autumn of life. One of the most poignant sources of worry to many is the fact that when they shall have reached old age, they shall be dependent on the bounty of others.

Conversely, there is constant happiness and contentment of mind to those who practice thrift in enjoying that the calm, serene days of their old age will be lived in financial independence.

There is a whole world of difference between the outlook of those who are making no provision for the future years and those who are slowly, steadily building up their personal resources. The difference is so great that one wonders how it is possible for any sensible person to drift along to certain failure when a comparatively small effort and sacrifice will place them on the roadway leading to absolute independence.

The practices of thrift carry certain personal inconveniences. They mean the giving up of certain pleasures and comforts. But how much it is to give up a few or these during the years when we are strong and in good health than to face poverty and distress when our old years are upon us.

Thrift is an investment in happiness that pays handsome returns. Present pastimes and pleasures are forgotten. The joys of thrift abide with us as long as we live, bringing ever and ever more substantial joy.—American Society for Thrift.

CHILD TRAINING

WAKING WILLIAM

Minerva Hunter

"I don't know what I am going to do when William gets old enough to go to school," Mrs. Goodman told her husband's sister who was visiting her. "He never will be on time or if he is on time he will be too stupid to learn."

"I have never thought of William as being stupid," his Aunt Frances answered.

"That is because he has been allowed to sleep as long as he pleased since you have been here," the mother said. "Wait until tomorrow morning when we have to catch the early train. He will be dull and will whine all day."

The next morning the grown folks were up early to get ready for the trip. Frances went to William's bed first thing and took hold of his arms and worked them gently back and forth.

"For goodness sake, Frances, don't wake William up yet! He will be cross as a bear, let him lie until the last minute," the mother admonished.

"Leave William to me," Frances replied. "I am going to have him up early and in a good humor."

Then she took William's legs and began working them gently. After this she turned him over and left him a few minutes while she continued her preparations for the day. Off and on for the next 20 minutes Frances worked William's arms and legs and then turned him over. Soon he was stretching himself, yawning and turning over by himself.

When his anxious mother came in to dress him he greeted her with a smile, announcing: "We are going to the seashore on the train!"

William stood the trip well and was in the best of spirits when they reached their destination. His mother was delighted and surprised. "You must explain the wonderful secret to me," she told Frances. "How did you manage to get William up early and have him in a good humor all day?"

"When I was a child I was hard to wake," Frances began. "Many a time I was taken from bed and dressed for school while I was half asleep. I would be too sick to eat breakfast and the whole day would go wrong. In the summer I was allowed to sleep as long as I pleased and I would always feel better. But school took up more than half the year and my health was not good. Mother took me to a doctor who explained that it is never good to get up suddenly after a night's sleep. The vital organs of the body are relaxed and should begin to work gradually. It is far better to stretch and yawn and turn over several times before getting out of bed. I was old enough at the time to understand what I should do. Mother would call me ahead of time so I could take my yawning and stretching exercises. I was interested and willing to do anything to feel better. Soon my dull days were over and I could enjoy breakfast all the year round."

"So it was the yawning and stretching exercises that you gave William this morning?" the mother asked.

"Yes, and if you will keep it up this summer, by autumn he will be doing it all by himself, I am sure," Frances answered.

"It certainly seems worth while," said the mother as she looked at her happy little boy splashing joyously in the water.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

SUSIE SEES THE AGGIES DOWN TRINITY AT STORRS ON SATURDAY

Susie over the week end attended the Connecticut Aggies-Trinity game at Gardner Dow field at Storrs and from her letter thinks pretty well of the Aggie team but not so much of Trinity. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Well whatda you think of them Aggies football teams? Pretty husky bunch of babies ain't they, old timer? Sure I saw you up to the game on Saturday, you and some of the other fellers from The Bulletin and Wally Moreland and Mr. Loisel from Willimantic all nice boys. Some game weren't it? What I mean is, it was some game for them future county agents but it were not so good for paying fellers what come over from Hartford.

Believe me, Ed, they must feed them football fellers pretty nice up there to grow 'em so big. Somebody said them footballers got all the nice cream and all the pick of the food and that's what makes 'em so healthy. Well, by golly, they oughta give 'em the college after the game they played Saturday. I have seen a lotta football games and they ain't none of 'em got nothing on that Aggie team, to say nothing about them sporty yellar jerseys. Them jerseys is what took my eye, they was such a wonderful shade of yellar. They was a lot better'n them one jerseys what Trinity had only we'd seen the dirt more.

Say Ed ain't that Williams feller a honey? Gosh ain't he the sweet little player? Gosh when that eyewas all going with that ball I'd been to hear the bones crack on the Trinity team. Believe me, if I was on the other team playing against him I should have business in some other part of the field when I saw him coming and if I couldn't get outa the way I'd shout "Demerade" and pray that Aman juggernaught would pass me up. Gosh, how I pities them fellers what get trod on by him for he sure carries a mean pair of hoofs. I seen Ted Grange and a coupla other of them big boys what monopolizes the headlines in the fall sport pages but Grange never walloped a line like that Williams boy. If he was on some big college team he'd have his picture in the papers most every day, but the Hartford papers don't pay much attention to a small school like the Aggies.

Then they was another feller by the name of Eddy who ain't no slouch when it comes to peeling off the old cardage and he slings a mighty mean forward pass too. When I hear them Aggie cheerers cheering for Eddy I says "Eddie who?" and somebody says, "Look at your program, you dumbell." and I finds that's his last name and not his front name. Another boy what looks mighty good to me is that Schofield boy. There's a mean runningg boy. Its here he comes and there he goes, with that baby. If that boy gets loose Charley Paddock would have a whale of a chance of catching him and Paddock ain't no truckk horse neither.

Another thing what I got a great kick outa was the way that Aggie line held 'em, the Trinity fellers. Gosh them boys what play up front don't get no cheers but if you ask me they do a lotta work which the crowd don't see. I was reading one piece writ by a feller what knows his onions when it comes to football and he says "watch the fellers in the line if you find out whether a team is good or not." If a team ain't got no line then your backfield fellers ain't got no chance to do no stuff. You see, Ed, I learned a lot about football in the last year.

Say I got quite a kick outa that funny stuff what they put on while both teams was resting up and putting court plaster on the wounds. Just because it was a dirty slap at poor Trinity who couldn't stop that Aggie team no more'n they could have stop the Twenty Century express. When them fellers come lugging out that coffin it reminded me of the time my pet cat died and I held a funeral service. Course everybody laffed but Trinity and Trinity couldn't have laffed if it had been the whole of the whole comedy outfit, they was so sore. Gosh I would have thought some of them fellers what was dressed up like girl ballet dancers would have been cold. One woman what sat near me says, "wouldn't you think them girls would have more sense than to come out dressed like that?" The old dear what was with her says, "them ain't girls, they is fellers, just look at them knees and you'll know." Then the lady, "just look in front of you and see that feller announcing the game over the radio." Gosh that dame wasn't taking no chances on John or that the ballet dancers might be girls after all.

Speaking of radio announcing, I never got the eye of that feller what was doing the talking, Randy Waffles, I think his name was but he wouldn't look at me. I was going to ask him to tell me tell them radio fans something about the game, but the boy scouts says I better lay off because I'd get make a fool of myself. Gosh that guy is always throwing cold water on things I wanta do but maybe he's right about that foolish part of it.

Well Ed, I sure enjoyed that game and I'm going up again some time. Them boys play a neat game of football, and I don't mean maybe. Some of them games are as good as I have seen in the bowl and at Boston or Providence. They oughta have a big bunch of football fans from this part of the state every Saturday they play at home. It's Connecticut's college and the folks oughta go and see what they is doing up there.

Say Ed, Didja hear that siren over to the bottle plant yesterday? Ain't that a whale of a tooter? Say when I asks somebody what it was they says its a siren and I says is that so? Well I looks up the word siren in that dictionary what I bought once and I finds siren means "a fabulous sea-nymph, half bird and half woman that lured sailors to destruction by song." Gosh that's awful ain't it Ed. to have one of them things in captivity. But let me tell you Ed. I can believe that about destroying themselves when they heard that noise. They probably shot themselves. I know I wanted to do some shooting when it woke me up but it wasn't myself what I wanted to shoot. They better let that sea-nymph go back to the seas or else put her up in the fire station to act as a fire alarm. It sounded just like the fire truck only much more louder and a lotta folks was rolled like that truck what looked into the hole on West Thames street. If them bottle people keep that thing around I'm going to move up in the country or I'm going to put cotton in my ears when I go to sleep.

Well so long Ed.

SUSIE.

A. A. U. COMES OUT FOR "PEACE AND HARMONY"

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)— The Amateur athletic union is for "peace and harmony, even if we have to fight for it," President Murray Hulbert declared today in reply to the charge of Brig Gen. Palmer F. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, that the A. A. U. planned an "aggressive campaign" to strengthen its hold on amateur sports.

Mr. Hulbert's statement was the latest development in a flareup between the two national sports bodies which have been at loggerheads on several occasions on matters of governing policy.

The present controversy has developed as a result of General Pierce's criticism of remarks attributed to Mr. Hulbert upon the latter's return from attending recent athletic conferences in Europe. In these, according to General Pierce, Mr. Hulbert was quoted as saying that the N. C. A. A. the National Amateur Athletic Federation and Y. M. C. A. were "causing discord and dissension" in athletics and that the A. A. U. would take steps to fight them in the south and west.

Mr. Hulbert said he had been misquoted, explaining:

"What I said was that there were activities in certain districts on the part of these three organization and that so far as I was concerned what we proposed to do was to destir ourselves as the national governing body. I said nothing about fighting these organizations."

One of the chief issues between the rival organizations has involved the sanction of international college competition, it being the desire of the N. C. A. A. to obviate the need of A. A. U. approval for foreign trips of college athletes.

PENN-ILLINOIS GAME FEATURE OF WESTERN GRIDS

CHICAGO, Oct. 25—(AP)—The football juggernaut of the university of Pennsylvania, nemesis of the western teams for a quarter of a century, threw its shadow tonight across the gridiron of the university of Illinois.

The team which routed Chicago ten days ago, and which in twenty games with western conference teams since 1899, has lost but five, comes to the Illini stadium Saturday, and it is coming with a grudge. For one of those five defeats was a smart licking administered last fall by Illinois, when Red Grange galloped through and around the easterners to convince them once and for all that he was a football player.

Zuppke counted noses today and found his squad in good shape after the less to Michigan Saturday. Successive tilts with Iowa and Michigan have given him no chance to point for the invaders, and because he has no Granges in his ranks this fall, he faces the task of his career if the Pennsylvanians are to be turned back.

His first maneuvre was to ask the easterners to paint black, their elbow pads, so his squad can distinguish between the pig skin and the Jersey leather.

Michigan will give the east such a spectacle as Pennsylvania will give the west. The Wolverines go east to meet the Navy and Yost will work this week toward the general development of his team, which showed all-around excellence in winning from Minnesota and Illinois. Michigan and the Navy both are undefeated and both aspire to national honors.

Of three western conferences illustrated for saturday, that between Minnesota and Wisconsin looms largest. The Badgers showed a formidable offensive against Indiana Saturday for the first time this season, but it needs much seasoning. The Gophers, likewise, finally have hit the stride they failed to strike against Notre Dame and Michigan and Spears promises a much more powerful team against Wisconsin than that which fell before early season foes. Wisconsin has lost no games, but it could not score against Purdue, whose defense is the weakest department of its game.

Northwestern, which beat Indiana 20 to 0 at Evanston ten days ago, meets the Hoosiers at Bloomington and is confident of making a clean sweep of the "series." Thistlethwaite, however, cudgelled his brains tonight to weld it into a stronger offensive unit. For Indiana, this is "just another football season," despite the heroic endeavors of a new coach, and Page planned new shifts in his lineup in an effort to increase its effectiveness.

Ohio State regards Chicago only as a minor hurdle in its quest for conference honors, but Wilce is armed to stem with a defense against Stagg's plays, while already dreaming some concession to the Michigan game November 13. The Maroons rallied slowly from the ignominy of defeat by Purdue, and concentrated on a defense against the slashing Buckeye assault.

Iowa began its preparation for Minnesota two weeks hence, in which the opening of Carroll College of Wisconsin Saturday will be just an incident.

Purdue, losing to the Northwestern game November 6, plays Indiana State normal in an effort to make its good machine better.

MULLIGAN SIGNS PERSSON AND McCARTHY FOR BOUT

HARTFORD, Oct. 25—(AP)—Promoter George Mulligan, of the Connecticut A. C., today announced he has signed Harry Persson of Sweden, and Pat McCarthy of Boston, for a ten-round bout in the Hartford State armory Monday evening, Nov. 8.

Munn Throws Cantonwine

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Wayne Munn, former heavyweight wrestling champion, threw Howard Cantonwine of Iowa, in eight minutes and four seconds tonight in a single tall man's Munn, making his first appearance here, pinned Cantonwine to the mat with a crotch hold and half-Nelson after throwing him heavily.

Rocky Smith Gets Decision

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Rocky Smith, Battle Creek, Mich., was awarded a judges' decision over Del Fontaine, Canada, at the end of a ten-round bout tonight. Smith weighed barely 1-2 pounds; Fontaine, 156. Each drove a knockdown.

Lowry Out of Game

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Lawrence Lowry, brilliant Holy Cross halfback, suffered two broken bones in his right ankle in the game with Western Maryland here, Saturday and it is feared he may be lost to the Crusaders for the remainder of the season.

"DONIE" BUSH SIGNS ONE-YEAR CONTRACT TO MANAGE PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Owen J. (Donie) Bush, manager of the Indianapolis American baseball club, has signed a one year contract to pilot the Pittsburgh Nationals in 1927, Pirate officials announced tonight.

Bush will succeed Bill McKechnie who was informed last week by President Barney Dreyfuss that his services would no longer be required. Pirate followers at the time expressed the opinion that McKechnie's discharge was an outgrowth of internal dissension in the ranks of the world's champions of 1925.

Bush was prominently mentioned in connection with the Pittsburgh managerial berth, as was Art Fletcher, of Philadelphia.

In announcing Bush's appointment Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the Pittsburgh club said the contract covered only the season of 1927. He refused to make public the financial clause of the paper.

Bush, manager of the Indianapolis team for three years, formerly managed the Washington Senators. As a big league player he started with Detroit at shortstop.

Bush, aged 36 years, a native of Indianapolis, began his baseball career with an independent outfit at Sault Ste Marie in 1905, late in 1908, after playing shortstop with Saginaw, Mich., Dayton, Ohio, South Bend and Indianapolis, he was drafted by the Detroit Americans. He had a good season with the Tigers in 1909 and broke into the Detroit-Pittsburgh world's series that fall. He remained with the Tigers until the fall of 1921. The next year he played with the Washington Americans and in 1923 was made manager of the Senators.

After a year as Washington pilot Bush went to Indianapolis where, for the past three seasons, he managed the Indianapolis association outfit, during his reign the Indianapolis club finished in second place each season.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGHORNS ARE WINNERS AT STORRS

The race has been run, it was a good fight, and Toivonen's Leghorn Farm from Girard, Penn., kept the faith to the tune of 2,361 eggs. These ten Pennsylvania pullets then are the champion layers in the 10th annual laying contest conducted by the Connecticut Agricultural college. The winning pen was at Storrs for two months without attracting any particular attention. Late in January these birds climbed to third place in their class, but the rigors of winter put them off their stride. They fell down and it looked for a time as if they were out. March opened with these birds back in their old position and before the end of April they were leading the Leghorns. In mid-summer they passed a pen of Rhode Island Reds that had held the pole for a solid six months from January to July. From that time on the Pennsylvania birds were not to be denied. At the finish on October 23rd they had a margin of an even three dozen eggs over their closest competitor, a pen of Leghorns owned by R. W. Coleman, of Medina, N. Y.

John Z. Labelle, of Baltouville, had the best Connecticut birds in the contest. His pen of Rhode Island Reds made the highly respectable score of 2,132 eggs for the year. In the Barred Rock class, R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Maine, won over the Ontario Agricultural college by a majority of 73 eggs. In the White Rock group, Albert T. Lenzon of North Attleboro, Mass., was an easy first. There was no walking when the Wyandottes went to bat. Pullets entered by The Locusts of West Cornwall Conn., beat their Rhode Island rivals with only 57 eggs to spare, but much of a lead when one notes that the combined lay of these two pens exceeded 4,000 eggs. As already indicated the prize pen in the contest hailed from Pennsylvania. The second best pen was tied in New York state, the third best in Ontario, the fourth in Massachusetts and then followed in order Alabama, New Jersey and Connecticut. One naturally infers from these figures that there are some mighty good chickens in wide, separated sections of the country.

The race started on November 1st, 1925, and continued for 52 weeks, closing on October 23rd last. The contest comprised 100 pens of birds each, a total of 1,600 hens from 32 different states and the Province of Ontario, Canada. These birds laid a grand total of 217,744 eggs or nearly 17,000 better than the record of the previous year. The subjoined table shows the number of birds in each of the respective varieties, the average individual egg yield for the year and the general average for all breeds entered in the competition.

720	W. Rocks and other varieties	1,980
340	Rhode Island Reds	1,000
100	White Wyandottes	1,500
76	Barred Rocks	1,867
880	White Leghorns	1,700
1400	Averages for 52 breeds	1,823

In addition to the cash prizes awarded to individual breeds and pedigree purposes, there is a special section in knowing who are the Babe Ruths in poultrydom. The outstanding performance in this regard was the record of a White Leghorn pullet owned by the Marquis Poultry Farm, from Toms River, N. J. Her number was 1277 and she had, unaided and alone, 153 eggs during the course of the year in the Rhode Island Red class her No. 455 bred by George B. Trindwall of Spencer, Mass., headed the list with a score of 270 eggs. Among the Wyandotte entries hen No. 335 owned by The Locusts of West Cornwall, Conn., made best play with a tally of 251 eggs. W. H. B. Kendall's hen No. 32 from Cazenovia, N. Y., showed up as the best Barred Rock with a total of 247 eggs. White Rock honors went to S. Bedford Allen of Hyannis, Mass., who scored a head of her class with a record of 232 eggs during the progress of the contest.

CRUCIAL GAMES FACE UNBEATEN ELEVENS ON NEXT SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Eleven major teams responded to the roll call of the unbeaten today undaunted by clouds which frowned threateningly on their hopes to survive another big week-end along the gridiron front next Saturday.

At least one clean slate is certain to chronicle its initial defeat, barring rain, for Washington and Jefferson and Lafayette, each of which has won six successive games, meet in Philadelphia.

Most of the remaining nine aggregations—Army, Brown, Navy, Cornell, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York university, Holy Cross and Boston college—found little excuse to subdue confidence. Crucial contests are ahead for all but the latter two.

Holy Cross is not expected to encounter strong opposition from Dayton university in an intersectional clash at Worcester, Mass., while Boston college, the only eleven unscored on in the east, faces West Virginia Wesleyan. But indications are that at least one of the pair will be stricken from the list before the close of the season, since they collide head-on in their closing game on Nov. 27 at Boston.

Of the others, the most seriously threatened appear to be Navy, Army and Brown. Against the Midshipmen at Baltimore, Md., will be pitted powerful and undefeated Michigan. The Middies were submerged under a shower of Friedmen passes last year, 26-0, but they appear far better equipped to combat the wolverines this season.

Encouraged by Brown's victory over Yale Saturday, Army levels its guns at New Haven with confidence of throwing a few more rounds of shot through the Blue-Blanketed New Haven Bulldog. But there were unmistakable signs of stiffening Yale opposition, for Tad Jones expects repairs to his embattled machine, with Caldwell and Noble returning to backfield and Fishwick to his post at end.

Dartmouth beaten successively by Yale and Harvard, nevertheless appears menancingly before Brown, while Columbia swings into the path of the husky Cornell brigade to give Dobie's team its first severe test in the east.

Sharing the spotlight with the Michigan-Navy struggle on the intersectional card will be the clash of Pennsylvania and Illinois at Urbana, Ill. The Wuaer team, with one of the highest-powered and most deceptive offensives in the east, appeared confident of balancing accounts with Zupke's Cohorts for the devastation wrought by Red Grange a year ago. Eastern critics seemed agreed that Coach Lou Young would take into the mid-west one of the most brilliant scoring machines ever developed at Pennsylvania.

There will be another clash of unbeaten teams at Morgantown, West Va., briging together West Virginia and Missouri. Records appear to justify the installing of the mountaineers as favorites. They have won all of their games, while Missouri was tied by Tulane and Southern Methodist.

Ne wYork university draws Fordham, a traditional foe, and indications point strongly to a reversal of last year's result. With a rugged, hard-running team which has Brusnedk aside five opponents, Meehen's N. Y. U. aggregation appeared primed to partially balance overwhelming defeats suffered in 1924 and 1925.

WESTERLY

SHORE RESORTS HARD HIT IN SUNDAY'S STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 25—Sunday's storm accompanied by heavy rainfall and strong southerly winds, caused the Pawcatuck river to overflow its bank at high tides on Monday along its lower reaches. The small island, known as "Joe's" from its former occupant, Joe Alcorn, just below the Broad street Pawcatuck river highway bridge, had its ends submerged by the high waters. The 20-foot power boat of William L. Knowles of Pawcatuck had its side caught under the incline at the Willow wharf in Misquamicut, filled with water and Capt. Savage operations were employed by Capt. David Neubert and [illegible] of Watch Hill with a chain to the fishing boat, towed down the river, landed onto the river bank below the Willow dock to be pumped out at high tide.

Hay taken from the Pawcatuck river was blown from Thompson's cove across the Western Watch Hill highway and like from Beachman's pond across Atlantic avenue, at the east end of Pleasant View beach. At Quonchantaug beach high water was reported across the beach bank. An auto was picked up off the Westerly-Watch Hill road on Monday afternoon, and some damage by a mass of [illegible] boats were blown [illegible] cottages at Pleasant View and Weekapaug. At the Alba Inn the new electric flashing sign was blown [illegible] smashed.

Westerly residents will be favored by being enabled to hear Sir Gifford Gordon of Australia, who was the principal speaker at the State W. C. T. U. convention in East Greenwich last week, when he delivers an address in Grace Methodist church Wednesday evening under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U. His Prohibition Worth England has been announced as his topic. He is also scheduled for addresses at several other Rhode Island cities.

The History of Westerly and neigh- boring communities will be available in a few days in the process of publication. A volume presented in the Olden Time, made up of songs of antiquity written by Judge Elias B. Hackley of Stonington, personally or the press. It is being privately printed by Judge William A. Wilcox of Stonington.

The Westerly Historical society, through its publication committee, is [illegible] a group of historical papers and will probably be issued in book form within the next few months.

On Sunday at his home, 13 Smith street, Pawcatuck, occurred the death of James Keenan. Mr. Keenan had been a resident of Pawcatuck for about 65 years. He was a tool sharpener by trade and worked in the years for the Shaw Granite company. Forty-nine years ago he was married to Miss Mary Murphy in St. Michael's church. Besides his wife he leaves six sons, Dennis J., John F., Daniel H., Michael A., Charles L. and Edward L. Keegan. He is also survived by four brothers, John, Benjamin and Dennis Keegan of Westerly and Michael Keegan of Norwich.

Frank L. Furness, proprietor of the Elm Tree Inn on West Broad street, was elected a member of the board of governors of the New England Hotel association at the annual meeting of the organization held last week at the Lord Jeff Inn in Amherst, Mass.

The meeting opened Wednesday, when the business session was held, with a banquet in the evening followed by dancing. The second day was given over to sightseeing, with the annual golf tournament being held on the Mt. Tom course.

Oct. 22. Fannie Nina Ingham to John P. Ingham an undivided interest in a parcel of land on the east side of Main street with buildings and improvements.

Ella Keck Perin of Baltimore, Md., to Samuel P. Rotan and wife Alethaire L. Rotan of Philadelphia, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, a certain lot or parcel of land at the southwesterly corner of Minigret and Nardine avenues, Watch Hill, with all the buildings and other improvements, furniture and furnishings.

Oct. 23. Susan A. Vose to George T. Howard and wife, Catherine E. Howard a certain lot or parcel of land on the west side of Benefit street.

Payment of Westerly town taxes continues at a rapid rate at the office of the Westerly town treasurer and collector. At the end of last week's business $169,462.50 of the total of $340,115.30 tax to be collected had been paid into the treasury. Two-thirds of the taxpayers who have not opened accounts, there remaining about 2,000 yet to make settlement. In the amount collected were represented 565 poll tax payers. In order to avoid the payment of a 12 per cent interest charge the payment of taxes will have to be completed by next Saturday night. The last year the town tax bills have been without the 3 per cent discount which has been allowed in previous years on taxes paid between the 15th and 30th of the month of October.

Are You "Toxic?"

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits retention of waste poisons in the blood. This is called a "toxic condition." Symptoms are a dull, languid feeling and often toxic headache, backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is sometimes shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many people assist their kidneys in this condition by drinking plenty of pure water and the use of a stimulant diuretic. Doan's Pills have earned a country-wide reputation as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Users everywhere endorse them. Ask your neighbor!

POETRY

The Enduring

If the autumn ended
Ere the birds flew southward,
If in the cold with weary throats
They vainly strove to sing,
Winter would be eternal;
Leaf and bush and blossom
Would never once more riot
In the spring.

If remembrance ended
When life and love are gathered,
If the world were not living
Long after one is gone,
Song would not sing, nor sorrow
Stand at the door in evening;
Life would vanish and slacken
Men would be changed to stone.

But there will be autumn's beauty
Drooping upon our weariness,
There will be hopes unspoken
And joys to haunt us still;
There will be dawn and sunset
Though we have cast the world away
And the leaves dancing
Over the hill.

—John Gould Fletcher in Athenaeum

Please!

Words, words,
Ye are like birds:
Would I might fold you
In my hands and hold you
Till ye were warm and your feather a flutter;
Till, in your throats,
Tremulous notes
Foretold the songs ye would utter

Words, words,
Ye are all birds:
Would ye might linger
Here on my finger,
Till I kissed each, and then sent you a-winging
Wild, perfect flight,
Through morn to night,
Singing, singing, and singing!

—Josephine Preston Peabody, in the Indianapolis News.

The latter is just a common dog, but he is an aristocrat in that he has a $5,000 bank account Mr. Feidler, fearing that the dog might not receive proper care in the event of his master's sudden departure from this world, has deposited that sum in the bank to be devoted to the care of the animal.

Explorers in the Central American jungle may find a substitute for the milk of animals in a tree that has just come to scientific attention. The aboreal cow is "milked" by cutting into the bark and the liquid that pours forth is "rich and creamy, palatable and sweet to taste," according to its discoverer, Professor S. J. Record, of the department of forest products at Yale University. Several other varieties of "cow trees" grow in tropical South America, but thus far the one in Guatemala is the one found farthest north, on the continent of North America. Scientists say that its occurrence in Guatemala is a matter of interest, since a related species in Colombia is said to yield chicle, the basic principle of chewing gum.

The motor car is causing the extinction of the common house fly, it is asserted by Dr. Charles V. Chapin, superintendent of health of the city of Providence, R. I. "Each year, as the automobiles have increased in number," Dr. Chapin explained in support of his statement, "the flies have diminished, and of late years the decrease has been quite noticeable. The reason lies in the fact that the auto has done away with the demand for horses. This being so, there are fewer stables today than ever before. Naturally, this has resulted in a decrease of manure piles, which have been the principal breeding place of flies. Contrary to popular fancy in many cases flies do not breed in garbage. Manure is the principal source of their propagation." Dr. Chapin's explanation is supported by a census of Providence stores, where it has been found that fly paper is no longer an article for which there is much demand.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With only a few more weeks of good building weather left local contractors are putting forth every effort to complete the work now in hand and to bring buildings where work has just started to a point where it can be finished regardless of inclement weather conditions. The past week has been very favorable to building and good progress has been made on a number of the larger projects now in hand.

Peck, McWilliams Co. in charge of the work of building the new home for the Dime Savings bank on Broadway has made good progress on the new building. During the past week the first floor of the building has been practically laid and it is expected that the steel work for the second floor and walls will be started this coming week. These contractors have also completed the work on the addition to the United Congregational church and are practically finished with the addition to the Community house on Church street.

The work of erecting the new hydrant system put in for the City of Norwich is about to get under way by Peck, McWilliams Co., who were awarded the contract a short time ago.

A number of the dwelling houses, garages and smaller buildings that have been in the progress of construction were completed during the past week. There has been a large number of frame buildings erected in the city during the year, especially garages.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week there were several applications for new buildings and these permits will be granted during the present week. The month of October is running far ahead of the present year monthly average and it is expected will set the record for the year.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 10 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, exactly the same number as for the corresponding week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the past week were $4,865 and for the same week a year ago were $40,350.

In New London during the past week there were 17 sales of real estate, one instrument of two sales over a month ago. For the same week last year the number of sales was 15 and the amount $40,350.

Building Permits in State

Building activity in Connecticut is falling off well to the rear for last year. There were 433 building permits issued during the week in the state's principal building centers, as compared with 608 permits for the corresponding week in 1925. The total estimated cost of construction work started was less this past week, being $1,470,404, against $1,502,346 for the week during the same period.

National Building Survey

Statistics dealing with the building industry throughout the country, as published by S. W. Straus & Co., show a gain of 16 per cent in the amount of building permits filed during September over the 493 principal municipalities compared with September, 1925. The same cities last year showed a gain of 9 per cent over August. As recently reported in The Commercial Record, there was a falling off in the number of building permits issued in this state during September when compared with the like month a year ago.

After some delay pending a change in plans that would provide a larger display window work is again progressing rapidly on the brick and hollow tile addition to the building at 93 Main street for Emil Seifert. The new structure has a 14 foot frontage in Main street and runs back 35 feet. The front is of tapestry brick.

Plans are being prepared for the alteration of the store at 88 State street formerly occupied by the New England Hardware and Crockery company. New plate glass fronts will be installed in copper frames and with marble trim. A tile entrance will be set with a composition floor and a metal ceiling for the interior. New shelving and mirrors also will be installed. The new store will be occupied by a shoe store and modern fixtures including electrical work and X-ray reflectors are included in the plans.

A local contractor has been awarded the contract for a cement block building residence for R. E. Barry of New York to be erected on Pequot avenue. Plans prepared by the owner specify a dwelling 24 by 34 feet, a garage 10 by 20 feet, will also be erected.

The garage is of colonial effect with cement floors and the interior divided into separate compartments for individual car owners.

A two story frame dwelling, old and badly in need of repair, or replacement, has been razed for Perry and Stone, owners and work started on a commercial garage on the site at 37 Church street. The new garage will be a concrete block construction with a frame roof and plans specify a building 44 by 30 feet in dimension. The new garage will be adjacent to the privately rented garage formerly erected in the rear of the present site. Workmen are now engaged in setting the foundation of concrete.

NORWICH CREDITORS TESTIFY AGAINST HOLLOWAY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—Harry F. Holloway, of Groton, who was a traveling salesman for the Hatch company, dealer in meats and provisions, must meet the most damaging testimony when he comes into the police court next Monday charged with the embezzlement of more than $4,000 from his employers, the money representing accounts which he had collected and failed to turn in to his employers. When the shortage loomed up in one case the corporation employed an accountant and then every patron of Hatch that was located in the section covered by Holloway, including Norwich, New London, Montville, Niantic, Taftville, Groton, Mystic and Westerly sent a statement of accounts with the firm. Then replies rolled in to show that they had paid their bills promptly and that they were not indebted to Hatch & Co. The result was that an examination of the accounts showed that Holloway had collected a great deal of money that he had not returned to his employers. The accounts varied in amounts from a few dollars to $50. P. Senkowsky of Washburn street, Andrew Gannon of 72 Bank street, Adam Smolen of Bonnet street, all of New London, were sent bills and they produced receipted bills to disclose that they had paid all they owed. C. S. Simpson of Groton, P. N. Stephens of Niantic, John Jackel, Norwich, Jr., Spurgeon, Nick Stadnick and G. Senkowsky, also of Norwich were in the same fix. They had paid and had receipts to show that they did send their accounts. In one case an overcoming was settled and Holloway was declared to have made good from his own pocket the money due.

Andrew Wiswell investigated for a surety company and then the whole story came out. Holloway admitted, according to Mr. Wiswell, that he had not accounted for the money he owed to Hatch & Co. His whole story according to Wiswell was regarded as absurd. Holloway was next to be called. Wiswell called on him and interrogated him as to his accounts, so Wiswell declared further probing until a fortnight had elapsed. Holloway said among other things that he dropped $60 or $70 bowling in the Watrous house in Norwich and admitted that he knew more about that fact. Investigation showed that he owed Hatch & Co. $3863.71 when caught him in so many lies," said Wiswell, "that I became disgusted." The merchants who had done business with Holloway appeared in court and were witnesses against him today.

Holloway's physical condition today is not such that he could appear in court, so, at the request of his attorney, the case went over for a week. A bond of $4,000 was furnished by Holloway's father.

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM" CASE BRINGS FINE IN CITY COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 25—Alice Marks, colored, when in the police court today endeavored to convince Judge Prince that she did not maintain an unlawful place at 365 Main street. She made a bad mess of it however, and was fined $50. Alice is a divorcee. She represented that she pays $65 a month for the three floors of 12 rooms and that she gets the money to pay the rent by leasing out accommodations at $5 a week. On the face of that story her statement was such as stamped her as a business woman, but when it was disclosed that neighbors and others had complained to the police of the presence of black and white sailors there and noise late at night the scheme did not appear as good as when framed by Mrs. Marks. The police finally acted to suppress the place as such and when they went there Saturday afternoon they found Joseph Washington in a bathrobe in the room of Lillian Blake, a colored woman who admitted that he was supporting her and maintaining her in leisure until such time as she is able to obtain a divorce from her husband. Lillian did not think the presence of Joseph in her room, although she was in bed, was to be wondered at. His duds were hanging on the wall and the police declared he was a bit nonplussed when they entered. Still Lillian was calm and declared that Joe was her intended husband, explained that he was supporting her and that he gave her clothes and in other ways provided for her. She saw nothing to wonder at in all that. Joe admitted his presence in the room and was astonished that any one should find fault with his being there. Judge Prince announced that he had heard enough to convince him as to the character of the place and imposed fines on the three persons accused. Lillian and Joseph drawing fines of $10 each. The two paid about $100 into the court.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S SIGNATURE REQUIRED IN NORWICH CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 25—Police Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to Norwich this morning and obtained the signature of States Attorney Arthur M. Brown to extradition papers wherein Charles Hummel, 228 Jefferson avenue and Kenneth Davis, formerly a lodger at the Salvation Army in King mas State street, under arrest in New York for the theft in this city of an automobile owned by William P. Broadway Theatre

There are just two days left in which to enjoy the Bert Lytell and Billie Dove starring vehicle, "The Lone Wolf Returns," the thrilling Columbia adaptation of Louis Joseph Vance's final story of the adventures of Michael Lanyard, at the Broadway theatre. The reformation of Michael through his love for the pretty heroine, Marcia Mayfair, and his struggle against the intriguing of Morphew, king of loot, whose chief objective is the overthrow of Lanyard's good resolutions for the benefit of his own crooked designs, forms one of the most exciting chapters in the life history of popular modern advanture characters.

Those who have not seen this production should make haste. The production, which represents one of the most artistic attempts at fast melodrama yet screened, is of special interest to women, both from the romantic and the fashion angle. Up-to-the-minute Paris creations worn by Billie Dove and Gwen Lee are graceful in design, and ravishingly beautiful in effect. The double appeal of romance and adventure, the mystery atmosphere, the lavishness of the settings, the cameo-clearness of the photoplay all tends to compact and satisfying entertainment.

The second feature is also very interesting, featuring a star cast with Thunder, the dog marvel in "The Phantom of the Forest."

The management advises that as an extra added attraction he will have professional try-out vaudeville acts. That this announcement will be met with much enthusiasm can readily be predicted.
